Going Through Montana. Sheep and Mountains. Copper and Gold. Hearst's Profitable Ride.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

BUTTE, Mont., August 2.

YESTERDAY on the St. Paul line I spent going hundreds of miles through the state of Montana, Senator Walsh's state. There is plenty of room left in the United States. You could hide the population of the earth in the Rocky Mountains, over which this electric engine climbed and they would have plenty of room.

Through the northern plains of Montana you climb, past round foot-hills, up to the top of the Rocky Mountains, and for 40 minutes down the other side to Butte, the state's great pocketbook.

EIGHT big farms financed by the wisdom and money of John D. Rockefeller are making experiments in this state to decide the best use of its 90,000,000 acres and the right size for farms.

The state college runs one farm of 3,000 acres, private individuals run the others, and will pay for them in crop proceeds.

M. L. WILSON, Montana's agricultural economist on the 3,000-acre farm, experiments with machinery to make industrialists of farmers. With one giant tractor he pulls a "duck foot" cultivator, cultivating a strip 60 feet wide. In an hour that apparatus can cultivate a strip of land 20,000 feet long, 60 feet wide. "Duck foot," so called because the blades look like duck's feet, pointing toward each other, runs four inches below the wheat stubble, killing weeds that rob the soil of its moisture. The stubble left standing protects the soil from high winds that would blow it away in dust, and from occasional heavy rains that would "puddle" it.

M. L. WILSON is in Russia now, showing that government how to use machinery in place of men, and make farms pay, and on his model 3,000-acre farm at Brockton, Mont., eight young Russians are studying agricultural machinery at work. Thence they go to study machinery in the factory of the International Harvester Company, the intelligent concern that brought them over here to promote business with Russia.

E. W. HALL, agricultural supervisor for the St. Paul road, tells you about hardy Norwegian sheep men who came out here years ago. In South Mussel Valley, they raise fodder for use in the bitter winter. In spring and autumn their great bands of sheep and a few cattle feed in the foothills. In hot summer they are driven to high government forest preserves to graze and browse, paying the government a few cents a head per month. Interesting life while it lasts for the sheep. They are happy, knowing no more about death than we do.

One man can herd 2,000 sheep in the open, 1,000 in the forest. Twenty-five shearers work with power from one machine.

BEFORE you reach Butte you ride up the Rockies to the Continent's stony backbone, where a pail of water correctly spilled flows half toward the Atlantic and half toward the Pacific.

Sitting at the front of the electric locomotive, the engineer, L. J. McCormick, climbs a hill 2,000 feet high, 20 miles long, in one hour, hauling a load of 8,000,000 pounds. Think that over. He looks up at two copper wires, each smaller than your little finger. They feed him power to lift the 8,000,000 pounds.

THAT makes you respect electricity. Mr. Ryan, head of the Anaconda Copper Company, gets that electric power from waterfalls off in the mountains, and sells it to the St. Paul Railway.

The heavy train on its way downhill manufactures electricity, as a waterfall manufactures it, by power of gravity. The current thus manufactured is pumped back into Mr. Ryan's wires and he makes deductions on the electric power bill that he sends to Mr. Scandrett, head of the St. Paul. All business-like and amazing.

BUTTE is a city that you should see. Many years ago, before there was any city or railroad, the late Senator George Hearst came riding up here on horseback. He had an eye for mining properties, and thought the Anaconda mine, located here, would be worth while. He was right, and it is. It produces now about 300,000,000 pounds of copper a year, plus 175,000 pounds of zinc, employing 15,000 metal miners.

THE Anaconda smokestack, tallest in the world, 585 feet high, captures by-products as they sail upward. Among other things, the smokestack yields annually 220 carloads of arsenic. The St. Paul uses some of it, sprinkled on its right of way, to kill weeds. You use some, perhaps, to kill rats and mice.

FROM the Anaconda smelter near here the copper is sent to Great Falls, 125 miles away, where it is refined. Each ton yields 60 ounces of silver, fourtenths of an ounce in gold. It's a good mine. The mine is 3,600 feet deep now, the ore coming up from 100 shafts. It is proved that the marvelous copper mass goes down at least 5,000 feet. What other wealth is hidden under these hills, you might come out and see.

THAT was a profitable ride that George Hearst, of California, took through these Rocky Mountains more than half a century ago. There are better mines in the earth that have never been worked. You might find one. See this country. Come West. It's worth it.

WITNESS SAW MAN, GIRL STRUGGLE IN FIELD

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.
International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 2.—Dr. James H. Snook reclined comfortably in his beach chair in court today and without the slightest trace of emotion listened to a ghastly recital of events that transpired before and after Theora Hix was done to death on a lonely rifle range outside Columbus.

Not once did his solemn "poker face" change expression as half a dozen witneses trooped to the stand and told blood-curdling stories—the man who saw a couple struggling at the roadside at 8:45 p. m., June 13; the high school boy who found the body and notified the police; the farmer who interrupted his ploughing to guard the body; the police corporal who was the first official on the scene; the photographers who took the gruesome pictures; Coroner Joseph A. Murphy, who described in vivid details the wounds that caused the death of the young co-ed.

UNSHAKEN BY TESTIMONY

The defendant, lolling at ease, listened like one surgeon to another surgeon as Coroner Murphy described the scene of the crime, the condition of the body and the result of the post-mortem. Once or twice Snook calmly jotted down a notation. Then he relapsed into quiet contemplation.

4 COMMUNISTS CHOOSE JAIL SENTENCES

Decision Held Up in Cases Of 24 Others Arrested in 'Red Day' Demonstrations

Twenty-eight persons arrested at a Communist meeting in East Park, North Side, last night, were given hearings in police court today. Four of them, fined $10 each, with the alternative of 10 days' imprisonment, said they would elect to go to jail. Decision was reserved in the case of the others.

The defense was based principally on the fact that Public Safety Director James M. Clark had granted a permit for the meeting, one of a number of "International Red Day" demonstrations held throughout the world.

The police contended that the permit had been revoked, but admitted the notice of revocation had been served only on the janitor of the building, 805 James street, North Side, where the Communists maintain headquarters.

24 ARRAIGNED

Twenty-four of the defendants were arraigned before Magistrate E. M. Hough in the North Side Police Court, and it was he who imposed the fines. Those sentenced were George Patrimas, 32, of 710 Fifth avenue; Thomas Ray, 52, of McDonald, Pa.; John Herbona, 38, of 163 East Robinson street, and Abe Sarfinkel, 21, of 805 James street. They admitted they had carried banners at the meeting.

Four defendants—three women and an 18-year-old boy—were arraigned before Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court.

Brandon said he would make a personal inquiry before determining whether the demonstrators were notified the permit had been revoked.

RELEASES FOUR

In the meantime he authorized the release of the four—the boy, Gilbert Totherow, 18, a Gastonia

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 2.—A modest, 16-year-old boy with horn-rimmed glasses and a distinct scientific inclination—Walter B. Huston, of Seattle, Wash.—today was crowned the smartest boy in America and won the life-time patronage of Thomas A. Edison, the great inventor.

Young Huston, son of Bishop S. Arthur Huston, of the Protestant Episcopal church, was selected from 49 boys from every state as the result of his brilliant answers to a questionnaire examination prepared by Edison himself.

Four other boys, not quite as mentally accurate as Huston, were awarded college tuition scholarships, ranked equally. They were: Charles H. Brunissen, of West Redding, Conn.; Ivan A. Getting, of Pittsburgh; James Seth, of Santa Fe, New Mexico, and Bernard Sturgis, of Butler, Ind.

BOY CONFUSED

While young Huston is listed in the entries as Wilbur, Dr. S. W. Stratton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, addressed him as Walter, in making the award.

The new scientific prodigy was so excited that he literally couldn't tell

U. S.-Bound Dirigible Picks Up Speed; Motors Operate Perfectly, Message Says

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The first direct message from the Graf Zeppelin was received at the Navy Department this morning.

It said:

"Three a. m., Greenwich time, Gibraltar passed. Graf Zeppelin."

Weather Bureau officials said today a high pressure area extended from the Spanish coast southwestward to the south of the Azores and thence westward to Bermuda, which would indicate good flying weather for the Zeppelin.

International News Service.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—The Graf Zeppelin was 600 miles west of Gibraltar, out over the Atlantic Ocean, this afternoon, according to a dispatch received from Casablanca, Morocco, at 10:40 a. m., Pittsburgh time.

The Casablanca dispatch said that the radio station at that place was in communication with the Graf Zeppelin and that the airship reported her position as 600 miles west of Gibraltar and said all on board were well.

The Zeppelin was heading direct for the Azores, it was assumed from the report of her afternoon position.

BRADDOCK MAN SLAIN IN FEUD

James Bruno, 38, was walking along Margaretta street in Braddock at 2 a. m. today when an auto pulled slowly by him.

The muzzle of a shotgun protruded over the side of the car and as Bruno glanced towards the machine a hail of shots felled him to the sidewalk.

REPEATS NAMES

As he lay on the sidewalk Bruno cried out to the crowd that collected the names of two men as the assailants.

Before he died an hour later Bruno repeated the names on his death-bed in Braddock General Hospital.

One of them was Frank Amata, described as "the big boss of the Italians" in Braddock. He was charged with murder by Deputy Coroner Harry Ewing.

"The bootleggers are at it again," county detectives reported after hearing Bruno's statement.

Investigators were not convinced that Amata was one of the two.

ALIBI SUPPLIED

Lieut. Edward Goldstein, of the Braddock force, supplied an alibi for him by attesting that Amata was in the Braddock Police Station when the murder call reached there.

The second man named by Bruno was reported out of the city. A second arrest was made, however, although it was not established that it had a connection with the murder. John Stefanik, described as Bruno's partner, was charged with violating the liquor laws.

Bruno has been arrested several times for selling booze, the detectives learned. Today 12 gallons of moonshine were found in his store, at 1122 Washington avenue.

ALEPPO SQUIRE HELD IN RAID

Gilbert J. Martin, justice of the peace of Aleppo Township, was held for court by a United States Commissioner today on charges of possession and manufacture of beer.

His property in Aleppo Township was raided by prohibition agents in July after they had seen two barrels of beer being loaded into an automobile. They testified a gas and water line run from his residence to a nearby house he owned and leased to John Simons, and in which beer was being manufactured.

Martin said that he was trying to collect the rent for the place July 7, when prohibition officers arrived. He disclaimed knowledge of the use of the place as a brewery.

Two 500-gallon vats and 50 gallons of malt, 34 empty five-gallon cans and other apparatus were seized in the raid. Martin was released in $2,000 bond.

New Surety Granted For Gas Tax Payment

HARRISBURG, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Acceptance of individual surety bonds as well as corporate surety from gasoline dealers to insure payment of the four-cent gasoline tax was ordered today by Secretary of Revenue Charles Johnson. The change is only one of the points desired by the retailers who are fighting the regulations of the department and will not affect the impending court action for an injunction against Johnson, declared Ben Eby, manager of the Pennsylvania Gasoline Vendors Association.

'PIE' TRAYNOR BACK IN GAME

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

With Capt. (Pie) Traynor back at his familiar position at third base, after a long absence because of injuries, Manager Donie Bush today announced another change in his batting order for the final battle of the four-game series with the Phils at Forbes Field this afternoon.

Traynor's return to the lineup has resulted in the benching of Sparky Adams, Bartell moving over to second, while Stuart Clarke will perform at short.

Bartell, who was dropped to seventh in the batting order yesterday, goes back to the lead-off position, followed by Lloyd Waner, Paul Waner, Comorosky, Brickell, Traynor, Hemsley or Hargreaves, Clarke and French.

Benge is scheduled to take the mound for the Quakers in the closing argument. The Phils so far have won two out of the three games, and they will be out to prevent the Pirates from evening the count.

Comorosky's triple with the bases full in the third inning enabled Jess Petty to score a victory over Elliott in a pitchers' battle yesterday, 3 to 1. Three walks paved the way for Commy's cleanup wallop.

Insiders Cash in as Ford Order Boosts Stock

The Witherow Steel Corporation, it was learned today, has received from the Ford Motor Company a gigantic order for axles—one of the largest ever placed.

In the expectation that the Ford contract will increase the earnings of the Witherow company, insiders with advance information have been buying its shares on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange.

Demand for the stock caused it to advance 6½ points on Tuesday, when it closed at 50. Wednesday it reached a new high mark of 51, but reacted yesterday to 48½.

The company admitted it had received the contract, and that it was a very desirable one. Further details were not disclosed, except that it was said the Ford business would not monopolize the company's production capacity.

The Witherow Steel Corporation was incorporated in Pennsylvania May 18, 1927, as successor to the Witherow Steel Company, which was incorporated in March, 1914. On April 15 last the company acquired the entire capital stock of Dilworth, Porter & Co. The plant is on Neville Island, where the company owns 15 acres. W. P. Witherow is president and general manager.

MOTHER-TO-BE IN SHADOW OF PRISON, JOINS CHILDREN

AWAITS NEW RUM TRIAL; BAILED

Will Have Two of Her Six Youngsters With Her Until Fate Is Finally Decided

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2.—There is a lot of legal maneuvering going on about pretty 22-year-old Mrs. Thelma Holland, the mother-to-be whose baby might have been born in jail if public sentiment had not enforced its protests.

But all the activities of lawyers and courts mean not half so much to the women as this—

That yesterday for the first time in days, Mrs. Holland—free on $1,000 bail while her attorney prepares for the new trial she has won on a far-fetched liquor charge—was able once again to "mother" her family of stepchildren.

WITH CHILDREN

And between now and the beginning of that trial, she will be with the children much of the time. In fact, two of the children will be with her all the time. For Mrs. Holland, pending the trial, has gone to the home of close friends in Long Beach, and she took with her two of her husband's children—the 11-year-old boy and the little 4-year-old girl. Because of lack of means, the others will have to stay where they are—three of them in the Ingleside home and an older boy in Girard, being cared for by the county.

It was that still that resulted in the amazing sentence imposed earlier this week on the 22-year-old mother-to-be. Superior Judge J. Emmet Wilson, accepting the plea of guilty she offered in expectation of winning recommended probation, startled courtroom attaches and the city in general by inflicting the maximum penalty on the woman—one to five years in San Quentin and a $1,000 fine.

TOO HAPPY TO TALK

Mrs. Holland had little to add yesterday to the statement she had given out previously. Too happy in her freedom, her reunion to her stepfamily and her new chance to provide in hygienic comfort for the advent of the baby that is to come, she commented little on the action of the court.

"I feel that a jury of 12 people will hear my side—will understand that whatever technical guilt may be laid to me, my offense certainly has not been such as to warrant their sentencing my baby to be born in prison," she said. "But I am not going to worry—I cannot; it would not be fair to baby. All I am going to do is to take care of myself and my stepchildren, and hope for justice."

successfully negotiating the treacherous air currents of the Swiss Alps and Rhone Valley the Graf Zeppelin had soared past Gibraltar, encountering better weather after hours of fighting contrary winds, and was heading for the Azores.

Reports that a stowawny had gained access to the dirigible just before she left her home here at Friedrichshafen, Germany, at 10:29 p. m., Pittsburgh time, Wednesday, were discounted by Nicholson, who in a dispatch to International News Service, described in detail a fruitless search made aboard the craft for the suspected interloper.

Approximately 3,000 miles of open sea, broken only by the pin-points of the mid-Atlantic Azores Islands and Madeira, faced the Zeppelin after passing the far-famed British fortress of Gibraltar.

ALL CALM ABOARD

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, Aug. 2.—At midnight, when this dispatch was filed, the dirigible Graf Zeppelin with its thrilled complement of 18 passengers, was approaching the vicinity of Gibraltar, and we expect to be out over the open sea by 2 a. m. Friday, local time, 11 p. m. Thursday, Pittsburgh

The motors are functioning perfectly, and we are encountering better weather than over Switzerland and France, where contrary winds of great violence cut down our speed considerably.

Due to severe storms over Northwestern Spain, Dr. Hugo Eckener, the dirigible's commander, decided upon a rather southerly course, taking us over Almeira, Spain, the Balearic Isles and near Gibraltar. As I write this message we are over the calm Mediterranean, making better than 50 miles an hour and heading swiftly toward the ocean.

The report that a stowaway boarded the Graf a few minutes before we took off from Friedrichshafen caused some consternation among passengers and crew, and Dr. Eckener threatened to deal harshly with him when found. A thorough search of the ship, including a detailed examination of the network of girders which comprises its frame, revealed no trace of the stowaway, however, and the conclusion has now been reached that the intruder is not aboard.

Zep Expected to Arrive At Lakehurst on Sunday

International News Service.

When the Graf Zeppelin passed Cadiz, Spain, at 1:50 a. m. today, Pittsburgh time, she had traveled 1,330 miles from Friedrichshafen at an average speed of about 48 miles an hour.

The distance from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst, N. J., according to the route the Graf was expected to follow, is about 4,400 miles. If the airship were to maintain throughout the trip the same speed she has shown so far, she should reach Lakehurst, N. J., around 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon. However, the speed is entirely conditional upon weather conditions.

Taxi Driver Held In Child's Death

JENNERTOWN, Pa., Aug. 2.—Mary Maxine Williams, 5, daughter of George Williams, of near Ralphton, few miles east of here, was killed when struck by an automobile on the Lincoln highway. The child suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

James L. Sird, 24, of Pittsfield, Mass., a taxicab driver in New York City, is being held in jail at Somerset on a charge of voluntary manslaughter. Sird was driving his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Sird, of Pittsfield, to California, when the accident occured. It is claimed he was driving rapidly when his car struck the girl, whose elder sister, Edith, 14, witnessed the accident.

car on the lonely rifle range where Miss Hix lost her life the night of June 13, was related from the witness stand by Clarence R. Murray, a carpenter.

"Is was about 8:45 p. m.," testified Murray, who lives with his family of 10 children in the vicinity. "I was driving a car and had two of my daughters, Flossie, 11, and Bertha, 13, in the back seat. I stopped at the railroad crossing near the range.

"I saw a man and a woman scuffling around. A car, a blue coupe, was parked nearby. The man had his arms around the lady's waist and she had her hands on his chest, as if she was was trying to push him away."

DESCRIPTION TALLIES

The assistant prosecutor posed as the man.

"Her hair was down around her shoulders," declared the witness, as he resumed the stand. "She had on a reddish brown dress."

On a table near the witness stand were articles of feminine wearing apparel, including Theora Hix's brown crepe dress, stained with blood.

"Before my car got to where they were, they ceased struggling," Murray continued. "She had gone to one side of the car and stood with her hands up, as if she were arranging her hair."

The girl was "fairly tall," about 5 feet 6 or 7, and weighed about 140 pounds, Murray said.

'MAN ABOUT SAME SIZE'

The witness declared he did not pay much attention to the man. He seemed about the same size "although he was standing on lower ground."

Paul Kumlauf, a high school boy, who, with a companion, Milton Miller, went to the rifle range on June 14 to practice shooting, told of finding Miss Hix's body.

The witness told how the police went to the scene and how the police photographer took pictures of the body.

Two photographs were introduced by the state as evidence. The witness was shown the pictures. Were the photographs true likenesses of the body as found by them? The witness replied that they were.

Young Kumlauf was excused and Ephriam Johnson, a 76-year-old farmer, was called to the stand. He corroborated Kumlauf's testimony.

SNOOK UNMOVED

Snook, reclining in an orange, black and green chair which had been provided for him because he is indisposed as a result of a spinal fluid operation, listened to the testimony without showing the slightest emotion.

Johnson was saying:

"Her face was bruised and covered with dry blood, and she was in bad shape," but the defendant continued to gaze at the ceiling as if he did not hear him.

The courtroom was again thronged to its capacity. Women and girls were banked five deep around the walls, and at the main entrance to the courtroom a group of more than 50 spectators were massed.

The witness was excused and John P. May, police corporal, took the stand. He was one of the officers who went to the scene after the two boys had reported the finding of the co-ed's body.

In considerable detail he described the condition of the girl's head which had been struck a dozen or more hammer blows.

Snook heard all this without batting an eye. He lay in his beach chair, his head resting under his hands and gazing upward at the courtroom ceiling.

STATE CHARGES DRUG'S USE

An observer simply cannot guess what Dr. Snook was thinking about when the state hurled its surprise thunderbolt. Prosecuting Attorney John J. Chester, Jr., charged that Snook killed the 24-year-old co-ed because she repulsed him. According to Chester, Theora did not want to make an appointment with Snook on the fatal night of June 13. But she did.

Snook took her motoring in his blue coupe. On the way the professor stopped and got a sandwich. Upon the sandwich, the prosecutor alleged, Snook sprinkled a drug which she ate. They drove to a rifle range on a lonely road outside the city. The drug concoction failed and when Theora repulsed the professor's advances he became angry and struck her down with the hammer.

his own name. It was scientifically perplexing.

"Is your name Walter?" he was asked.

Yes," he answered.

"Is your name Wilbur?" he was asked.

"Yes," he answered.

Huston kept blushing — really and truly.

"How do you feel, Huston?"

"What can I say—" was all he could say.

The Seattle boy did mumble, however, that he had attended Lake Side School, Seattle, wanted to study at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, that he was very happy, and he thought perhaps that the fact his grandfather and uncle were scientists may have helped him in making a good showing on the Edison questionnaire.

WORK ALL NIGHT

Huston was one of the last boys to finish his questionnaire.

The committee, composed of Dr. Stratton, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Henry Ford, George Eastman and Dr. Lewis Perry, of Phillips Exeter, sat up until an early hour this morning marking the examination papers. Eastman was forced to drop out at midnight from the grueling session.

Ten boys were selected from their showing in the test and reported out to Edison's home, Glenmont. Five were eliminated. Then on the lawn, Huston and the four runners-up were informed of their selection.

Dr. Stratton said that the boys as a whole had done so well that a choice was extremely difficult.

CHEER WINNER

As soon as Dr. Stratton announced the name of the winner, the assembled 48 other contestants set up a cheer and hoisted young Huston to their shoulders. They carried him in a triumphal procession around the lawn.

Dr. Stratton interrupted the festivities by announcing the names of the four other boys who had won college tuition. There was more cheering.

The winner said he expected to leave for Seattle within a few days. The boys will make a sight-seeing trip of New York City this afternoon and meet Mayor James J. Walker at City Hall.

ANSWERS SECRET

Answers to the Edison questionnaire will not be made public for at least 10 years, Charles Edison, the inventors' son, said today.

"They will be kept under lock and key for at least 10 years. Then, if there is any good reason for doing so, they may be made public."

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 2.—John Donohoe, the silent man who knew all about everybody, took his knowledge to the grave today, and authorities were still unable to name the persons who made sure that Donohoe's silence would be eternal.

The former constable and political feudist had a funeral that was, for these parts, impressive.

An American Legion firing squad sent three ragged volleys across his flag-draped casket before it was lowered into the grave. A bugler sounded taps.

The rattle of the saluting rifles was punctuated by the sobbing of a woman. Helen Eckert, aged 30, a singer and music teacher, refined, shunning publicity, saw this ending a romance annulled by 12 racketeer bullets.

Meanwhile in the state police barracks at New Salem troopers were grilling Glen Allen, now of Masontown, lately of Washington, Pa., who has two liquor law convictions against him in Washington County.

Coroner S. A. Baltz admitted that Allen had been barren of information, nor had anything been learned from two women and two other men who are being held for questioning.

The situation, Baltz said, was "well in hand," but arrests were not imminent.

There was a belief prevalent here that if the persons who shot Donohoe to death on Big Frame road Tuesday night were to be apprehended, the work would be done by the state police.

A squad of 15 troopers has been assigned to the case. They were comparing fingerprints, questioning suspects, tracing Donohoe's possible connections with the liquor business in Fayette County, but they had nothing to announce.

Coroner Baltz did not know what his next step would be.

District Attorney N. A. Rosenberg was frankly perturbed. There is no rum ring in Fayette County, he asserted. He disliked, he said, newspaper reports that politics and bootlegging in this county might have been closely linked.

$100 Lucky Buck Swapped to Pittsburgher in Diner

Charles G. Andrews, manager of the steamship, travel and foreign exchange department of the Diamond National Bank, appeared yesterday as winner of the $100 special Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Lucky Buck.

Before reaching Andrews, dollar bill No. T82276001 is known to have travelled at least from Pittsburgh to Johnstown, between Sunday morning and Monday night. Andrews received the dollar on the Pennsylvania railroad, Monday night, between Altoona and Johnstown, in exchange for a new dollar bill.

GOT IT ON TRAIN

Here is Andrews' account of his acquisition of the $100 Special:

"Returning from the reception of the Bremen on her maiden voyage to New York, I boarded a Pennsylvania train for Pittsburgh Monday. Monday evening I was seated in the diner eating my dinner, when a stranger entered and was shown to the seat opposite mine, at the same table.

"Shortly after we left Altoona, my check came and I took out some of the new currency to pay for it. Seeing the new, smaller bills I was laying down, the stranger coughed suggestively and said:

"'Say, I see you've got some of this new money. I haven't been able to get any of it yet. How'd you like to exchange with me?

"Well, I'm in the banking business," Andrews continued, "and I can have all the new bills I want, so I thought I'd oblige him.

THEY SWAP

"'Sure,' I said, 'I'll be glad to trade, dollar for dollar.'

"So we swapped, and the stranger left the train at Johnstown. Arriving home that evening, I picked up a Sun-Telegraph and noted the Lucky Buck contest. Well, I thought no more about it until Wednesday noon, when I bought a Sun-Telegraph on the corner.

"Imagine my amazement at finding the number of this dirty, soiled, crumpled dollar — No. T82276001D—listed as worth $100! That'll come in handy for my vacation to the West Indies.

Many other persons have benefited by this Lucky Buck contest. More will benefit from an important announcement to be made Sunday in the Sun-Telegraph.

SPREADS A FEW MORE

Today I distributed five new dollar bills in Crafton, Aspinwall, Pittsburgh, Heron Hill. Lee Yarn served me with cigars in the tobacco store in the Jenkins Arcade; Morris Levine, 3003 Center avenue, received another Lucky Buck, the driver of Yellow Cab No. 186 corralled a third, a fourth was left in the R. L. Yanda drug store, 57 Crafton avenue, and the fifth paid for a head of lettuce in Aspinwall.

WIDE-SPREAD RIOTING STAGED ON 'RED' ANTI-WAR DAY

U. S., EUROPE SCENES OF UNREST

Many Hurt, Scores Arrested As Communists Battle Police in Demonstrations

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Three policemen were injured last night in attempting to break up an open air meeting of 3,000 Communists in the Bronx who were celebrating International Anti-War Day. Eighteen persons were arrested, including eight young women.

Sergt. McNamara and Patrolman Logan were buffeted by the crowd when they attempted to pull Sidney Bloomfield, 30, from the speakers' stand. Walter Feddern, a patrolman off duty, then rushed into the crowd only to be felled with a chair.

An emergency squad arrived at this time and the crowd dissolved. Many of the demonstrators went to their headquarters. A few minutes later police raided the place and arrested 18 members of the Young Communists League on charges of inciting to riot. About 17 others escaped.

CHICAGO ARRESTS 17

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Thirteen men and four women were arrested last night as police repulsed an effort of approximately 1,500 Communists to hold an international day demonstration at Union Square.

Five were seized at Hammond and a meeting was halted at Gary. Numerous clashes occurred at the park and at several places in the vicinity where groups had gathered for an intended parade.

QUIET IN PARIS

PARIS, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—The day of anti-war demonstrations organized by Communists passed off in France with little violence, but not a few arrests. French workers in general failed to respond to the Communist invitation to leave work and take possession of the streets in the name of the proletariat.

CLASHES IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Scattering clashes between Communists and others, with a few persons injured and more arrested, were reported tonight from German cities. In Berlin 30 were arrested and two members of the Reichsbanner were seriously cut with knives by Communists.

SOVIETS SPURN CHINESE PEACE

MOSCOW, Aug. 2.—(INS.)—The Soviet government today dispatched a note to Marshal Chang Hsue Liang, Manchurian war lord, rejecting the Chinese offer to settle the Sino-Russian dispute.

The Chinese offer involved withdrawal of the Soviet ultimatum to the Nanking government, and demanded release of all Chinese nationals arrested in Russia.

In rejecting the offer, the Soviets expressed readiness to negotiate the dispute, but only on condition the Chinese Eastern Railway is restored to its status quo ante, and that Marshal Chang admit openly that the seizure was in direct violation of the Peking and Mukden treaties.

WALES VISITS SCOUTS

Eagle Scout Clark B. Johnston, of Crafton, who has received many honors as an ideal Scout, is reporting details of the international Scout jamboree at Birkenhead, England, for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. His cabled news reports will be published exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

By CLARK B. JOHNSTON,
Eagle Scout.
Correspondent Sun-Telegraph.

ARROW PARK, England, Aug. 2.—Seventy different groups of Scouts from 44 nations are holding pageants and stunts here from dawn till dusk.

We saw a demonstration of Pine Tree Patrol work yesterday in the great stadium.

About 30,000 Scouts attended.

I have not had a great deal of time to enter pageants or stunts. Getting the camp in shape has taken most our time today. We are resting, and will start soon to take part in the doings.

The most impressive thing have seen is the parade inspection in the morning. All troops with all colors flying stand at attention until inspected.

CAMP ROUTINE

In the evening at 7:30 Scouts assemble again for retreat.

As the bugle blows leaders of each group salute, and the boys stand at attention—then in silence that follows flags are lowered.

The Prince of Wales arrived yesterday and is expected to visit the American camp today. We all are waiting for his visit.

WALES EMBARRASSED

He seemed embarrassed by the vast amount of attention paid him. After an introduction by Sir Robert Baden-Powell to the members of his staff and a moment's chat with each he was escorted to his tent to change into Scout uniform, and then he shook hands with the delegates from all countries. One of the first to greet him was Dan Beard. The veteran said later, "He is a fine boy."

I was in bed today again, but the doctor says I'll be O. K. in a few days.

Boy Scouts who are interested and all of the thousands in Western Pennsylvania are interested—in this biggest event in the history of Scoutdom will find exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph news written for them by one of their own Scouts. Scout Johnston will feature the news which he as a Scout knows will be of special interest to Scouts here. Watch the Sun-Telegraph for his articles.

Jewish Boy Scouts To Camp in Canada

COUNCIL VISITS MAYVIEW

Members of Council and city engineers yesterday inspected the building program at the Mayview hospitals. They were escorted through the institution by Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the Department of Welfare.

The building program started more than a year ago, and represents an outlay of about $1,800,000 for new buildings and remodeling of existing structures. Work on the new buildings is about 95 per cent completed.

Inspecting the place with Mrs. Rauh were Dr. J. S. Hammers, superintendent; Councilmen John S. Herron, Robert Garland, W. Y. English, Charles Anderson and Daniel Winters; John F. Lang, of the department of Supplies, and City Clerk Robert Clark. The work was explained by Eric Fisher Wood and S. A. Haegerling, architects.

CRASH DAMAGES 2 CARS, TRUCK

When an automobile driven by the Rev. Joseph Garrett, Negro, of Cleveland, O., hit a truck at Frankstown and Hamilton avenues today, here's what happened, police reported:

The truck, driven by Carl Huntsman, of 5819 Wellesley avenue, was lifted by the impact and the rear end came down on the hood of the preacher's car.

A can of milk was hurled from the truck part way through the windshield of a car driven by Ralph Corvino, of 150 Mayflower street.

Mrs. Irene Crumley, Negro, of 1713 Arcena street, was jolted from the Garrett car into Frankstown avenue and was removed to Pittsburgh Hospital, suffering from slight injuries.

Garrett and Huntsman were arrested, charged with reckless driving.

Four Children Share Wilkinsburg Estate

Four children of Mrs. Annie M. Thomas, of 418 Rebecca street, Wilkinsburg, share equally her $7,000 estate, by terms of her will filed for probate today. They are Paul, Betty and Helen Thomas, and Mrs. Isla M. Stuart, who is named executor.

$25,000 GEMS STOLEN HERE

City police and detectives are on the lookout for a gang of diamond thieves operating here.

One jeweler, it was learned today, lost a wallet containing $25,000 worth of unset stones and an attempt was made to enter the show window of Louis DeRoy & Brother, 544 Smithfield street, containing thousands of dollars worth of precious gems.

At ReRoy's the thieves had scored a hole in the corner of the window with a diamond glass cutter. The unfinished job, with valuable gems placed nearby, was used as bait by detectives who watched for days, but the thieves apparently became aware of the guard.

Isaac DeRoy, a member of the Smithfield street firm, pointed out how the diamond robber works. In an obscure corner of the window two sides of a square are scored with a diamond or some other kind of glass cutter.

"They usually wear a diamond ring for this purpose," DeRoy explained.

A few taps on the pane, the jeweler declared, causes the square of glass to drop out, and the rest is easy.

The $25,000 robbery was attested to by several downtown jewelers who refused to divulge the name of the victim. No report was made to police, the victim evidently feeling that news of the robbery would do him more harm than possible recovery of the loot.

It was reported he had not insured the diamonds and feared his credit standing would be affected.

Pittsburgh Woman Sues for Estate

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Cloy S. Davis, Pittsburgh, has filed a suit in district court here to obtain payment to her of the entire estate of the late Mark E. Davis, Tulsa Oil Well Supply manufacturer, who died in 1927, leaving the bulk of his estate by will to the Tulsa Boys' Home. Approximately $147,000 was left to relatives here. The estate was appraised at more than $500,000. Mrs. Davis recently obtained reversal of a decree of divorce gained by Davis in 1915, and now is demanding the estate under a state law which approves such claims acquired during married life.

50 Dry Officers 'Mop Up' 'Wettest Spot in Ohio'

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Liquor raids exceeding in proportions any ever seen by federal prohibition agents in Ohio, cleaned out the Steel Town of Campbell last night and early today. Fifty enforcement officers demolished half a hundred speakeasies, arrested the proprietors and dumped gallons of whisky and beer into gutters in simultaneous appearances which crowded the Federal Building with prisoners.

All the raids were made on purchases already made by undercover agents, raiders said. Among other prisoners was a man booked as John Vansuch, former safety director of Campbell. The agents said several former policemen also were included among the prisoners.

Campbell, a suburb of Youngstown, described by agents as "the wettest spot in Ohio," is populated principally by workers in the steel mills. Hundreds of these collected in the streets as the raids went on, and at one place more than 500 gathered about the agents, jeering and booing. Emergency squads of federal men were summoned and there was no serious outbreak.

The time set for the first onslaught was 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and from that hour until early this morning the raids went on. Those arrested, with confiscations made in their places, were crowded into a second floor hall of the small Federal Building, where agents guarded the exits while the prisoners were questioned by Paul Hansen, special Treasury Department investigator.

Early today a caravan of automobiles and trucks loaded with 49 men and women taken in the raids, set out for Cleveland, where they will face liquor charges.

Wounds Ward, 17, Accidentally, Kills Self

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—John Burnette, 27, prominent Elizabethton attorney, accidentally shot and seriously wounded his 17-year-old ward, Virginia Amaral, last midnight and after calling a physician killed himself.

Mrs. Burnette, a bride of three months, told officers her husband was teaching her how to load a pistol and the weapon discharged wounding Miss Amaral.

Burnette ran for a doctor. While the doctor was examining Miss Amaral, Burnette picked up the pistol, walked to the front porch and shot himself.

'REDS' CHOOSE JAIL TERMS

(N. C.) textile striker, on his own recognizance, and the women—Ruth Fisher, 20, of 1301 Federal street; Fannie Toohey, 21, of 805 James street, and Agnes, 18, of 831 Concord street—on forfeits posted at the time of their arrest.

Five Communists were arrested at a demonstration in McKeesport. They, too, were to be arraigned today.

Two of the defendants in Hough's court were members of the executive committee of the American Civil Liberties Union—Dr. Colston E. Warne, of the University of Pittsburgh, and Horace B. Davis. They said they attended the meeting merely as observers, and denounced the arrests as an outrageous interference with the right of free speech.

The American Civil Liberties Union's executive committee met later and adopted a resolution protesting the police action.

The union's attorney, Henry Ellenbogen, represented the defendants at both Hough's and Brandon's hearings.

Ellenbogen emphasized that the mere serving of notice on the janitor at Communist headquarters did not constitute revocation of the permit for the meeting. Brandon seemed to think the argument had merit, but Hough gave no indication of being impressed.

Ellenbogen asked Hough what the charge was. When the magistrate answered, "Violation of a city ordinance," Ellenbogen inquired, "What ordinance?" "I'll tell you later," said Hough.

MAGISTRATE PEEVED

Hough was irritated by Ellenbogen's questions and comments and at last told him he could take no further part in the proceedings. He softened later, and permitted the attorney to resume questioning of the witnesses.

Pat Devine, district organizer for the Communist party, was the first man arrested. While mounted policemen rode through the park dispersing the crowd, Devine, surrounded by men carrying banners, started to speak at the corner of Union avenue and East Ohio street. A policeman promptly seized him. Pat Toohey, secretary of the National Miners' Union, took his place, and was immediately arrested, as were all others who tried to address the crowd.

SING "RED" ANTHEM

The prisoners, locked up in the old Allegheny Police Station, sang the chorus of the Internationale, anthem of the Reds the world over, and scrawled on their cell walls "Long Live the World Revolution," "Defend the Soviet Union," and "Down With the Imperialist War."

The meeting had been heralded in handbills as a protest against China's threatened war on Russia, described as "an attempt of imperialistic powers — the United States and Great Britain—to crush the working class."

"The American Civil Liberties Union," said Dr. Warne, "has no interest in the principles of the Communists—we wish only to preserve the right of any group to meet peaceably without police interference."

Pitt Professors' Arrest Classed 'Persecution'

PRISON RIOT IN KANSAS QUIETED

Heat, Overcrowding, Quality Of Food Given as Cause Of Serious Outbreak

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Overcrowded conditions, dissatisfaction with food, the effect of 100 degrees temperature upon narcotic addicts and others, and knowledge of the recent prison riots in New York, today were given as causes for the riot in the Leavenworth federal penitentiary by Sanford Bates, superintendent of federal prisons.

Order has been restored as a result of prompt and courageous action by Warden Thomas B. White and other officers, Bates said.

ONE MAN DEAD

The dead and injured list as officially reported to date is:

Mike Martinee, convict No. 30162, killed by guards.

Harold G. McLaughlin, John J. Jones and Fred Conners, convicts, wounded, but not seriously.

No guards injured.

All prisoners were accounted for after a thorough check-up early today and Warden White reported that he was hopeful of preventing any further demonstration.

The rioting began with a mild demonstration in the dining room at noon, in protest against the serving of Mexican rice, the official report said. Capt. Kearney succeeded in getting the convicts out of the dining room, some going to their cells and others to the shoe factory.

DAMAGE MACHINERY

As soon as some prisoners reached the shoe factory they began another demonstration and slightly damaged some machinery. They were herded into cells.

Another outbreak occurred in the laundry, which was quickly quelled. Then early mess was called and, the report said:

"While the prisoners were in the mess hall they put on a pretty rough demonstration, throwing dining room utensils about the place and being otherwise disorderly."

"I went into the dining room and tried to reason the matter with them, and was successful enough to get them out of the dining room into the yard," Warden White telegraphed. "Most of them went to their cells. Others refused to go and we brought riot guns and drove them to the cell houses and forced them into their cells.

GUARDS ATTACKED

"By that time there was general disorder about the place and they began to tear off all fixtures they could from the cell galleries and with brickbats and other heavy implements attacked the guards in the cell houses.

"After hurried investigation of the reason given for the demonstration, which was that their noon meal of red rice was not satisfactory, I believe that the real reason for the trouble is the overcrowded conditions without any work to do, with the addition of extremely hot weather."

Mary Lewis, Opera Star, Sues 'Ideal' Husband

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—The romance of the Metropolitan Opera Company's "ideal couple" was climaxed yesterday with the filing of a separate maintenance suit by Mary Lewis against Michael Franz Bohnen, in which she accused her husband of cruelty.

Miss Lewis described her two years of married life as "one continuous discord."

The couple, married in New York in April, 1927, and whose wedding was referred to by their friends of the stage as an "ideal" union, separated last July 1, Miss Lewis, a former Arkansas choir singer, stated.

Their differences, it was revealed, began a few days after the wedding while they were on a liner bound for Europe. Miss Lewis accused her husband of striking her while a crowd of passengers was nearby.

Other charges alleged the husband dragged her about a Paris hotel room after knocking her down and kicking her, and in Berlin, she charged, he pushed her with such force against a door that the panel was smashed.

When the couple returned to New York Miss Lewis alleged Bohnen attempted to make her leap from a hotel window and when she refused, she said, he tried to push her out.

The couple came here recently. Miss Lewis to rest and Bohnen to appear in a motion picture.

Explorer Finds Beauty at Every Turn as Dirigible Soars Majestically to Sea

By SIR HUBERT WILKINS,

Famous Explorer Sailing Across the Atlantic Ocean on the Graf Zeppelin to Write the Story of the Second Trans-Atlantic Flight.

Special Dispatch via Radio and Cable.)

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, Aug. 1.—At 2 p. m. this afternoon we slipped out into the Gulf of Lyons, after first having passed over Nimes, Montepelier and Cette, and headed for the Mediterranean Sea—the first portion of our trans-Atlantic journey.

All except the curious passed most of the morning in their cabins, after the first blush of a beautiful dawn that greeted us when we had cleared Friedrichshafen and Basle.

And then, after awakening along toward the start of the afternoon, all were joyous over the prospect that we were avoiding the northerly storms and circling south toward the beautiful blue Mediterranean and the chalky rock of Gibraltar.

REMEMBERS THRILL

So far, it has been an enthralling voyage. Just seven weeks ago, in mid-May, it was over the district we have just passed that the giant dirigible, crippled by its faulty motor crankshafts, had the major battle of its campaign for commercial recognition.

How this huge bird fought then! How thrilled we all were, and what a tonic was the effervescence of Mrs. Mary Pierce, who kept us all in good spirits and buoyed up constantly by her faith in the ability of that old air-dog, Dr. Eckener, and his crew. And to think that now we are gliding along ever so smoothly, with no trouble at all!

STOWAWAY ABOARD

Despite that struggle with high winds and fog, and the landing at Cuers-Pierrefeu airdrome at Toulon with only one motor battling, almost overcome by the elements as Dr. Eckener maneuvered the giant ship, I slept soundly over that part of the voyage this morning.

Nothing could have compared with our start from Friedrichshafen, which was accomplished with no untoward event except the shouts and cries which resulted from the stowaway's jumping aboard.

The friends, the wives and children of the crew, stood away as the ground crew heaved us upward, and soon we soared aloft in the dim light and haze of the coming dawn, which necessitated the use of broad electric beams to aid us in finding our way into the fleecy gray skies.

'HEY'RE OFF

The pale blue lights, at the start om Friedrichshafen, flooding the ip and casting their soft shadows ver the people saying farewell, ave the passengers a new, old hrill beyond comprehension of andsmen.

Searchlight beams lighted the fields and the faces of friends, children and wives of the crew.

The biting command came:

"Hands off."

Every man released his hold, and the ship was weighed and trimmed by regulating ballast. Came the exclamation:

"Hold her!"

The engine telegraphs clanged, the propellers roared their "hoch, hoch!"

Dr. Eckner ordered the 300 strong hands pushed mightily upward, and the Zeppelin rose, bathed in wraith-like clouds that floated over Bodensee.

RECKLESS DARING—DANGER

We mounted above the clouds, with the wind brisk ahead, as the day dawned slowly. A thick haze settled in the Rhine valley's hill-tops.

"Clear!" cried Dr. Eckner. Then, as he turned to give all his attention to the directing of the gallant craft on its momentous voyage, he continued:

"The start was marred only by the youthful German stowaway, who jumped to the ship's top when it was leaving the hangar. That rash act seriously endangered the ship's covering."

In my opinion, stowaways who commit such reprehensible acts should receive great punishment. Many lives were momentarily in the hands of the fates when that youngster landed upon the giant ship.

PLANE ESCORT

Three airplanes escorted us to the German border. The clouds rose when we were crossing Switzerland, where two more planes joined the ship, which then assumed the aspect of a giant ocean liner being towed into port with all the little busy tugs hovering about.

As we were approaching the French border rain fell, clearing the atmosphere. We had a few bumps in the "air pockets" when we were crossing the high hills to the north of the Saone Valley, but conditions were not in the least disagreeable. Rather, we were expectant of adventure.

Many of the passengers slept; others, including Mme. Gourevitch, enjoyed the scenery of the flight immensely, lining the observation platforms and gazing into the beautiful, quaint continental pastoral world below.

We flew to a height of 900 meters as we passed over Besancon at approximately 8:30 in the morning. We were averaging about 65 kilometers an hour over the ground, air-speed, and once we swept onward at a terrific pace, getting up to 110 kilometers an hour.

WINDS SUBSIDE

As we came to the wide plains of the Saone Valley, the head winds which had retarded our progress dropped to a slight breeze, and we descended to 300 meters.

Dr. Eckener then went into his cabin, leaving Capt. Ernest Lehmann in charge. The latter considered crossing to the Bay of Biscay for a quicker route, but the weather reports we received when over Lyon showed head winds in the Bordeaux region, and Capt. Lehmann consulted Dr. Eckener, who advised the southerly crossing.

At 11 o'clock the sun was shining and the horizon was hazy; the passengers were hazy, too—just awakening from their belated naps. At 12:30, when we flew over Montelimar, we were averaging 100 kilometers.

River Conditions.

A low pressure area of considerable intensity is central over the central plains this morning, lowest barometer, 29.68 inches, at Omaha and Sioux City. It is causing cloudy weather over most of that section, thundershowers in the Dakotas, Nebraska, Iowa and Northern Illinois. The rains reported were light except at Davenport, where the fall was 2.06 inches, and at Charles City, 1.06. High barometer over Alberta and southward over the Rocky Mountains is causing cool weather over that section. The warm weather continues over the most easterly sections.

Local Forecast.

The rivers are stationary. Stage at Pittsburgh is 10.2 feet; Dam No. 2, 4.4; Dam No. 6, 7.5, and Dam No. 12, 5.0. The dams are up.

ZEPPELIN OFF LIKE WRAITH

By RENE FROISSART GOUREVITCH.

Wife of the Russian pianist, Gregory Gourevitch, and one of the two women passengers abroad the Graf Zeppelin on its second trans-Atlantic flight.

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN Aug. 2.—Six hundred outstretched hands, whose fingers had just a moment before eased off the ground lines, reached up toward us as this giant bird rose gracefully into the air at Friedrichshafen. Each of those patient, laboring 300 men below us seemed to be pleading to be taken along on this journey of journeys.

What a graceful start that was. How easily we slipped into the air; how the dawn broke through the cloudy curtains and introduced us, one and all, to the sun! What a glorious sight: To slip through the hazy morning sky, with the speed of a wraith, leaving the mists behind as we looked below at the myriad lakes, slumbering in their hilly stillnesses before they were awakened by the cocks.

Most of the others, in the let down after the tenseness that accompanied the take-off, made their way to their cabins to get a few winks before enjoying their lofty views. But not I; I was the first—or at least, among the first—to line the windows and peek out at the landscapes below, the kaleidoscopic change of nation to nation, country to city, land to water.

FANTASTIC THRILLS

It is fantastic, beautiful. Words fail to express what emotions we felt at the start. I cannot tell my gratitude for the privilege of returning to America along the glorious airway. It is wonderful to be sailing along with my husband, though it seems like another world.

The start was so smooth, so majestic. There was no harshness; it was just like my childhood dreams. Written word can never give the true conception of the thrill of being a Zeppelin passenger on a flight across the Atlantic.

From the drawing room, we eagerly watched the living pictures on nature's screen. The beauty of Switzerland. My husband, my artist, reflects through his whole being the beautiful rythm of these images.

He radiates an expression similar to another I know—when he is playing Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries."

SOME DOZE

I exchange impressions with the impressionable ones, but some doze in their arm chairs—how can they, I think? Coffee is brought in, and everyone gives an "ahah."

Our cameras are collected as we near France, snapshooting not being permitted. I look out the windows and dream. "No, this will not end so quickly as I imagine. Two days to admire life and life's vehicle, to the glory of my heart's contentment."

Ho, for the blue Mediterranean! Soon we are over the Rhone, and it seems no time till we are over the estuary and out into the Gulf of Lyons, and then into the beautiful blue of the world's greatest inland sea. Soon we will be over Gibraltar. I must rest a bit; I am enjoying myself too furiously.

Fine Weather Aids Railroad Workers

CHARLEROI, Pa., Aug. 2.—Due to exceptionally favorable weather, contractors on the extension for the Pittsburgh and West Virginia railroad, are making excellent progress. According to engineers they are ahead of schedule.

ARREST DRIVER IN CRASH

Twelve hours after he struck a girder on the South Tenth Street Bridge, upsetting a five-ton coal truck owned by the South Side Coal Company, Joseph Martin, 33, Negro, of 57 Myrial street, was arrested in his home yesterday by Lieut. Edward Moser and Patrolman James Challis, and lodged in the South Side Police Station charged with reckless driving.

According to the police report, Martin was southbound on the bridge when he struck the girder. He climbed out of the overturned truck and fled from the accident. Both the truck and girder were badly damaged, police said.

Husband in Jail, Wife Asks Divorce

Because her husband is serving a two-and-one-half to five-year sentence in the Western Penitentiary for forgery, Mrs. Ethel May Hardman, of 2901 Brownsville road, has asked Common Pleas Court to divorce her from William Hardman. She states in her petition that they are both citizens of Newfoundland. They were married in 1913 and he was convicted and sentenced in Criminal Court March 16, 1928.

Flight Thrills U. S. Woman

By MRS. JANETTE CROUSE

(Special Dispatch Via Radio and Cable.)

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, Aug. 2.—We are on our way!

The Graf Zeppelin, no longer cooped up in a hangar that even now seems much like a cage, is free to play in the air. With 18 of us aboard—and only two women to keep the men from being scared—we're sailing for America. Columbus must have felt something like this—like it, but who knows how much more so!

It is a voyage of discovery for all. Adventure lurks in every cloud, in every tiny air-pocket. It is the big adventure of the modern world, this Zeppelin travel. Never, when my husband was flying back and forth and all around on this giant bird, did I realize the utter joy which overtook him when he was dubbed "The Zeppelin Straphanger," and now, finally, I know—and envy him.

The palest lights of dawn were illuminating the gray sky when we slipped away from the ground crew at 3:29 o'clock yesterday morning—and at that moment I was struck with the fantastic thought that it was but a week ago that I boarded the Maurejania to come over here to fly back. How odd, I thought; I never dreamed of this.

I never imagined the start could be so smoothly accomplished. How that superb ground crew handled itself with only a few words of command is positively beyond me.

ENJOYS IT ALL

I certainly am going to enjoy this trip; as much as my husband enjoyed his two former sky-jaunts. Everything is splendidly comfortable and I never want to go to sleep. Such sights below us; Europe at our feet!

As some of the passengers crowded to the observation ports, I slipped into my cabin to while away a few hours in restful contemplation. Before I knew it, I had dozed off. The hours of highly pitched expectation as we waited for the call to "board ship" had been just a trifle too much for me—and I was in another world.

I awoke to find France beneath my feet. I hurried to look upon La Belle from aloft, and found myself enchanted with the pastoral scene. Fields, lakes, towns, cities—all flew by below us as the silver monarch plied its course to the south through the heavens.

It was not long before we had set our course down the Rhone, passing over Lyon, Nimes and then heading for the Gulf of Lyons. Once one of the officers said, we attained a speed of 110 kilometers an hour—how we passed the clouds, those heavenly milestones!

RESTFUL SLEEP

I had a most comfortable sleep. The cabins are richly appointed and have fine linen sheets and pillow cases—womanish thought, that—and this is so much more enjoyable than any other form of travel.

I have traveled much in airplanes, but this gives one a greater feeling of security, and affords greater comfort. This is my first trip over Europe. The scenery is delightful, and it is amusing to watch the animals below, scampering from the shadow of the great ship. I could not tire of watching from the windows while over land, but as soon as the open Atlantic is reached, I hope to organize a bridge party—it may finally develop into a bit of a tournament, I hope.

At the present moment, as the motors continue their drone without, I hear the call to arms. We're sailing out over the Mediterranean, bound for the Rock of Gibraltar. There's a steamer below, and I've an idea we're talking to it—by radio. Yes; we are. One of the officers just said we had "worked" the ship. Well, that's fine—now everyone knows just where we are.

PRESBYTERIAN UNITY URGED

PEN MAR, Pa., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Six thousand Presbyterian churchmen from five states and the District of Columbia yesterday addressed a stirring appeal to the thirteen branches of the Presbyterian and Reformed churches for organic union, "at the earliest possible moment."

Meeting in the fifty-fifth annual reuni of the initiation of a movement to heal the breach in the church, caused by the Civil War, lay and cleric delegates of between 350 and 400 churches in eight Presbyteries passed a resolution to that effect. There was not a dissenting vote.

The action followed the plea of Dr. William C. Covert, general secretary of the board of Christian education of the Presbyterian Church of the U. S. for "immediate organic union of the American Presbyterian Church."

Representatives of his own church as well as the Southern Presbyterian denominations applauded Dr. Covert repeatedly.

PITTSBURGHER ENTHUSIASTIC OVER KONJOLA

"Simply Amazing," He Says, "the Way This New Medicine Worked in My Stubborn Case."

Medicines, like men, are known for their deeds, not promises, and by making good, even where all else tried has failed, Konjola has become the most talked-of medicine in Pittsburgh, as well as wherever known in America.

Read what a fellow citizen, Mr. Samuel Fielder, 540 Center Street, East Pittsburgh, said to the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh. See what this new medicine of 32 ingredients—22 of them the juices of roots and herbs—meant to his health and happiness. Meet the Konjola Man, and hear the remarkable story of this remarkable medicine for the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Hear how Konjola's ingredients, working together, yet singly, cleanse and stimulate the organs, and how poisons and impurities are driven from the system, making room for new and glorious health.

But first read the words of tribute from Mr. Fielder; they should be full of cheer and encouragement for all who suffer:

"It is simply amazing," said Mr. Fielder, "the way this new medicine worked in my stubborn case of six years' standing. My chief trouble was with my kidneys, and then indigestion added to my miseries and general ill-health and run-down condition. My back was always stiff and painful. I had difficulty in stooping over. At night I had to get up frequently and the loss of sleep and lack of needed rest tore down my strength and depleted my weight and vitality. After meals came pains, gas, bloating and heart palpitation. I had dizzy spells, and spots danced before my eyes. I tried one medicine after another, year after year, and always ended in disappointment.

"When Konjola was recommended to me I was inclined to scoff, but a friend insisted that I try it, and he seemed so sure that Konjola was what I needed that I began to believe it myself. Well, my friend was right, for Konjola did just as he told me it would. I was astounded to find improvement in my condition within a week, and at the end of the second week I felt practically well. This, however, was too good to believe, and I thought that I had gained mere temporary relief. But another two weeks on Konjola established the fact that my digestion was normal and that my kidneys had been cleared up. I am feeling better than for six years, and I feel that I owe it to Konjola, and to any who suffer as I did, to tell of my splendid experience with this wonderful medicine."

So it goes; the same fine story of success when Konjola is given a chance to prove its merits. Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is meeting the public and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine.

There is also a Konjola Man at Dow's Drug Store, Smithfield and Diamond Streets — also Dow's Drug Store, 5939 Penn Avenue, East Liberty.

DAILY SHORT STORY

The Shining Torch

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD.

THERE had been great agitation in Perryville over the proposed airport whose supporters declared it would put Perryville on the map and whose opponents dubbed it an unnecessary extravagance for a town located on a railroad with two trains a day.

Among the latter was Luke Barker, but, as all his neighbors knew, Luke had what seemed to him good and sufficient personal reasons for not favoring the establishment of said airport.

The one suitable site adjoined his farm and would, in fact, need for its completion his beloved wheat field. There were those mean enough to say that Luke's affection for this particular acres had increased greatly since the question of the airport arose, but, as a matter of fact, he had always cherished them. They were part of the original piece of land on which his pioneer grandfather had settled.

At the town meeting assembled to discuss the matter Luke had stood up and expressed his idea in regard to it with force.

"This airport business is plain foolishness. What need has Perryville of aviation, anyhow? Whoever's going to fly? My vote is an unqualified 'No!'"

Doubtless Luke's attitude as that of one of the solid citizens of the town and a descendant of its founders was responsible for the heavy vote that downed the airport. Perryville ceased to be "air-minded" and merely shrugged its shoulders when Benders, 60 miles away, laid out a huge flying field with electric lights, fine runway and stakes for a hangar in the near future.

As spring approached, Luke sowed his wheat as usual in the West lot. Early rains succeeded by days of warm sunshine sprouted it and nourished it and brought it to maturity until, in late August, the moment came when, ripe and tawny, it stood ready for the harvesters.

Luke was fond of standing in the doorway of his low ranchhouse under the cottonwoods and looking out across his acres to the wheat field. Beyond its farther boundary lay the uncultivated land that had been thought of for an airport. On each of the other three sides, separated by a dark strip of ploughed soil which served as a fine guard, extended the rest of Luke's farm, some of it in corn, a little of it in alfalfa, and somewhat less in pasture for his Jersey Red pigs.

Sometimes he walked down to the field and along side of the wheat, watching the soft wind curve it in billows that lifted and dipped, dipped and lifted.

On such occasions Luke's small daughter, Jane, who had reached that age so delectable in little girls, 5 years, skipped beside him, her warm hand thrust into his.

"It's a very good crop, Daddy," she would say importantly, knowing what would please him. "It's a bumper crop, Daddy!"

"Never better, Janey. Never better." And on they would go while the prairie twilight deepened and the last lovely pink glow on the horizon faded.

On the very day before the one on which the reaping was to begin a terrible thing happened.

Jane, playing in the dooryard just at dusk, saw her father with old Shep, the family dog, coming down the road. With a chuckle of delight she ran to meet them, cutting across a meadow through which ran a small sectional branch of the main irrigation ditch.

Now snakes in Perryville had been largely killed off since the day they roamed the prairie a hidden menace in the tall grass. But occasionally towards the end of the summer one found a sample of that most dreaded of all snakes, the rattler, hunting a moist habitat.

Jane was perhaps half a dozen yards from her father when there was a horrid whirr, a scream of "Daddy!" and the child was writhing frantically in her father's arms.

Luke ran with her into the house, laid her on the bed and with set white face did what he could, giving instructions meanwhile to Katie, his sister, who had kept house for him since the death of Jane's mother. "Call the hospital at Benderville—ask for the rattlesnake serum—if they have it—get it here as soon—heaven help us, the train has left! Automobile, then—"

Presently Katie ran back. "They're sending it by airplane and they want the field lighted by bonfires or automobile lamps so that the flier can land safely."

Somehow the news spread and the need for light became known. Cars began to pour in towards Luke's farm. The road leading out beyond the wheat field had become soaked from an overflow of the ditch. The second car trying to get over it stuck fast. The cars following piled up behind it and presently they, too, were churning their wheels in a soapy gumbo quicksand.

Luke, watching from the window and with straining ears for the sound of a propeller, realized instantly what was happening. Also that time was at a premium. Too late, now, for the cars to get around any other way, granted that they could get out immediately. Too late to build any bonfire large enough to guide the flyers accurately.

He glanced at his little girl lying on the bed, Katie beside her. A matter of life or death hung on the arrival of the serum from Benders. The safe arrival.

Suddenly, Luke, with one last anguished look at Jane, dashed from the room, feeling for his box of matches in his overall pockets as he went. Across pasture and cornfield he tore madly until he had reached the ploughed strip between the last field of corn and his beloved wheat. A moment he stood, considering the wind. Then kneeling, he applied a match, another, and yet another.

There followed a crackle—a roar—the leap of flames—the beginning of the glow in the sky that was to light the flier to a safe landing with his precious serum. Luke's wheat had become a shining torch.

Janey lived—oh, yes, Janey lived.

And Perryville boasts one of the finest airports in that section of the country, the land on which the mammoth hangar stands being a gift of Janey's father.

BREWERY AGAIN UNDER FIRE

Federal Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington again has cited that St. Marys, Beverage Company, St. Marys, Pa., to show cause why its permit to manufacture cereal beverages should not be revoked. The company received the citation from the administrator almost simultaneously with an order of Federal Court restoring a former revocation by the prohibition department.

The new citation is based on alleged sales of high test beer by A. A. Straub, secretary of the company, while the litigation on the previous charges was pending. Papers in the new revocation were served today on the company by a representative of the administrator's office.

The permit was revoked by Pennington on December 17, 1927, who charged that in October, 1927, the company had in its racking room 45 gallons of beer with a higher alcoholic content than permitted under the Volstead act. The company appealed to the district court for a review of the revocation proceedings.

Judge R. M. Gibson, in an opinion on July 25, which was followed with an order for restoration of the permit, held that the revocation was "not justified and arbitrary and capricious, as there was no testimony to warrent and only a slight suspicion that employes had set aside a small amount of beer for private consumption.

The new revocation hearing will be held August 21 in the postoffice building at DuBois, at which the company will be confronted with charges of selling high test beer on December 8, 1928, and December 18, 1928, the alleged purchases being made by a prohibition agent.

MAN, TWO GIRLS BEING HELD

CHARLEROI, Pa., Aug. 2.—Two girls in their teens, whose home is in the mountains of Somerset County, are detained in the women's ward of the Monessen police station, while in a cell below a 30-year-old man, a former neighbor, is being held on a suspicious person charge. The three were picked up last night.

According to the girls, Gladys and Ellen Miller, 18 and 16 years of age, of Ford Hill, Somerset County, they were brought to Monessen yesterday by the man, Charles Hare, of Kingwood, who promised to marry the eldest of the sisters.

They left home early and were met at McKeesport by Hare, who, they stated, was to take them to the home of their sister in Duquesne, but instead he brought them to Monessen. The marriage ceremony was to have been an event of yesterday, but the bride-to-be is not certain now shat she wants to go through with it.

Hare said he had come to Monessen about a week ago and obtained employment and that he was to be married.

Meditations of a Wife

—By HELEN ROWLAND—

Trifles, Light as Summer Love

NOW that a divorce has become almost as prevalent as vacuum cleaners, and you can find at least one in every family, it is no longer a disgrace. Alas, it is not even a distinction.

When a girl feels cold, these days, she merely dusts a little more sun-tan powder on her back, puts on an extra coat—of lip rouge—and the glow of vanity warms her clear down to her toes.

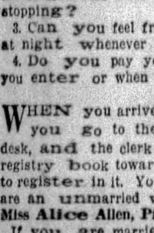
Nearly twenty million pairs of cotton stockings were sold in this country last year. But, dear me! There CAN'T be that many great-great-grandmothers still living!



HELEN ROWLAND

No woman can help a man to live down his past by constantly digging it up and delivering a sermon over it.

* * *

It will cost you only forty cents to get married in some parts of the state of Iowa; but it will cost you just as much to get UNmarried there as anywhere else.

* * *

A man never makes up his mind to marry; because, as long as his mind is in a state where it can be "made up," he never permits the thought of marrying to enter it.

A woman has passed the "dangerous age" when her overwhelming desire for masculine admiration has subsided into a beautiful indifference to a good-natured mistrust of all masculine flattery. And yet—what woman ever yearned to reach that beatific state?

* * *

When a man chooses a wife as he does a hat, for her style, shape and snappiness, it is scarcely a week before he begins wishing he could rush right back and exchange her for something more comfortable and substantial.

Companionate marriage was a beautifully planned scheme by which a man could trade in the old wife for a later model without going on with the upkeep of the old one. Yet, it took some women quite a while to figure that out before it flopped.

Correct Manners

—By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN—

Hotel Etiquette

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
I have never stopped at a hotel; so I should very much appreciate it if you would answer some questions for me.

1. When one enters a hotel, what is the first thing to do?
2. Is it necessary to take your meals at the hotel where you are stopping?
3. Can you feel free to come in at night whenever you choose?
4. Do you pay your bill when you enter or when you leave?

B. T. D.

WHEN you arrive at the hotel, you go to the registration desk, and the clerk will turn the registry book toward you for you to register in it. You write, if you are an unmarried woman: Miss Alice Allen, Pittsburgh, Pa. If you are married, you write: Mrs. Walter Allen, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The clerk then gives you the number of your room, calls "Front" to an attendant, hallboy or porter, and you follow attendant, who in the meantime has taken your hand-bag, to the room. You fee the boy. Later, if you have a trunk, the porter brings that to your room.

2. No. Although sometimes special rates are offered by hotels, small hotels in some towns, for instance, if you take your meals there—what is called, as you know, American Plan—and perhaps sometimes you would like to take advantage of this.

3. Yes. But, of course, you would keep in mind the proprieties, and the fact that a woman traveling alone must be careful not to lay herself open to criticism.

4. When you leave. When you begin to pack, telephone down to the desk and ask that your bill be prepared, so that you will not have to wait for it when you come downstairs.

A Gentleman Pays Tribute

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
Is it proper for a man to take off his hat to another man under any circumstances?

I was under the impression that a man never does, but I heard the other day that a man does if the other man is older than you. I'd like to be set straight on this.

R. W. W.

ALTHOUGH it is not very unusual to see a man in this country take off his hat to another man it is quite common abroad. And often in this country, too, one sees a gentleman who is especially gracious or polite in his accustomed manners, who takes off his hat to a man older than he is, a man who has accumulated special distinction as he has accumulated his years, or who, for any other reason merits this gracious tribute from another man. In other words, a gentleman would never hesitate to take of his hat to another man, when he wishes to make some motion of tribute to him.

Acknowledging the Wedding Invitation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
Please inform me what recognition, if any, I should observe on receiving an invitation to a church wedding.

SUBSCRIBER.

IF the invitation is to the church ceremony only, it is not necessary to acknowledge it, but if the invitation also invites you to the reception or breakfast or luncheon following, the invitation is answered formally, in the third person.

This, notwithstanding a sudden upheaval or abrupt change.

Those whose birthday it is are destined to enjoy a very lively, enterprising and profitable year, despite a sudden visitation which may cause an unlooked-for change, removal or journey. Ambitions may be attained and powerful persons contacted.

A child born on this day may be courageous, enterprising, resourceful and ambitious, and it should attain to fine position in life, with gratified ambitions and fine friends.

Her Life Guard -:- By Madge Geyer

1929, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

WHO worries about the dangers of the waves, even though one isn't an expert swimmer, especially if one has her own special life guard to watch her every minute? Then there is no fear, no timidity about braving even the angriest waves.

Patiently he guides her and teaches her that she may laugh at the dashing waters and defy them. And more than this he teaches her. For love is his inspiration and Dan Cupid his instructor. Therefore, the lesson will be well learned.

Oh, no, I'm not only telling about the swimming lesson. I'm also telling you of the love lessons which they are both learning. The swimming is but an excuse; and soon he'll be her real life guard—to watch over her and love her and protect her from all the buffeting waves which threaten to sweep her away. For love always watches and guards—for life—the object of its adoration.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

—By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND—

Guard Others From Contagious Disease

RECENTLY the United States Public Health Service made a statement which contains much of general interest. I was glad to note the advice given regarding the care of persons sick with contagious or "catching" diseases.

DR. COPELAND

There is such difference of opinion regarding these matters that it is a good thing this authoritative bureau of government has seen fit to state its views. I want my readers to have the benefit of these suggestions.

Many letters come to my desk asking for information along these lines. Perhaps I can help the cause of public safety by quoting what the service has said. I am in full accord with the advice given in this matter by this ably conducted department:

"A patient sick with a communicable disease should be isolated and someone should be detailed for his care and comfort. In such cases, wherever it is possible, the attendant should be one who has had the disease. With such a patient, communication between the patient or his nurse and other persons should be reduced to a minimum.

"Used clothing and body linen and bed clothing of the patient and nurse should be immersed in an antiseptic solution, such as carbolic acid (5 per cent strength,) before removal from the room, and should be kept so immersed until removed for boiling.

"Eating and drinking utensils, after being used by the patient, should be washed in boiling water. They should not be used by others until they have been sterilized by boiling.

"Finally, it should be remembered that the room from which a patient suffering with a contagious disease has been removed should be thoroughly cleansed by washing with soap and waer and by adequate exposure to sunshine and fresh air before being used again.

"Two principles should always govern the care of the sick:

"1—Sick persons should receive such care as will contribute most to their comfort and to the speedy restoration of health.

"2—Scrupulous care should be taken to prevent others from contracting the disease."

You will observe that no method of fumigation is recommended. That used to be the practice, but is no longer followed.

If I were you I should cut this article from the paper and paste it in a place where you can locate it in time of trouble. The recommendations of the United States Health Service are worth following.

Answers to Health Queries

W. B. Q.—What do you advise as an eyewash?

A.—A weak solution of boracic acid, but it would be wise to have your eyes tested and see what is wrong. Strong eyes require no medicine.

A.—There is really no way you can increase your height. You will probably continue to grow until the age of 21.

A.—Have your throat examined, it would be difficult to diagnose the trouble without seeing your throat.

R. C. Q.—What do you advise for ingrown hairs?

2.—What do you advise for pimples?

A.—Avoid shaving against the grain.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

—By ADELE GARRISON—

International Complications Are Threatened

LILLIAN looked at me attentively as her husband told me she had advised his passing along to me the piece of gossip he had received concerning the royal house of Trees. I may present a "poker face" to outsiders, but I never can fool Lillian, and she suddenly smiled impishly.

"I think Madge has something of her own to tell," she said, and Harry Underwood put me into an easy chair with a flourish.

"All right, cards on the table," he said, then as I hesitated, he spread his arms with a wide theatric gesture.

"I'll show my hand first, and then we'll see what you have in yours," he said. "It's simply this. If my underground whispering wire is correct—and it usually is—the nifty young man whom we know as George Jackson is extremely likely to find himself king of Trees within six months, or less."

I grasped the significance of this news coming so quickly after my interview with the young man in question, and Lillian stuck in:

"Tell her how you know, Harry, and then we can hear her news."

"Remember I told you a while ago there was likely to be news concerning that lad, or words to that effect?" Mr. Underwood asked.

"I remember," I said breathlessly.

"I had heard then," he said slowly, "through a source which never has given me a false report, that the king of Trees, supposed to be an uncommonly healthy old codger, was in reality suffering from an incurable disease, a condition which only one or two people besides his physicians suspected. Everybody knows that the king's brother—not Georges' father—he is dead—but the only other male member of the succession—is a hopeless, helpless invalid of the type, however, that outlasts a dozen healthy kinsmen. Just today, however, I had a message that the king cannot live six months, and that the invalid brother's illness has become acute. That puts it strictly up to our friend Georges. The cream of the joke is that while they know he's over here somewhere, nobody in authority seems to know just where. Whether his own special pals, with whom he must be in communication, know the truth concerning the king, nobody knows. I can't say anything because of the way the information came to me. Now, there's my hand. Will you lay down yours?"

"It fits in surprisingly," I said, and forthwith told them of the announcement Prince Georges had made to me of his betrothal to Mary, and of my revelation of his identity to his fiancee. Both Mr. and Mrs. Underwood listened to my recital with flattering attention, and when I had finished Harry gave a long, low whistle.

"The plot thickens," he said, "and the international royal romance bids fair to get into the limelight. What's the dope on the other two?"

I was furious at myself for flushing. Purposely I had made no reference to Olina and Noel because of Mary's confidential revelation concerning them. But I knew there was no deceiving the two pair of keen eyes fixed upon me.

"I know something concerning them," I said slowly, "but am not at liberty yet to tell you what it is."

"It's not hard to guess," Harry Underwood said, "though I won't ask you even to bat an eye as to whether I'm right or wrong. But a moron could see weeks ago that Olina had made up her mind to annex Noel by fair means or the other kind. She's probably backed the poor lad into a corner, pointed a pistol at his head and given him his choice of matrimony or death. And Noel's too chivalrous to choose the latter, though I'll bet he wanted to."

He had come so near the truth that for a second or two I could only stare at him in amazed silence. But at his low amused chuckle, I turned to Lillian appealingly, and she promptly came to my rescue.

"Beat it, Harry," she commanded, laughing, "while the going's good. You've all the cards in your hands now, and can spend the rest of the afternoon shuffling them."

"That's all the reward I get for being a walking wireless service," Mr. Underwood grumbled. But he lost no time in obeying his wife's mandate, and when he had gone Lillian looked over at me with a shrewd smile.

"Now spill the real dirt," she said, and I told her of the party Prince Georges meant to "throw" for himself, Mary, Noel and Olina, with Philip Veritzen and myself as the joint chaperons.

"My sainted great-grandmother—at least I hope she's sainted!" Lillian exclaimed. "Wouldn't I like to be a mouse in the wainscoting when the Dicky-bird finds that out? Not that it isn't the most natural procedure in the world, but you've probably observed that when you and Philip Veritzen are in question, Dicky immediately becomes as archaic as Methusalah in his ideas. It's a pity he wouldn't reason along the same lines when he and Edo are staging some of their comradely business partnership stunts. Now don't tell me you're thinking of getting out of this party. You're going if I have to carry you there myself. Come in!"

She raised her voice as a knock—Katie's—sounded on her door. A second later my little maid's flushed, indignant face appeared in the opening.

"Dot boonch of soup greens of a Jerry Tiger is downstairs," she said, addressing me directly. "He say he haf note he no gif to nobody only you."

Household Hints

A drawer that sticks is an annoyance. Rub the sides with soap or wax and the difficulty will be overcome.

Wet a piece of tissue-paper and roll tightly around cucumbers and other vegetables and it will keep them fresh for days.

Keep two jars of frying fat—a brown jar for fish fat; a white jar for bacon and frying fat. There is no fear of making mistakes when different colored jars are used.

A large safetypin is a useful holder for odd buttons and loose hooks and eyes. Close the safetypin and you have everything handy, easily seen, and always in order.

PRODUCER TAKES NICE NAP DURING FILM RUN-OFF FOR WOMAN CRITIC

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1929, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 1.

THERE'S one advantage about being on a newspaper. If you haven't the price of admission a kind soul will let you see a picture anyway.

Take yesterday, for example. Not a leaf stirring in ye colony. And so with plenty of work to do and too much time in which to do it, ye worried scribe traipsed over to the Metropolitan Studio and collapsed in a plush lined chair in Al Cohn's office.

Al is a Christie-Associated producer, if you're still with me. Hence, he flaunts an office that makes it a pleasure for girls to leave home.

"How 'bout lookin' at a picture?" Al yawns. He's busy, too.

"Sure. What's the trailer?"

"Free, except you gotta stay awake and wake me when it's over."

Fair enough. So across the lot into one of those Pullman projection rooms.

"All set?" Mr. Cohn called to the projectionist.

"Yep."

"Let 'er ride."

Roberta Hyson In Hot Numbers

Lights out. Music. A title flashed on the screen: "Lady Fair." A one hundred per cent chocolate cast headed by Roberta Hyson. Al spotted her singing and dancing in a cafe in Sixth avenue and gave her the Met. studio address. She has been in the entire Octavus Roy Cohen two-reel series. Speedy flick, "Lady Fair."

Lights on. "Gee, that short has temp," I applauded.

Louise Fazenda Woolly and Wild

There unreeled one of the dog-gondest, bang-up travesties spotted on the silver sheet at any time. Louise, garbed in hectic western attire and sporting the durndest line-o-gab extant or extinct gave whoopee performance. "Faro Nell" is a western travesty. Several years ago, it was produced at the writers' club with Maude Fulton in the name part and Roy Stewart (now "Trader Horn"-ing) the lover. Al figured it high time travesties reached the screen. He sold the Christies on the idea, re-wrote the skit and produced it. More such hilarity stirrers will follow with Louise Fazenda. Louise has been recognized as a comedienne de luxe for years. Never, however, has she been given a real opportunity to flash clever histrionics. She's a honey as "Faro Nell." Even Bill Hart will get a chuckle out of her doing a take-off on him when she talks to her equine pal. Louise's next travesty may have to do with "Rain" in the Jeanne Eagels manner.

Louise Fazenda

Word reaches the colony that Alice Terry has arrived in New York. She is expected to hit Hollywood in a week or two. Her husband, Rex Ingram, also is coming West. Which is something of a surprise, for when Rex departed several years ago it was believed he had departed for good. At all events, his sundry friends will be pleased to welcome him back.

Alice Terry.

Whether or not Ingram will make a picture is problematical. Still, 'tis logical to suspect he will. He has produced a number of offerings in his studio in Nice, starring Miss Terry, and, I am told, has been associated with a British outfit in the capacity of supervising director.

Screenalities Of Hollywood

A song writer was requested to write a funeral march for a picture. Not knowing for how many feet said F. M. would run, he jingled the supervisor, who replied: "Oh, I don't know. Suppose you write two verses and a chorus." . . . Georges Carpentier, at one time France's foremost prize fighter, rather likes California. He may stay. Several companies hope so. At this penning, however, he is doing a number for Warners' "Show of Shows," direction John Adolphi. Adolphi directed him nine years ago in his first American picture. . . . Jetta Goudal trekked over to the Vine Street Theater 'tother day to listen to a show proposition that Franklin Pangborn had to offer. Mebbe something will come of it. . . . Lew Brice, Fannie's brother, hasn't succumbed to tropical languor. Lew has signed to star in a Fanchon & Marco movie house revue. . . . Wally Van, at one time a leading comedian, has heard the call of the outlouds and has returned to the grease paint with headquarters at ye Tec Art Studio. . . . Pauline Fredericks, William Corrigan and Archie Mayo lunching at ye Brown Derby. . . . Wilson Mizner recounting a review written by the outspoken William Winter of his first melo-dramatic crook play. Mr. Winter praised the play in superlatives. Mr. Mizner read the criticism with pride. Until the last line, which read: "Isn't it too bad good cheese smells." Wish it was my line. . . . And that's all.

Jetta Goudal.

Walter Winchell On Broadway

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.

THE HUMOR OF IT

THE City News Ass'n., one of the better collectors of New York news, called up Al Jolson the other day to ask the star if Cyril Keeler, 22, who was arrested in New Jersey, was really the brother of Mrs. Jolson, Ruby Keeler.

"Why do you ask?" queried Jolson.

"Well," said the speaker, "Cyril held up a store in Perth Amboy."

"Gee," moaned Al, "that's awful. I don't object to his being a burglar so much as I do to having a brother-in-law named Cyril!"

TRANSFUSION

"Howz William Fox getting along?"

"All right, but he'll never be the same. He has Christian blood in him."

TYPES I'M GLAD I'M NOT

"Whatever became of that tiresome pill who always thought it was clever to begin and end a sentence with 'Awfter awl!'?"

"She now punctuates her remarks with: "Don't be dull!" "So what?" and "Pul-leez!"

OVERHEARD

"IS SHE really a nice girl?"

"I'll say she is. If she dreamed she was in an automobile with you she'd start walking in her sleep."

BY WAY OF REPORT

Among other songs featured by Jimmy Durante, the comedian, in Ziegfeld's "Show Girl," is an amusing ditty tagged, "I've Got a One-Room House, Not a Two-Room, Three-Room, Four-Room House." It packs an abundance of logic and was praised by the local critics and other men of letters.

As a matter of fact, it can be found in Haldeman-Julius' Modern Poetry Anthology, being a classic from the pen of Carolyn Wells.

MEOW

"Dear Walter Winchell," devotedly writes Irene Franklin, the redhead, "When Dorothy Stone replaces Ruby Keeler Jolson in 'Show Girl' will Fred Stone dance in the aisles?"

Probably not, sweetheart, but it is being said that since Jolson started the vogune of singing his frau's songs, Cantor Rosenblatt will race up and down the Palace aisles next time Sophie Tucker plays there.

DRAMA

SEVERAL week-ends ago Glenda Farrell, the leading lady of a play called "Skidding," walked out of the theater after the second act, offering no explanation. The curtain failed to lift on the last episode and the management was forced to explain to the irritable spectators that "another temperamental star" was indisposed, and their tariff was refunded.

The poor woman, it appears, had been informed that her baby's left hand had been crushed in an accident and the chump of a doorman gave her the telegram containing the horrible news before the show started. She went through her role faultlessly for two acts and then in a daze left the theater, aimlessly walking the streets until she collapsed from grief.

The papers refused to print the facts, arguing that it was another ruse for publicity.

PEOPLE YOU COULD CHOKE

Jack Clark will tell you about the bore who was driving him karazee with a fishing trip fable.

"Yes," said the gross exaggerator, "it was the biggest fish I ever hooked, and before I realized it I was pulled clean outta the boat!"

"You must have got a nasty wetting," murmured Clark, who was fed up with the liar.

"Not a bit," was the amazing answer, "you see I fell on the fish!"

REVIVED

PHILIP SCHUYLER'S pet quip deals with Walter Hines Page, the late Ambassador and publisher, who once received a very rude letter from a self-styled authoress, whose mss. had been rejected. All publishers were grafters, the irate woman insisted, declaring she knew one had to resort to bribery or influence to get anything published in the United States where true genius was starving. Hadn't she pasted 52 and 53 together, and weren't they still pasted? She knew!

Too all of which Mr. Page tersely responded: "My dear. One does not have to eat all of an egg to know it is not wholly good."

OUT OF FOCUS IS RIGHT

Among the amazing inaccuracies is the one observed in Motion Picture's "In And Out Of Focus" department, which reports: "Ten thousand dollars a night for wisecracking. That's what Frank Fay is said to get in New York. The famous El Fey Club in Miami was named after his wit."

Well, that isn't so, at all. The El Fey Clubs in Miami and New York were named after Larry Fey, who also calls his taxi cabs "The El Fey."

SOTTO VOCE

Bessie Gast: It didn't rhyme, ma'am. Try again.

Bertha Weston: The Journal switch is definitely off, and The Mirror is 55 Frankfort St., not Franklin St.

F. X. Duncan: The rhythm is sour, sir.

NEWSPAPERGAL STUFF

ONE of the more amusing incidents experienced by Julia McCarthy, of Park Row, happened in Huyler's recently. Dashing on an assignment for her paper, Julia paused in the sweet shop to quench her thirst on a soda, and was vexed no end over the whoops-my-dear behind the counter, who failed to give her a check.

"I'm in a dreadful hurry," panted the reporter. "Please give me a 20-cent check!"

'You'll simply have to take your time," replied the falsetto. "I only have two hands, midear!"

"Then for heavensake," shrieked Julia, "take one of 'em off your hip and gimme a check!"

International And M-G-M Combine

The first great issue of M-G-M International Newsreel, the combination of M-G-M News and International Newsreel, is being shown on the screens of leading motion picture theaters. The following editorial announcement is made on the screen:

"This issue marks the combination into one unit of International Newsreel and M-G-M News, the world's leading screen news mediums. The new M-G-M-International Newsreel will have at its command the entire film news gathering facilities of both International and M-G-M, backed by the world-wide organization of the great Hearst organization.

"The policies which have made M-G-M and International synonymous with newsreel progress and outstanding in their respective fields will be continued in the M-G-M-International Newsreel issued by William Randolph Hearst and distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer."

In keeping with this editorial announcement, the first issue of M-G-M-International Newsreel bristles with the latest news and thrills. Among the outstanding news events pictured is the landing of a blimp on the turbulent waters of the Pacific Ocean, and the crashing of a 315-foot abandoned radio tower at Point Isabel, Texas

Mystery

Ronald Colman and Joan Bennett will be in "Bulldog Drummond," mystery thriller on Penn screen next week.

SOMERSET, Pa., Aug. 2.—Capt. W. M. Schrock, 93, Civil War veteran, was painfully injured in a fall at his home here. He was the official weather man for many years.

TEDDY JOYCE TO RETURN

Teddy Joyce, Pittsburgh flapper's favorite master of ceremonies, is coming back. He'll close an engagement in Baltimore August 10 and after a one-week rest will make his return debut at Loew's Penn Theater August 19. This announcement was made late yesterday by Livingston Lanning, local manager, who said Wesley Eddy has been selected to open a new theater in Brooklyn on August 24.

Austin "Skin" Young, of Columbus, a well known musician and entertainer formerly with Paul Whiteman's Band, signed a three-year contract for Loew's chain beginning August 9, after being "discovered" in a local roadhouse. Mr. Lanning gave him an unannounced try-out this week and the contract followed.

Bayer-Tablets of Aspirin — Genuine

The Mark of Genuine Aspirin..

BAYER ASPIRIN is like an old friend, tried and true. There can never be a satisfactory substitute for either one. Bayer Aspirin is genuine. It is the accepted antidote for pain. Its relief may always be relied on, whether used for the occasional headache, to head-off a cold, or for the more serious aches and pains from neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or other ailments. It's easy to identify Bayer Aspirin by the Bayer Cross on every tablet, by the name Bayer on the box and the word "genuine" always printed in red.

BAYER

"Fine Eggs and Oil give it Real Flavor"

SKILFUL COOKS POINT OUT

IN California, where cooks have the most tempting of fruits and vegetables for their salads, only the finest of mayonnaise can satisfy them. And that rich, utterly satisfying flavor which means real mayonnaise, they know can only be blended from the very choicest of ingredients.

Finest eggs, carefully selected oil, pure vinegar and rare spices—these and nothing else are permitted to be used when Hellmann's Mayonnaise is blended. These—and a famous recipe from old France—give Hellmann's its subtle enticing flavor. And long beating adds that clear, even texture that is always the same.

Get a jar today. At all grocers. The popular family size is ½ pint—25¢. Other sizes 3½ ounce, pint, and quart jars.

Sigrid Anderson, cook in the beautiful home of Mrs. Rudolph Spreckels of San Francisco, California.

"for flavor, give me Hellmann's every time"

"There's no sense in making home-made mayonnaise. It's the hardest and trickiest kind of drudgery, and you can never be certain it won't turn out badly. Hellmann's is always ready to use—and as for real flavor—give me Hellmann's every time."
—Sigrid Anderson

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Waiting to Tee Off At Lake Placid

Mrs. Childs and Daughter Returning Tomorrow From New York

SOCIETY folks must be mindful of Shakespeare's admonishment "Home-keeping youths have ever homely wits." With their visits to Europe, to all parts of this country, to all parts of the world, for that matter, they surely have acquired a cosmopolitan point of view.

Though not many of our folks are abroad this summer, they are nearly all out of town. And the chief attractions are Canada and the New England coast. February and March are the favorite months for European-minded travelers.

BEFORE I tell you about some of the social set who are away, I'd like to mention that Mrs. Thomas Howe Childs, of Fifth avenue, and her daughter, Anna Knevals Childs, will be back from New York tomorrow. It's so different right now, don't you agree, to be returning home?

By the way, I might remind you that Anna's engagement to Arthur P. Woolfolk, of Pittsburgh, son of the Junius A. Woolfolks, of Louisville, Ky., was announced in June.

JOINING the Pittsburgh colony at Bay Head, N. J., are Mrs. Oliver P. Scaife, Jr., and her son, Oliver P. Scaife III. They are planning to be there for August, I hear.

The John G. Frazers and their daughter, Katherine, are in Wyoming, did you know? They are spending the summer on a ranch there.

I happen to know, too, that Mrs. Theodore W. Friend, of Wilkins avenue, is out of town. She is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Lewis Leiber, of East Hebron, N. H. Later she will go to Moon Lake, N. Y.

Speaking of Moon Lake, I'm reminded that Mrs. William Howard Parke, of Solway street, is there for the summer.

Among those always to be found at Beaumaris, Canada, for the summer are the J. Albert McKays, of Amberson avenue. They are at their summer home on Fairholm Island.

The Robert J. McKays and the Thomas Jefferson McKays have spent their summers at Beaumaris, too, for a number of seasons.

MARTHA CHALFANT is planning to have a garden wedding tomorrow when she marries Clarence Wheelwright, of Baltimore. The ceremony will be performed at 5 o'clock at "Rock Ledge," the summer home of Martha's mother, Mrs. Henry Chalfant, of Ridge avenue, North Side, at York Harbor, Me., with the Rev. W. H. Millinger, of the Congregational Church of York village, officiating. Eleanor Chalfant is going to be her sister's only attendant while Mr. Wheelwright is having T. Dudley Riggs, of Baltimore, for his best man.

An informal reception for about 150 guests will follow the service and afterwards Mr. and Mrs. Wheelwright will leave for a trip. They will be at home in West Madison street, Baltimore, after November 1.

ANOTHER early season debutante party is the dinner dance which the Christian Ihmsen Shannons, of Sewickley, will give on September 17 in honor of Mary Franklin Robinson, debutante daughter of the William Christopher Robinsons. The party will be given in the Allegheny Country Club. Mary is spending the summer with her parents at their cottage, "East Dunes," at Watch Hill.

NOW that the season is reaching its height at Saratoga Springs, we hear from day to day of the "doings" of Pittsburgh people there.

The Richard T. Wilsons entertained at a luncheon on Tuesday in honor of Mrs. George Mesta, of Washington, formerly of Pittsburgh. Among the guests was Mrs. W. Harry Brown, of Pittsburgh.

RUMOR has it that Henry Bradley Martin, of New York, is engaged to Valerie French, granddaughter of the late Earl of Ypres, better known as Field Marshal Sir John French, first commander-in-chief of the British expeditionary force in France. Mr. Martin is a grandson of the late Henry Phipps, of Pittsburgh, at one time a partner of Andrew Carnegie, and a nephew of Lady Craven.

AND I hear that Priscilla Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Webber Barnes, of Howe street, will leave this week for Manchester, Mass. There she'll be the house guest of Mrs. Frederick Gerring Rhodes for several weeks.

And the Donald McKaigs, of Penn avenue, will sail this evening from New York, on the S. S. Statendam for Rotterdam, Holland. And their daughter, Muriel McKaig, is with them. On the same boat will be the Jerome Hills and Mrs. Grant McCargo.

MRS. ALLEN B. HANNY, of the North Side, has returned home after spending two months in Delta and Denver, Colo.

* * *

MRS. E. A. WILT and her daughter, Alicia Wilt, of Sheraden, are spending a few weeks at the summer home of Mrs. H. S. Lydick, at Two Lick Gardens, near Indiana, Pa.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY JACKSON, of Bascom street, North Side, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mildred Dorothy Jackson, to Roy Gilbert Dunbaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Dunbaugh, of Ingomar. The engagement was announced at the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson on July 26.

MISS GARTHA WILLIAMS, of Wilkinsburg, and Walter Winterbottom, of Pittsburgh, were married yesterday at noon in the home of the Rev. K. L. Cramer, of Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg. The bride wore an ensemble of tan lace with a hat to match, and her matron of honor, Mrs. Donald E. Klingensmith, appeared in tan crepe. Arthur Schmoyer was best man. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, L. I. Williams, and the wedding music was played by F. W. Cramer, son of the officiating clergyman. Mr. and Mrs. Winterbottom have left for a trip to Toronto, and after August 10 will be at home in Linden avenue, Edgewood.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the marriage of Miss Lillian M. Raab, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Raab, of Schenley Heights, and John McGall, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John McGall, of Mt. Lebanon. Miss Stella McGall, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and William McGall was his cousin's best man. Mr. and Mrs. McGall will make their home in Marlin drive, Mt. Lebanon.

Edith Mason, Operatic Star, on Air Tonight

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

COOL breezes . . . a wide expanse of dark blue water . . . a full moon casts its rays like marionettes on dancing waves . . . a concert band plays a waltz on the deck of a giant lake steamer. It is 9 p. m. Let us sit back and dream as we follow Mary and Bob across the Great Lakes tonight. Get your tickets at WJAS.

A dark blue lake, a full moon and a Strauss waltz put us to sleep but we shall awake with a stir half an hour later when KDKA brings us the final act of "My Maryland."

The piece de resistance will come to us at 10:30 through KDKA. Edith Mason, lyric soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, will be guest soloist on the first Armour program which will present also a 30-piece orchestra, an 18-voiced mixed chorus and other entertainers.

"FAMILY GOES ABROAD"

If you should choose to travel turn the dial back a few kilocycles and listen to the courtship of Aunt Letty and an Italian count over WCAE at 10:30 p. m. We guarantee a few laughs even though the continuity writer takes some of them at the expense of our fair city in the person of Mr. Blake, "a Pittsburgher" who is traveling abroad with J. Jefferson Jones and his family of Onyx, Pa.

We always wondered how circus trainers ever taught a seal to balance a red and white ball on the tip of his nose while the disorganized clown band attempted "Hearts and Flowers." Perhaps Bob Sherwood shall tell us through KDKA at 7:30 when he explains how animals are made into actors.

Here's a piece of news! Mildred Hunt, whom we hear tonight at 8 o'clock, KDKA, with The Triadors, has crowded Milton Cross out of fourth place in the Radio Favorites Poll being conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Incidentally the Triadors have inaugurated a novel series of broadcasts which you will find entertaining.

M'NAMEE OUT IN FRONT

Graham McNamee came into his own in yesterday's balloting. The NBC idol edged himself into the lead by a scant few ballots, followed by Charles W. Hamp, Jessica Dragonette, Mildred Hunt, Milton J. Cross, Gladys Rice, Vaughn de Leath, Amos 'n' Andy. It is possible that the lead will change again today. The five leaders are very close and Gladys Rice showed increased strength in yesterday's balloting.

If you wish to express yourself in the most comprehensive ballot of radio favorites ever undertaken by any American newspaper, just write the names of your 10 favorite artists on a slip of paper, sign your name and address, and mail to Radio Favorites, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. You may be one of 200 to win complimentary tickets to the Pittsburgh Radio Show in September.

On the Great Lakes.

On the forward deck of a comfortable lake steamer enroute from Detroit to Cleveland, Mary and Bob will enjoy the cool breezes and listen to a ship's concert held out of doors.

In this romantic setting, they will hear the story of a young woman who has been left penniless by the death of her husband, run over by an unidentified automobile. Later on another man had come into her life and love had been rekindled, but she could never accept his love, for this man knew whose car had killed her husband and he refused to tell her. "The Ghost Between" will relate the story of a dramatic struggle in the heart of a woman faithful to a memory.

Life of Ukrainian Army.

The life of the Ukrainian Army near the Caucasian territory will be musically depicted.

In 1791, Katherine the Great, Empress of Russia, ordered the Ukrainian Army to move to the Kuban River and settle there. By placing the fighting Cossacks in this territory just north of the Caucasus, a strong barrier would be erected against invasion by Turks and Caucasians. It is this move of the army that will be depicted tonight.

Aunt Letty and Her Count.

Aunt Letty's plot to elope with an Italian count is revealed.

J. Jefferson Jones and his family, of Onyx, Pa., are still in Paris and embark on another strenuous sight-seeing trip. They are duly impressed by the magnificence of Versailles and their suspicions are aroused when Aunt Letty scornfully alludes to a day not far distant when she will be living in a castle in Italy.

When she leaves the family to keep a mysterious engagement, the "friend from Pittsburgh," Mr. Blake, follows in another taxi and finds their suspicions confirmed; she is meeting the Italian count. Their plan for an elopement is revealed and listeners will hear the dramatic denouement.

MINER ASTONISHED AT QUICK RECOVERY

Took World's Tonic for Strength and Lost His Suffering.

"Lying on your back in a mine hundreds of feet under the ground, often with water running around you and the air choked with dust, calls for all the strength a man has if he is to escape sickness, said a miner of Arnold, Pa., named Burt Furioli, to the World's Tonic interviewer. "Most miners eat cold lunches and neglect to care for themselves underground. I know that I did, and I found myself getting so stiff after a day's work that I wanted to do nothing but get to sleep. Then in the morning most of my muscles ached. I kept right on working because I had to, but it was hard. Sometimes I had pain in my muscles so severe that I could not handle my tools, and this would continue for two or three days. There were times when it seemed I could not stand upright.

"I supposed these pains were a necessary evil connected with my work, and endured them. Once or twice I tried some treatments for rheumatism. They helped me a little, but the pains always came back. Then I began to get pains in my stomach after eating. These went from bad to worse, until I did not want to eat for fear of the pain afterward. I was getting very little sleep at this time too. So it is no wonder I declined in strength and spirits. I felt I must have a good tonic or I would not be able to keep on with my work, and I did not know how we would live.

"My wife asked the druggist to recommend something. He told her that World's Tonic was intended to overcome this kind of sickness as he had sold many bottles to different miners and all of them had recommended it. She bought a bottle, and I began taking it. I was literally amazed at the result. In less than a week my stomach was taking good food and digesting it. In a few days more all my pains disappeared, and in three weeks I began to gain in weight. Every day saw an improvement. This medicine that I took only to give me strength cleaned up all of my other troubles as well. I've told my experience to my mine buddies, and a number of them have been helped as much as I was. It certainly is a wonderful medicine." World's Tonic is sold by Dow's (formerly McCulloch's), also May's, and all other first class drug stores. (A-42)

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

PARIS, France.

I VISITED a studio the other evening to attend a small party arranged for the visiting firemen. All studios are not like the one I visited, of course, but I must describe the one I saw. I gathered the idea, somehow, that great art must be hatched out of empty egg shells that are left on the kitchen stove; that expression cannot come if the beds are "made" and I ask pardon if that is a colloquialism. As for such things as carpets on the floor or clean windows—well they are out of the question.

In such matters I am not particularly fastidious, yet it occurred to me as I studied the studio that living in a comfortable home and writing drivel and living in an unkempt studio and writing the great novel of the age I must ask the novel to excuse me.

Outside the studio there was a litter of the materials that sculptors use, suggesting a disordered monument works, and to reach the door of the studio one walked up a flight of steps which were lighted by a candle. It was picturesque, admittedly, for one visit, but you must remember that the artists who use the studios live there all the time.

At a studio party the visitors sit around and discuss art in a big way, and since the chairs are broken, it is not unusual to sit on the floor. There is also an "Eddie" who moves in and out of the kitchen. A gray-haired old gentleman, wearing a blue shirt and a flowing black necktie, was interested in some of his paintings, while another man entertained very well by getting music from a saw, time which might have been reasonably used in learning to play the violin which, according to the experts, is a little better than a saw.

There was one pleasant touch during the party. Two students and two young women came in slightly charged. They walked in stamping and singing in a fashion which would have pleased Belasco. There was dancing and singing. As I left I heard the strains of "Sweet Adeline."

A friend sat with me until the early hours of a morning in front of a well-known restaurant. He chuckled as he pointed out some of the passers-by and visitors. The lady, an American, who bare-headed was stepping out of a cab, arguing with the driver, has been here for many years. She amused the onlookers by getting a police dog to chase lemons, speaking literally, of course. The man to the rear withthe drooping eyelids, the dark mustache, the sombrero, the corduroy coat, is an artist who can't find time to paint as, my friend says, he has been pickled steadily for eight or 10 years. The gentleman just passing was the leading character in a best-selling novel. The man at the next table asleep with mouth open, is a writer. The man next to him is the editor of a small journal. The countess, who comes up, is the picture of ennui. She has been all around the world and calls everyone "my dear child." She is bored stiff with everything and just a moment ago she sighed for Hong-Kong. Dear old Hong-Kong. I pitied the distressed countess. The countess wore no stockings. Not because she liked the style, as she observed, but because they were too expensive. The countess is the type that would roll her own cigarets. The lady who has grown tired of tossing lemons for the dog takes a seat close by, calls for a drink, and indulges in some impolite swearing. The young man who is next to her is an expatriate American who is such a provincial he thinks Paris is the greatest little old town in the world, singing the same song that you can hear in any town in any part of the world. The young American who comes up to shake hands with my friend wants it understood he has been here quite a while and my friend says: "Yes, you've been here almost a year now. Just an old residenter." Such is the character of the sidewalk cafes of an early morning. My friend was horrified when I suggested, as the dawn was breaking, that we amble home. "Great Heavens," he said, "to go straight home without first going across the street to get a roll and a cup of coffee would be violating all the traditions of Montparnasse." What a faux pas I nearly made.

PROMOTION OF HEALTH OBJECT

New Field of Research Will Be Explored to Eliminate Dust, Study Sun Radiation

By MAX HENRICI.

Dr. E. R. Weidlein, director of Mellon Institute, announced today the launching of an investigation of air pollution—the most ambitious and comprehensive ever undertaken.

Not only will the smoke nuisance be re-investigated in all its aspects; a new field of research will be explored—the minute particles of matter in the air other than soot and cinders—that is, dust—and its effect on health. Solar radiation also is to come in for study, particularly the ultra-violet rays of sunlight.

The program calls for intensive research by half a dozen or more scientists for four or five years. Promotion of health is the paramount aim, but there is confident expectation also of discoveries that will benefit industries.

The plan is to put to the test of experiment and prolonged observation speculative theories now current in regard to air contamination and ultra-violet rays which, if true, have an important bearing on human welfare.

DUST FOUND A FACTOR

The Mellon Institute became the world's authority on smoke abatement through an investigation conducted in 1912-14. In 1923 it attacked the air-contamination problem anew, with particular reference to dust. It was discovered the quantity of smoke discharged by Pittsburgh stacks had diminished, and that a number of other American cities were smokier than Pittsburgh. But it was also found that it was just as important to consider dust as smoke.

Dr. Weidlein outlined the aims of the investigation as follows:

1—Atmospheric dust in Pittsburgh is to be thoroughly studied. Twenty stations have been established throughout the city, where dust precipitated from the air is collected daily in vessels especially devised for the purpose. The dust is weighed, analyzed chemically, and examined as to the size, shape and hardness of the particles. As a purely conjectural illustration of what might be learned from this study, it is suggested that if it should be found for example, that the dust in certain sections of the city was high in iron ore (from the blast furnaces) or contained many hard sharp particles irritating to the respiratory tract, and if it should also be found that certain diseases were more prevalent there than in sections where the dust was of a different character, it would be pertinent to inquire if there were any relation between the two conditions.

2—A systematic study will be made of ultra-violet radiation. Ultra-violet rays help the body to resist disease. Through photo-electric cells of special design, standardized against a spectrometric method worked out by the United States Bureau of Standards, solar radiation will be measured in all parts of Pittsburgh, and later in urban and rural districts throughout Western Pennsylvania, and in other cities. Here is an illustration of what it is expected to accomplish by this study: It has been said that in the South Hills the people get the benefit of more ultra-violet rays than are to be found elsewhere in the city, and that health is better there in consequence. The investigation will show if that is true. The screening effect of air-borne dust particles and weather conditions on ultra-violet radiation will be studied, and statistics compiled showing what parts of the city have least radiation, and at what times of the day

FLAG RAISING AT BRENTWOOD

The entire Hill Top will turn its eyes to Brentwood tomorrow as that municipality dedicates its new municipal park, said to be one of the finest in the county. Every community neighboring the borough has promised to send a large delegation to the ceremonies, headed in most cases by the volunteer fire departments.

The city will be officially represented by Councilman Daniel Winters, who is scheduled to deliver one of the principal addresses of the day.

In addition large numbers of private citizens from the Twenty-ninth and Thirty-first Wards will be on hand to enjoy the parade, swimming and track events, parachute jump and dancing, which will feature the dedication.

FIREMEN TO PARADE

Twenty-three fire companies from all parts of the county will appear in the parade. Included in the list will be such distant organizations as Monongahela, Pitcairn and Braddock. In addition every Boy Scout troop on the Hill Top will be out in full force as well as the various civic and social groups of the borough.

The day's activities will be heralded by a flag-raising ceremony at 1 p. m. The parade will follow, after which the actual dedication exercises will take place. This will in turn be followed by the swimming and field events.

PARACHUTE LEAP

The evening's program consists of a parachute jump at 7 p. m. by Joe Crane, one-time holder of the record drop, and a dance in the new shelter house, beginning at 8:30 p. m.

Speakers for the day will be Councilman Winters and Borough Solicitor G. H. Bracken. President of Council A. G. Kaufmann will act as master of ceremonies.

VOTE DISTRICT DIVIDED

The First Ward of Overbrook, containing more than 600 registered voters, was yesterday divided into two election precincts upon a petition being approved by Quarter Sessions Court by Judge Frank P. Patterson.

The polling place in the First District will be in the Overbrook Public School, and the following officers were appointed: Judge, Marion Reiland; inspectors, Alma Connors and Elizabeth Reibling; assessor, John Reiland. A garage at 41 Frederick street was fixed as the polling place for the Second District, and these election officers appointed: Judge, Julius Lorenz; inspectors, Harry Guckert and Harry J. Best; assessor, Mary Kloter.

Street Costs Placed To Property Owners

The county board of viewers has assessed the entire cost of grading, and paving of Westfield avenue. West View from Bellevue avenue to Church alley, amounting to $5,683.36, on abutting property owners, according to a schedule filed. Nothing is charged against the borough, and no damages were allowed.

Fix Ross Township Voting Precincts

The section of Ross Township recently annexed to Pittsburgh, has been made part of the Twenty-sixth Ward and, by order of Quarter Sessions Court yesterday, was divided into three election districts and the polling places fixed. One section becomes the Twenty-eighth election district with the voting booths in a building in Ivory avenue owned by A. Nicodemus. Another section becomes the Twenty-seventh district with the polling place in a garage in the rear of property of William Deer, Van Buren street. The balance is annexed to the present Seventeenth election precinct of the ward.

SIX ARRESTED IN DRY RAIDS

Six men were reported arrested and quantities of moonshine and home brew seized by prohibition agents in raids yesterday. Nick Marinio, 44, was reported arrested after the agents said they found home brew in his restaurant at 1222 Clark street.

Whisky and beer reported found in a store at 1336 Reedsdale street, caused the arrest of John Greick, 38, agents said, while John Cikoski, 30, was seized when moonshine was found in his place at 501 Heisel street, Homestead.

Allegel "good" liquor was reported found in a club at 6442 Frankstown avenue, where agents said they arrested Joe Gringere, 37. Others reported arrested were Frank Piacenti, 6216 Hoeveler street and Robert Jones, 108 East Erie street.

Rat Bites Child; Fear She May Lose Arm

Milton, 6-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Snyder, while asleep in his crib in the family residence in Peckman's Hollow, Greenock, was severely bitten on the hand by a large rat. The child is in a critical condition and it may be necessary to remove him to the McKeesport Hospital for amputation of the arm.

TROLLEY, TRUCK IN COLLISION

H. B. Cook, Pittsburgh Railways Company motorman, and Oscar Voekler, of Bellevue, were to be arraigned in Traffic Court today on charges of reckless driving, the result of an accident in California avenue last night, in which street car passengers were shaken up and an auto damaged.

The street car collided with a truck driven by Voekler, throwing it against another car parked in the street. The passengers en route from Bellevue to the city, were shaken up, but none was injured.

The auto damaged was that of A. J. Coughlin, of Los Angeles, who had driven here to visit his brother, Michael Coughlin, of 1502 Sheffield street. The car was parked in front of 2709 California avenue.

Boy Hanged When He Slips Playing With Rope

Jack Stewart, 12, of 911 Lincoln avenue, who, his father said, always was making rope swings, was dead today from a fall in the garage in the rear of his grandmother's home at 6926 Bishop street—a victim of his own boyish activity.

Jack was thought to have stood upon a set of old bed springs in the garage to fasten his rope to a projection near the roof. He lost his balance, the father thinks, and fell, the rope wisting about his neck.

Jack Stewart

Mrs. Dora Evans, the boy's grandmother, with whom he was visiting, found him while she was on her way to the store. She said he had gone to the garage to play with "Don," a dog. Jack turned the dog loose and used the rope with which he had been tied for his swing, it was said.

In the yard of the Stewart home, the father pointed out various hooks and limbs of trees the boy had used for his swings. His favorite perch was high up in a cherry tree in the side yard.

Jack's penchant for "monkeying around" led his father to buy an automobile, Mr. Stewart said.

"He got so much fun out of backing it around and starting the engine! I was just about ready to take the car into a big field so that he would have more room."

The boy was an only child, and was a pupil at Lincoln School where he was recently promoted to the eighth grade. Mrs. H. J. Schreiber of Glenshaw is the boy's mother. She was divorced from Stewart and has since remarried.

RIVALS BLAMED FOR BOMBING

Police and detectives investigating the bombing of the three-story building of Morris Curran at 1233 Penn avenue, in which two persons were injured and $100,000 damage done, were of the opinion today that jealous competitors were responsible.

Curran sells copper coils, hardware and paraphernalia used, police explain, by bootleggers, although he himself declares he doesn't know what his customers do with the articles they purchase. Police see in the explosion an attempt to drive him out of the business.

Curran today was making plans to have the structure rebuilt. About $75,000 damage was done to his place and about $25,000 damage to adjoining properties. Mary Seareot, 1230 Penn avenue, and Frank Tomaszewski, 1239 Penn avenue, were injured when they were thrown out of bed.

Officials Promise To Move Building

Why a brick building at the Water street approach of the Smithfield Street Bridge, recently ordered torn down, is still standing, was asked yesterday by Councilman Robert J. Allderdice. It was ordered removed because it is on city property, and cuts off traffic view at a busy corner, it was said.

According to Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, the building is to be removed. Notice of cancellation of the lease has been sent the owner through the Bureau of City Property, according to City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt. Both officials were ordered by Council to follow the case.

Charges Misconduct In Suit for Divorce

Charging her husband with misconduct, Mrs. Florence M. Jones, of 810 Hill street, Sewickley, has filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court against Stephen H. Jones, Beechwood avenue, Carnegie. They were married August 5, 1927, and separated April 13, last.

'Helped Dog Out,' Didn't Kick It, Woman Says

"I didn't kick the dog, I just put my foot under him and lifted him," Miss Dorothy Schumaker, 3927 Howley street, testified yesterday when arraigned before Alderman Harvey A. Lowry, of Collins avenue, on a charge of cruelty to animals. According to Agent Everett Simmen, of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society, the woman kicked a six weeks old dog owned by Mrs. Edna Olbeter, 3925 Howley street.

Mrs. Olbeter testified the dog went through a hole in the fence into the Schumaker yard and Miss Schumaker kicked it. Miss Schumaker denied abusing the animal and said she had lifted it on her foot and "helped" it out of the yard. Many neighbors appeared and testified in behalf of each of the two women.

Alderman Lowry fined Miss Schumaker $10 and costs.

Bellevue Pastor To Tour Alaska

The Rev. Frank G. Helme, pastor of the Bellevue Christian church, and F. J. Riebel, a member of the board of elders of the congregation have left for Seattle, Wash., to attend the international convention, Disciples of Christ. They will make a trip to Alaska, before returning.

Scottish Clans Hold Outing Tomorrow

Scotsmen from 12 clans of Western Pennsylvania will gather tomorrow at Kennywood Park for their thirtieth annual reunion and outing. The Westinghouse Kiltie Band will furnish bagpipe music for songs and dances throughout the day.

Boy Sneak Thief Escapes With $10

A boy, about 17, late yesterday forced the rear door of the home of Mrs. J. DeWall, of 972 LaClaire street, and stole $10, which was on the refrigerator, Mrs. DeWall reported to the Squirrel Hill police. He ran away when discovered.

BELL VETERANS HONORED

In recognition of 35 years' service, Robert W. Philips, 1437 Marlboro street, and William F. Wakefield, 1124 Mississippi avenue, Dormont, were honor guests at a testimonial luncheon given by co-workers and officials of the Bell Telephone Company, at the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday. F. J. Chasterman, vice president, presented each with gold buttons symbolic of long service.

Philips has been connected with the collection department of the old Central District and Wakefield has been lineman, cable foreman, and construction foreman.

Will Rogers Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 2.

They wanted to run our great golf player, Bobby Jones, for Congress. He naturally refused, again endearing himself to the hearts of his countrymen.

It would not only spoil his golf, but his reputation. In fact, it would take away his amateur standing, for as an amateur everything is done with no thought of any possible gain.

I think a fellow of his unblemished reputation has a suit against the state, especially as it was Georgia that proposed him.

The first thing you know they will want Walter Hagen for Secretary of the Treasury.

Yours, WILL.

PITTSBURGH-WASHINGTON AIR LINE SEEMS ASSURED

PLANS RUSHED FOR EARLY SERVICE

Schedules to Dovetail With Railroads; Day Saved by Flying; Fry Is President

Regular passenger air service between Pittsburgh and Washington, connecting here with rail for Western cities, appeared a certainty today.

Announcement of the venture was made by officials of Aerial Rapid Transit, Inc., of which Col. Harry C. Fry, Jr., president of Logue Brothers & Co., has been elected president. He sponsored the recent eight-day test "commuting" trips between the two cities.

RUSHING PLANS

Today plans were being rushed to get the new line in operation as soon as possible. It has been under consideration since a meeting of Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Cleveland and Detroit business men in Washington more than a year ago.

According to plans the new service will be dovetailed with the fast passenger service of the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroads.

Passengers on these roads will leave Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Columbus, Indianapolis and other Western points during the day and early evening, arrive in Pittsburgh in the morning, and taking planes here will reach Washington before noon.

SERVICE SAVES DAY

Returning they will leave Washington in the afternoon, fly to Pittsburgh and make connections with Western trains in the evening.

By using this service business men will save a day between Western cities and Washington and Baltimore. If the service meets the demand officials expect it to, it will be extended to other Eastern cities, according to Col. Fry.

Besides Col. Fry, other officers of the Aerial Rapid Transit, Inc., are: Vice president and general manager, Lucius B. McKelvey, president of the G. M. McKelvey Company, Youngstown, O.; vice president, James E. Jones, director of finance, Youngstown, and secretary-treasurer, Arthur J. Lynch, Youngstown.

MAZER FILES AS BANKRUPT

Joseph Mazer, former downtown garage proprietor, filed a petition of bankruptcy in Federal Court late yesterday. He listed his liabilities as $472,112 and assets as $4,300. The largest item of liabilities is $462,312, which the government claims as income tax for 1920, 1921, 1922 and 1924, while the largest item of assets is $4,000, which he posted with D. B. Heiner, collector of internal revenue.

A plea of no defense to charges of violating the income tax laws was made by Mazer March 2, 1928. On June 29 of this year Judge Nelson McVicar made an order holding up sentence until he had an opportunity to settle his civil liability. It was stipulated that sentence is to be pronounced not later than September 15.

2 Women Injured In Taxi-Auto Crash

Two women were slightly injured when a taxicab and an automobile collided at Fifth avenue and Smithfield street early today. At Mercy Hospital they gave their names as Mrs. Mattie Mills, of 1711 Wylie avenue, and Mrs. Deliah Hopewell, 45, of 532 Francis street. Negroes, passengers in the taxicab, which was driven by L. C. Miss Hamilton studies suspended matter from the air through a microscope at Mellon Institute; Mr. Meller, chief of the city Bureau of Smoke Regulation, will co-operate with Mellon Institute; and Mr. Benbow is shown collecting matter on the roof of Montefiore Hospital to be used in the study of what's in Pittsburgh's atmosphere.

and what seasons of the year radiation is greater or less. W. S. Brotzman, chief meteorologist of the United States Weather Bureau's local office, has promised to co-operate.

3—Medical specialists will study the effect of acid gases in smoke on the pathogenes or disease-producing bacteria present in the air. They will study the relationship of dust to health, considering dust in this connection as a possible carrier of bacteria. They will study the effect of natural ultra-violet radiation on air-borne bacteria.

4—Important sources of smoke will be studied with a view to abating the nuisance. The amount and kind of smoke emitted from locomotives and representative Pittsburgh industries will be studied with the object of reducing in quantity the waste in fuel that results from improper combustion and incorrect firing methods.

FREE TO WORLD

The institute is itself defraying the cost of the investigation and intends to reveal to the public at the earliest moment any important discoveries it may make. It also intends to give to the world, without financial profit to the institute, any useful machines or apparatus that may be invented in connection with the researches. There is hope of working out an automatic smoke and dust recording instrument which would be of value in many industries.

The investigation will be conducted as a multiple industrial fellowship, headed by H. B. Meller, chief of the Pittsburgh Bureau of Smoke Regulation, who also was in charge of the study made in 1923. In the chemical studies he is being assisted by Miss Dorothy Hamilton and Miss Eleanor Jones. Dr. W. H. Mills is supervising the dust analyses. Miss Marie E. Warga, a physicist, is carrying on the study of ultra-violet radiation. She has as her advisers Dr. Keivin Burns, astronomer at the Allegheny Observatory, and Dr. W. A. Hamor, assistant director of the Mellon Institute.

The research, said Dr. Weidlein, will have two benefits. It will give definite knowledge of the hygienic influence of smoke, dust and ultra-violet radiation, and will promote conservation of fuel in industrial plants by showing how smoke may be reduced.

FILLING STATION 'GAS' BLAST BURNS 3

Attendant and Two Women Victims When Hot Exhaust Pipe Causes Explosion

Two women and a man were burned, one of the women seriously, in an explosion of gasoline at the Dukane filling station, Broad and Hamilton streets, last night. They were taken to Pittsburgh Hospital, where one of the women was kept for observation.

Those burned were Miss Nellie Krugh, 33, of 5670 Beacon street; Miss Mildred Hickman, 23, of 6404 Bartlett street, and John Halliwell, an attendant. After receiving treatment Miss Krugh and Halliwell were released.

The explosion occurred when a hot exhaust pipe ignited gasoline being poured into the tank of the automobile of J. P. Sansone, 5012 Broad street. The women were in the rear seat of the car. Sansone, standing nearby, was uninjured.

Policemen Martin Flaherty and Joseph Thompson, of the Frankstown Avenue Police Station, across the street, took the injured to the hospital.

ARMSTRONG 'NOT THINKING' OF RUNNING FOR MAYOR

'TOO BUSY WITH COUNTY WORK,' HE SAYS

Commissioner Declares He Has Not Considered Becoming Candidate

"I haven't given it a thought."

That was the reply of Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong to reports that he is considering entering the mayoralty battle as a compromise candidate.

"The people elected me county commissioner," he said, "then showed their faith in the board by approving the big bond issue. I have plenty to do in this office."

W. L. Mellon, former Republican state chairman, will not return to Pittsburgh until August 12, according to reports today. The final day to file nominating papers for mayor is August 13. This is regarded by many observers as indicating that he and his associates are not planning any further effort to persuade Mayor Charles H. Kline or Councilman James F. Malone to retire in favor of a "harmony" candidate, although others believe that such an effort is t be made.

JUDGE REFUSES VOTE PLEA

When Attorney Samuel S. Rosenberg, acting for the McManus-Verona faction in the Third ward, attempted to have Republicans appointed as minority inspectors in two election districts, Judge Frank P. Patterson, sitting in Quarter Sessions court yesterday promptly refused the petitions.

Rosenberg had procered them along with a batch of petitions for election judges and majority inspectors, but Judge Patterson read each petition carefully before signing, and was not caught napping. The following appointments were made: Judge, third district, Hamud Mahfood; judge, fifteenth district, John Scorza; majority inspector fifteenth district, Mark Patterson; majority inspector, seventeenth district, Samuel K. Weinerman.

Champion Keeps Crown In 2 Scooter Frolics

Climaxing a glorious 10 days of "Whoopee" scooter frolics, the Sun-Telegraph races at Maple View Park, near Washington, and West View Park went down into history Wednesday and Thursday with record entries, while Jack Lynch, 364 Verner street, champion of Pittsburgh, reigned supreme on his undisputed pedestal as the fastest "Whoopee" scooterite in two counties.

Hearing that the American Legion of Washington Community Picnic at Maple View Park was to be a gala affair featuring the "Whoopee" scooter championship sweepstakes of Washington County, young Jack, 13, thought he would like to journey to the races and participate in the finals against the pride of Washington County.

In a colse and thrilling race Lynch won by a head (or a wheel) against George Kinny, Lincoln avenue, Washington, in the boys' final. Third place went to Bud Miller, Beau street, and he collected his automatic pencil in due form. The girls' races were won by Betty Hazlett, 338 W. College street, with Catherine Evans, East Wheeling street, and Peggy Courson, 6 East Walnut street, all of Washington, a close second and third, respectively.

Whooping it up with unusual speed and dash yesterday, Lynch again defeated all comers in the races at the Twenty-seventh Ward Board of Trade picnic at West View Park, breaking the tape with an easy 15-yard lead. John Lesko and William Clark finished in the money in the boys' race, second and third in the order named. In the girls' finals, Catherine Hess, 3408 California avenue, Alice Walsh, 3642 Vemer avenue, and Lena Macharella, 274 East Ohio street, finished in that order.

Great enthusiasm over the "Whopee" scooter given to any boy or girl who obtains one 26-week subscription to the Sun-Telegraph was registered by thousands. At the West View affair, more than 120 boys and girls participated.

J. D. Vico and Theodore H. Grossman, chairmen of the committees for the Legion and Board of Trade picnics, expressed themselves yesterday as well satisfied with the turnouts at the "Whoopee" scooter races. No picnic given by these organization in recent years, it is said, has been so successful as these two.

COUNCIL COOL TO FINES FOR JAYWALKING

Police Urged to Warn People How to Cross Streets; Penalties Held Failures

Led by Councilman Robert Garland, the city's lawmakers have indicated their disapproval of any ordinance designed to fine "jaywalkers."

Instead they requested Director of Public Safety James M. Clark to instruct policemen "to warn people to walk at the proper time and in the proper place."

"The police do nothing but stand on the corners, anyway," said Councilman Charles Anderson.

Garland declared that ordinances imposing fines on pedestrians have not proved successful in other cities.

Pure Milk Now the Rule In All Large Communities

Never worry about milk bills, says Dr. Copeland, for milk is most valuable in the diet.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City. United States Senator from New York.

INCREASING efforts are made to purify and improve the milk supply of the large cities. In no other department of human necessity is there greater approach to perfection. I say, without disparagement of smaller communities, that it is a comfort to know the bottled milk on sale in the great centers of America can be taken with perfect assurance of its goodness.

My senatorial friends smile at me when I insist on having my glass of milk brought to the table in its original bottle. They wonder at me, I suppose, when I read the inscription on the cap to make sure the milk is fresh and of standard quality.

One of the first things learned in public health work is that the quality of the milk supply is almost the first duty to require the attention of the health official. If the milk is above suspicion, the infant death rate and the incidence of testinal disease will be low.

PLEASING QUOTATION

Recently I saw a report made by the New York State Agricultural Station at Geneva. You will be interested in a brief quotation. It is as follows:

"New York State dairymen have an enviable reputation in producing milk of a low bacterial content, but like all progressive groups are striving constantly to improve their product and therefore continuously seek to reduce the number of bacteria in their milk. Many dairymen have been blaming the cow for contributing more than her share of bacteria, but the results of the studies in the station laboratories indicate that utensils and certain practices connected with milking are much more prolific sources of organisms than is the udder of the normal cow."

MOST PRECIOUS FOOD

There is no doubt, I am sure, that the progressive and wide-awake milk distributors are insisting on receiving first class milk. It cannot be such unless it is produced under conditions of cleanliness and intelligent application of correct practices in milking and handling.

We can trust the health authorities and the milk producers and distributors to give us pure milk. But what about it after it gets to our homes? Do we care for it as we should?

Unless milk is kept at a temperature below 50 degrees, it will speedily spoil. Even though taste and smell do not reveal the fact, the bacterial contamination has ruined it for safe use.

Milk is our most precious food. It should be consumed in quantities by every family. Never shudder over the milk bills—good milk is money in the bank of health. What you spend here you will save in decreased doctor's bills.

Chicken Liver Canape,
Chicken Fricassee.
Potatoes and Pears.
String Beans.
Grapefruit Salad.
Macaroon Cream.
Coffee.

WHEN you serve chicken, have a chicken liver canape as a preliminary. That's a means of utilizing every bit of the chicken and of providing the very best canape ever. Cook the liver and heart slowly in hot chicken fat for a few minutes. Drain and mash through a sieve. Saute mushrooms and chop them fine. Mix with the liver, add lemon and onion juice, salt and pepper. Spread on buttered toast or salted crackers.

Here is an old-fashioned but ever helpful recipe for the chicken fricassee. Dress, clean and cut a 3½-pound chicken at the joints. Add salt and pepper and let stand for several hours or overnight.

Cover with 3 quarts of boiling water, simmer 3 hours, add ½ cup each, onion, celery and carrot, diced. Cook until tender. Melt 3 tablespoons fat in frying pan, blend in 4 tablespoons of flour and gradually pour on 2 cups chicken stock. Stir to prevent lumps, season and pour over the chicken. Let cook a few minutes and serve.

HAVE you ever combined pears with potatoes? You have a surprise in store for you. Heat 2 tablespoons of fat, add chopped onion and 2 tablespoons flour.

When the flower is brown, add 1½ cups of water, stir and cook until smooth. Add salt, brown sugar and a little cinnamon. Quarter 4 medium sized pears but do not peal them. Pare 6 medium, whole, raw potatoes, place in a baking dish with pears, cover with the sauce and bake until tender, about 50 minutes.

To make the grapefruit salad, cut the fruit in halves crosswise. Remove the half sections of pulp in perfect shape. Cover half a pound of dates with boiling water. Stir with fork over fire one minute, skim and place on agate plate. Dry in oven for two minutes.

Chill and cut in two or three pieces, lengthwise. Add the grapefruit juice, one-half teaspoon salt and 3 tablespoons olive oil. Mix thoroughly and serve on lettuce with the grapefruit sections in center and dates around them.

THE macaroon cream is an ideal summer dessert. Soak ¼ box of gelatine in cold water. Make a custard of two quarts of scalded milk, the yolks of three eggs, one-third cup sugar and one-eighth teaspoon salt.

Add the gelatine and strain into a pan set in ice water. Add two-thirds cup pounded macaroons and one teaspoon vanilla, stirring until it begins to thicken.

Now add the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Put the mixture in mould, chill and serve garnished with macaroons.

SUMMER TEA MENUS

HERE is a summer tea menu: A candied apple, served on fresh mint leaves, buttered squares of hot gingerbread and iced tea with a slice of lemon decorating the edge of the frosted glass, the ice in the glass clinking merrily and frigidly.

The apple will absorb just enough of the mint flavor of the leaves to give it that piquancy of taste that mint never fails to supply.

The buttered gingerbread and the iced tea complement each other perfectly, and taste like more!

AND, while we are talking of candied apples, it's a most appropriate time to give the recipe for cinnamon apples. The cinnamon apples would be quite as nice to serve on the mint leaves: Closely pare medium-sized apples, without removing the stems or the cores.

Simmer the apples until tender, turning gently from time to time, in a thin syrup made in the following proportions; one cup of sugar to two cups of water. Add some grated lemon rind to the syrup and enough cinnamon drops to color it. Then serve.

Perhaps you'd like a Pineapple and Almond Salad for your summer tea, too; if you are catering to substantial appetites, then I guess you'd better add the salad, though the menu does seem perfect to me exactly as it is.

ANYWAY, here is the recipe for the salad: Soak one and a half teaspoons of gelatine in a cupful of water. Boil a cup and a half of sugar and a cupful of vinegar until it spins a thread, which it will at a temperature of 230 degrees.

Stir the gelatine into the syrup, and if you like, add a little green coloring matter to make the salad look cool and inviting, and let it stand until it begins to jell. Add a cupful of grated pineapple and juice, three sweet pickles ground, and a cupful of blanched almonds.

Pour into molds, or a shallow pan from which squares may be cut for serving when the salad has become firm. Serve on chilled lettuce leaves, with strips of pimento laid petal fashion on top and a dash of mayonnaise in the center.

SCALLOPED HAM

HERE'S a tasty way to prepare scalloped ham: Two slices ham, 4 large potatoes, 1 onion, 2 carrots, 1 pint milk, salt and pepper and parsley.

Slice the potatoes thin and cut the onion, carrots and parsley into fine bits. Place a layer of the potatoes in a caserole and sprinkle with the chopped onion, carrots and parsley.

Place over this one slice of ham divided into three or four pieces. Add additional layers until the dish is filled, covering with the other cut-up slice of ham. Add the milk, cover the dish and bake about one and one-half hours in a slow oven.

Baumer Gets Furlough But Is Sorry When He Leaves Comrades

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Paul Baumer and his soldier comrades all enlisted at 18. During their training, they were abused and persecuted by a former mail-carrier, now Corp. Himmelstross. Hating him, they beat him up the last night. Later, at the front, he appears. One of the privates calls him a "dirty hound." He threatens court-martial. Light sentences are imposed when the lieutenant learns the whole story of the corporal's abuse in camp. Paul and his comrades are back in the front lines. On the way they passed piles of new coffins. Their spirits are low. After days of fighting, the trenches are wrecked. Food is scarce and the barrage is so heavy that none can be brought up. Baumer and his comrades are in hand-to-hand fighting defending their position. After a successful counter-attack, night comes and all is quiet in the trenches. Again the shelling begins; attack, counter-attack, charge, repulse. Young recruits, with little knowledge of warfare, fall the easiest victims. Paul's company has been relieved and casualties are found to be numerous. While in swimming Paul and his comrades speak to several French girls across the canal. That night they visit the girls' home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

I AM called to the Orderly Room. The company commander gives me a leave-pass and wishes me a good journey. I look to see how much leave I have got. Seventeen days—14 days' leave and three days for traveling. It is not enough and I ask whether I cannot have five days for traveling. Bertinck points to my pass. There I see that I am not to return to the front immediately. After my leave I have to report for a course of training to a camp on the moors.

The others congratulate me. Kat gives me good advice, and tells me I ought to try to get a base-job. "If you are smart, you'll hang on to it."

I would rather not have gone for another eight days; we are to stay here that much longer and it is good here.

Naturally I have to stand the others drinks at the canteen. We are all a little bit drunk. I become gloomy: I will be away for six weeks—That is lucky of course, but what may happen before I get back? Shall I meet all these fellows again? Already Haie has gone—who will the next be?

As we drink, I look at each of them in turn. Albert sits beside me and smokes, he is silent, we have always been together — opposite squats Kat, with his drooping shoulders, his broad thumb, and calm voice—Mueller with the protruding teeth and the booming laugh; Tjaden with his mousy eyes;—Leer, who has grown a full beard and looks at least forty.

Over us hangs a dense cloud of smoke. Where would a soldier be without tobacco? The canteen is his refuge, and beer is far more than a drink, it is a token that a man can move his limbs and stretch in safety. We do it ceremonially, we stretch our legs out in front of us and spit deliberately, that is the only way. How it all rises up before a man when he is going away the next morning!

At night we go again to the other side of the canal. I am almost afraid to tell the little brunette that I am going away, and when I return we will certainly be far away from here; we will never see one another again. But she merely nods and takes no special notice. At first I am at a loss to understand, then it suddenly dawns on me. Yes, Leer is right; if I were going up to the front, then she would have again called me "pauvre garcon"; but merely going on leave—she does not want to hear about that, that is not nearly so interesting. May she go to the devil with her chattering talk. A man dreams of a miracle and wakes up to loaves of bread.

Next morning, after I have been deloused, I go to the rail head. Albert and Kat come with me. At the halt we learn that it will be a couple of hours yet before the train leaves. The other two have to go back to duty. We take leave of one another.

"Good luck, Kat; good luck, Albert."

They go off and wave once or twice. Their figures dwindle. I know their every step and movement; I would recognize them at any distance. Then they disappear. I sit down on my pack and wait.

I lie down on many a station platform; I stand before many a soup kitchen; I squat on many a bench—then at last the landscape becomes gloomy, mysterious and familiar. It glides past the western windows with its villages, their thatched roofs like caps, pulled over the white-washed, half-timbered houses, its cornfields, gleaming like mother-of-pearl in the slanting lights, its orchards, its barns and old lime trees.

The names of the stations begin to take on meaning and my heart trembles. The train stamps and stamps onward, I stand at the window and hold on to the frame. These names mark the boundaries of my youth.

Smooth meadows, fields, farmyards; a solitary team moves against the skyline along the road that runs parallel to the horizon—a barrier, before which peasants stand waiting, girls waving, children playing on the embankment, roads, leading into the country, smooth roads without artillery.

It is evening, and if the train did not rattle I should cry out. The plain unfolds itself.

In the distance the soft blue silhouette of the mountain ranges begins to appear. I recognize the characteristic outline of the Dolbenberg, a jagged comb, springing up precipitously from the limit of the forests. Behind it should lie the town.

But now the sun streams through the world, dissolving everything in its golden-red light, the train swings round one curve and then another—far away, in a long line one behind the other, stand the poplars, unsubstantial, swaying and dark, fashioned out of shadow, light and desire.

The field swings round as the train encircles it, and the intervals between the trees diminish; the trees become a block and for a moment I see one only—then they reappear from behind the foremost tree and stand out a long line against the sky until they are hidden by the first houses.

A street crossing. I stand at the window, I cannot drag myself away. The others put their luggage ready for getting out. I repeat to myself the name of the street that we cross over—Bremerstrasse—Bremerstrasse—

Below there are cyclists, lorries, men; it is a grey street and a grey subway—it embraces me as though it were my mother.

Then the train stops, and there is the station with noise and cries and sentries. I pick up my pack and fasten the straps. I take my rifle in my hand and stumble down the steps.

On the platform I look round; I know no one among the people hurrying to and fro. A Red Cross sister offers me something to drink. I turn away, she smiles at me too foolishly, so obsessed with her own importance: "Just look, I am giving a soldier coffee!"—She calls me "Comrade," but I will have none of it.

Outside in front of the station the stream roars alongside the street, it rushes foaming from the sluices of the mill bridge. There stands the old, square watch tower, in front of it the great mottled lime tree and behind it the evening.

Here we have often sat—how long ago it is—we have passed over this bridge and breathed the cool, acid smell of the stagnant water; we have leaned over the still water on this side of the lock, where the green creepers and weeds hang from the piles of the bridge—and on hot days we rejoiced in the spouting foam on the other side of the lock and told tales about our school teachers.

Her Dad's Employer Sees Louise and Becomes Interested in Her

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Nancy Hollenbeck, young and beautiful, hears her mother's warning against a "poverty" marriage. She gives up Mat Tully, her newest beau, and cynically accepts the ardent attentions of Jack Beamer, married to wealth. On a mountain trip she meets Roger Decatur, a handsome ranger. He falls desperately in love with her, and despite her own wish to marry only for wealth, she succumbs to Roger's passionate pleading. After a hasty marriage, they spend a few ecstatic weeks in his mountain cabin. At times Nancy pictures the gay life of luxury she might be living married to Beamer. But though still madly in love with Roger, she goes away while he is off on a trip. At home she re-enters the old life, but does not disclose her secret marriage. In desperation she begs Roger to join her and—though long overdue—is still waiting for him in a hotel lobby when Jack Beamer enters. She tells him of Roger, but not of the marriage. Beamer receives a jolt when his rich wife refuses to get the divorce. He continues to court Nancy clandestinely, unaware of her marriage. Then Roger arrives. After greeting him cooly she breaks down and asks him not to leave her. Roger refuses to give up his job. They part with Nancy threatening to obtain a divorce.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

NANCY took the money in her hands. Ten $100 bills. A thousand dollars! Imagine carrying all that money in your petticoat pocket!

"Why don't you keep it in the bank?" she asked curiously.

"Well, I don't know. I guess I'm old-fashioned." That was the best answer Grandma Hollenbeck could make on the spur of the moment.

There was another reason, really. It had to do with the late and not greatly lamented Jason Hollenbeck, her husband. As long as he lived she had never seen any money. Not even a five-cent piece. Whatever she had needed, whatever he conceded she needed, he bought for her grudgingly. After he was gone she kept whatever money she had in the house. She liked to know it was there. Right at hand. If she wanted to spend it, it is right there. She didn't have to ask anyone, not even the young man in the bank.

And there was another reason for keeping this money—all she had in the world—in her pocket. It was her independence. With it she could buy her way into a certain old people's home. Let Kitty be disagreeable if she wanted to, she could leave any time, with the money all ready. When anything went wrong she had only to reach down slyly and touch the wad of bills in her petticoat pocket . . . It was her independence, close at hand.

Nancy fingered the bills nervously. She hadn't expected anything like this. Papa's mother having a thousand dollars!

She said, "I could pay you back in six months—a year, anyway. You're sure you can spare it?"

"Yes, I can spare it."

"But you must have intended to do something with it, carrying it around that way!"

Old Lady Hollenbeck covered the bread pan with a clean dish towel and leaned, unsteadily for a moment, against the table. For a moment—just a moment she hesitated. She saw herself old and unwanted in her son's house, eating the bitter bread of charity . . . And then she saw herself, a young woman again, in her husband's house. Miserable. Humiliated. Disillusioned, and no one to buy her freedom, no one to help her get away . . . no divorces those days . . . no one to help her get one, even if there had been . . .

"Nothing I'd rather do with it!" She turned to Nancy, smiling, her eyes all pity and tenderness, and the twist of pain on her mouth.

So Nancy took the money.

Hesitatingly, feeling bound to do it, Nancy began her story. But Grandma Hollenbeck didn't want to listen.

"No use going all over it," she said, almost sternly. "It doesn't do any good to talk about troubles. Cure 'em if you can, and bear 'em if you can't. That's all I can see about it. I had to bear mine, I guess I can help you get out of yours."

She was wondering what her own life would have been like if she had left Jason Hollenbeck the first time he struck her. But there were the children, of course, the children who all sickened and died but Peter . . .

"I'll never be able to thank you enough. Never. Never!" Nancy cried. She hid the money in her dress.

Nancy Hollenbeck never cried any more. Nor did she watch the postman. Nor jump when the telephone rang.

That was something to be thankful for, and her mother, who had no difficulty counting her blessings, they were so few these days, was glad of that.

The letters from Gale's Flat had stopped. When Mrs. Hollenbeck thought of that she was almost happy. Nancy did listen to her, after all. She did give up writing to that ranger. Thinking of it, mamma had an almost physical sensation of warmth.

"The girls mind me the way they did when they were babies!" she told her mother-in-law boastfully.

And she spoke of Mat Tully with a certain satisfaction "Lou's latest suitor. . . ."

But not in your wildest imagination could you call him a devoted suitor. There would be weeks when Louise wouldn't see him at all. He was so wrapped up in his work.

Or was it Helen Heffinger? Louise wished she could be sure. She thought it was his work, but with Louise always talking about him. . . . And she had so much to offer, even if she was plain.

Plain! Louise no longer thought of herself as plain. It is wonderful what love can do! Her new clothes helped, too. Ever since the Saturday that Nancy failed to come to the Ladies' Auxiliary meeting at Aunt Ellie's home—that memorable Saturday that she waited for Roger—Aunt Ellie had shown her displeasure at Nancy by being extra nice to Lou.

She took her out shopping and bought her a beautiful hunter's green velvet suit, with everything to match. True, she balked at the cost of alterations, but Lou didn't mind that, she was used to sewing.

Aunt Ellie even talked about buying her a fur coat, but that was really to spite poor Uncle Joseph, who was complaining of rheumatism again. If he insisted upon going to the springs or a hospital she'd probably buy it, just to show she could spend money as fast as he.

But not a cent did she talk of squandering on Nancy, though Lou hinted as much as she dared.

It bothered Lou a little, but there wasn't anything she could do about it. An army with banners couldn't budge Aunt Ellie once she had made up her mind.

Walking to the ferry after a particularly dull afternoon in San Francisco with Aunt Ellie she happened to glance at a Market street clock and saw that it was just quarter to five. The Parkhurst Bank where papa worked was only two or three blocks away. If she hurried she could get there before he left at five, and they could have the long trip home together.

Besides, she had on the new green velvet, and Peter Hollenbeck loved to have his girls call on him when they were all dressed up.

With a little sigh for poor, indulgent papa, asking so little, working so hard, she turned her footsteps toward the bank.

Mr. Lachman's car, the chauffeur slumped in the seat in front, was waiting at the curb. Mr. Lachman himself was going out of the heavy bronze door at the moment Louise came in.

"Well!" he boomed, "well! If it isn't the lady Louise!" Out came his cold, damp hand. Off came his derby hat.

Papa, hurrying for the five-fifteen, dashed up to the door at that very moment. Intent on catching his boat, he passed right by them.

"Wait!" Louise laughed, clutched at his coat. "Wait for me—I've come to take you home!"

Oliver T. Lachman took another look at Louise. She was even more stunning than he had remembered.

"Yes, we're going to drive you down to the ferry, old man!" He had made a swift decision. Genial wrinkles appeared on his long, lean face. He beamed at his employe. He was going to give him another chance.

On the way to the ferry he lifted Louise's ungloved hand. "I see you wear no rings," he said meaningly. His eyes bored into hers.

"I've never cared for them!"

"Hum—that's because you never had the right papa to buy them for you . . . haw, haw . . . Right, Hollenbeck? Hum . . . you'd need something special, Lady Louise. A special design. I might sketch something, just for fun!"

Before they parted he had promised to call on Sunday to take Louise for a drive. "Show you what it's like to ride in a real car!" he bellowed. And then, jovially, to papa. "By the way, Hollenbeck, that will give us the chance to talk a little business. I've been thinking of making some changes at the bank. Might be something pretty nice for you."

MANDELL FAVORED TO RETAIN CHAMPIONSHIP

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEST IN PITTSBURGH — FRIDAY, AUGUST 2, 1929 — TWENTY-ONE

TRAYNOR TO PLAY TODAY

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Sheely Move Justified
Petty's Form Returns.
Means Much If Lasting.

Cubs Getting Breaks.
Bush Equals Grimes.
Mandell Looks Winner.

HURST MAKES NEW HOME-RUN RECORD

ANYTHING can happen in baseball if you wait long enough, so it came to pass yesterday that the crippled Pirates finally won another game and Jess Petty at last pitched a full nine-inning contest for the first time this season on the home grounds. They were welcome developments. Much as the fans regretted to see Earl Sheely pass to the bench after all his sensational work at first base, they realized that Manager Donie Bush was justified in making any shift in the Buccaneer combination in order to break the slump. It was necessary in the club's plight to sacrifice some fielding strength to get more speed and batting power.

Jess Petty

The wisdom of the shake-up was shown by the outcome, and with Captain Pie Traynor returning to the lineup today it is hoped that the success of the new order of things will continue until the Corsairs are on their feet again and have fought their way back to a point near the position of leadership which they held only 11 days ago.

NATURALLY, the most pleasing feature of the victory that interrupted Pittsburgh's longest losing streak of the year, was the splendid pitching of Petty. It was only the fourth time this year out of 12 starts that he went the distance. Twice before he had done it in St. Louis and once in Brooklyn, the last time on June 9.

In none of those previous full-route performances did Petty's form approach what he showed yesterday. He was the masterful southpaw of his Robin days, with everything that goes to make up a star pitcher. Whether he can keep it up remains to be seen, but Jess has always been a hot-weather pitcher, so there is ground for hope. His sudden arrival at form in a pinch may give the recent cloud of adversity a silver lining. It will mean a great deal to the Bucs to have the left-hander in yesterday's form for the remainder of the season.

NOT only are the Pirates far from being out of the National League pennant race, but even the Yankees must still be considered as having a chance for the flag in the American loop, according to Connie Mack.

For some time the remainder of the baseball world has been counting the Athletics as "in,' but in view of the present gait of the Yanks and their capture of seven straight games up until yesterday, the manager of the A's refuses to be led into seeing it that way.

Connie Mack

"NEW YORK still is a dangerous, important factor in the American League race," says Connie. The Yankees haven't cracked; they haven't slipped. What they need is just one more winning pitcher and they'd be right there at the finish. Our club wouldn't be so far in front if the Yanks had one more consistent hurler. One winner on any club counts for a great deal, particularly on a team like New York that has so many heavy hitters. Ten games means a lot to a team in front in August, but that lead is not a license to loaf. We'll have to bear down pretty hard for the remainder of the season. One lapse with a desperate club behind you, and you'll soon find yourself out of it."

APPARENTLY the fact has been generally overlooked, but Don Hurst, the Philly first baseman with the big punch, has established what is probably a world slugging record. All of his last five hits up to today have been home runs.

Of course, this does not affect the standing mark for homers made in consecutive times at bat. That record is four, set by Bob Lowe in 1894. The total of three in a row credited to Cap Anson, the modern Elmer Smith, Babe Ruth, George Kelly and Curt Walker also may be said to surpass Hurst's performance from the angle that they were made in successive times at bat.

BUT there is no record of any other player's having ever made a home run on every one of a sequence of five straight hits, unbroken by a single, double or triple.

Last Sunday in Chicago, Hurst started his streak by making the circuit on his only hit in the game; on Monday in the same city he made two hits and both were homers; on Tuesday his only safety off Larry French here was a four-baser, and on Wednesday his lone blow against Brame also was good for a round trip.

AND Don would have had another home run in Chicago had Clifton Heathcote not snared one of his drives with one hand just as it was going into a stand. Yesterday Hurst went hitless against Jess Petty, leaving him with a chance to lengthen his already remarkable record going into the final game of the Forbes Field series today.

THOUGH the Bucs broke their losing streak yesterday, they failed to make any gain on Chicago and still are five games to the bad in the flag chase, as the Cubs continue to get the breaks that win pennants.

Everything appears to be made to order for the Bruins these days. Daily they're getting just the kind of pitching necessary to win. If their own pitchers are hit hard and yield as many as 10 runs, it generally happens that the hurling on the other side is even worse and McCarthy's men wind up with 11 tallies to their credit. Last week Carl Hubbell held them to four hits and two runs, and yesterday two Boston flingers restricted them to three hits and one marker, but on both occasions the Cubs were fortunate enough to get the shut-out pitching that they had to get to win. And the lone run yesterday was forced in, at that. That's the way things break for a winner.

INCIDENTALLY, in pitching the Bruins to a 1-to-0 victory yesterday, Guy Bush equaled the season's major league record for number of games won in succession. Some published reports credit Bush with nine straight wins, but he has actually won 10 in a row, and leads all rivals in percentage with 15 victories and only one defeat.

Guy Bush

Bush won his first five games of the season, then lost to New York and has since added 10 triumphs to his string. He has not lost a game since June 1, when Jack Scott, of the Giants, won a 7-to-4 decision over him.

IN HIS 10 straight wins Bush has defeated every other club in the league except Pittsburgh. He has downed Boston, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Philadelphia twice each, and New York and Brooklyn once each. Burleigh Grimes, of the Pirates, is the only other hurler in either of the big leagues who has won 10 games in succession this season. Three others—Bob Grove and Rube Walberg, of the Athletics, and George Uhle, of the Tigers, were stopped after winning nine straight.

WHEN Tony Canzoneri steps into the ring with Sammy Mandell in Chicago tonight, it will mark the former's third attempt in three different classes to win a world fistic championship. The lightweight title, now held by Mandell, will be at stake on the outcome of tonight's 10-round bout.

Previously, Canzoneri tried for the bantamweight and featherweight crowns. He failed in one division, but was successful in the other. He lost to Bud Taylor for the bantam throne on June 24, 1927, defeated Benny Bass for the featherweight honors on February 10, 1928, and lost them to Andre Routis last September 28.

SO if Tony can send Mandell down to defeat tonight he will gain the distinction of having won the world championship in two classes.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Tony Canzoneri, chesty little bootblack from New Orleans, whose stinging fists achieved glory in the bantam and featherweight sectors, tonight aims his weapons at Sammy Mandell, one of the most elusive targets of the ring, in an audacious bid for the latter's world lightweight crown.

The two will battle 10 rounds to a decision for the title in Paddy Harmon's gigantic punch bowl, the Chicago Stadium. A record indoor crowd of 25,000 is expected to watch the duel.

It is to be a skirmish between a clever boxer and a rugged, two-fisted puncher, and Mandell, the boxer, is an overwhelming favorite. The champion expects to win handily by a decision; the challenger is confident of victory by a knockout.

SAMMY IN FORM

So clearly did the Rockford Sheik turn back the title bid of Jimmy McLarnin, a pile-driving hitter of the Canzoneri type, in his last championship battle that few observers grant Tony much more than a chance. Although the champion has spent the past year in comparative idleness because of injuries, he has displayed impressive form during his workouts and his great left is apparently as busy as ever.

Weight, too, is a disadvantage Canzoneri has to fight against. He expects to enter the ring from four to six pounds lighter than Sammy and among lightweights such a difference is a considerable handicap. Tony's advantages lay in his punch, his greater ring activity and his age. He is 22 and Mandell is 25.

Canzoneri stacks his hopes in his right hand and his ability to sting the champion early and force him to slow down long enough so he can slip over his devastating smashes to the head.

Both fighters are confident over the outcome and neither seems worried.

THIRD TITLE DEFENSE

Tonight's battle will be the third time Mandell has defended the title he won from Rocky Kansas in 1926. In his first bout, he handed Phil McGraw, the Detroit Greek, an unmerciful whipping and last year he forced those critics who couldn't see him as champion to praise him by thrashing Jimmy McLarnin. Win or lose tonight, he expects to go campaigning for the welterweight title. He defeated Jackie Fields, the new champion, once and is confident he can repeat.

Ray Miller, Chicago left hook artist, will meet Luis Vicentini, of Chile, in the 10-round semi-windup and Harmon hopes to match the winner with the victor of the Mandell-Canzoneri fight for the title.

Mandell is expected to receive $56,000 for defending his crown tonight. Both are signed on a percentage basis, Sammy to get 40 per cent and Tony 20 per cent. The gate is expected to be worth $140,000.

Polo Board Makes Changes in Handicap

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—A number of changes in handicap, effective this season, were announced yesterday by the handicap committee of the United States Polo Association.

Cecil Smith, of the Austin Polo Club, Texas, was raised from six goals to seven on the basis of his play in the East this year. H. W. Williams, of the Austin Polo Club, was rated one goal higher at six goals, as was Alden Roark, brother of Capt. C. T. I. Roark, British internationalist. The handicap of John Hay (Jock) Whitney was raised from two goals to three. Other changes included Fred Wilmhurst, Austin, Tex., a new member, one goal.

DOEG BATTLES WILLIAMS FOR NET TITLE

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Dashing Dick Williams, playing the net with all the reckless abandon of 13 years ago when he last won the Seabright singles, forged into the final round of the 1929 tournament with a brilliant victory over Normal Farquharson, Cambridge university player from South America.

Pounding home points whenever games were needed badly, Williams won by scores of 6-4, 2-6, 6-3, while on an adjoining court the bronzed young California Giant, John Doeg, beat the Texan, Berkeley Bell, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4, to qualify as Williams opponent in the finals today.

WILLIAMS STEADY

Greater steadiness as well as a more varied attack enabled Williams to win from Farquharson in the feature match of the day. Before an appreciative gallery of 800, Williams came from behind to win the first set, dropped the second and then out-steadied and outstroked the British youth in a stirring final session.

Doeg resorted to frequent volleying in winning his semi-final and a great net battle is in prospect for tomorrow. Many feel that if the veteran Williams can stand the strain of playing the full championship route of three out of five sets, he has at least an even chance to beat Doeg and win the tournament as he did in 1914, '15 and '16, when at his peak.

Two Californians will fight it out in the women's singles final tomorrow as Miss Helen Jacobs of Berkeley and Miss Edith Cross, of San Francisco, the country's second and third ranking players, came through according to schedule.

MISS JACOBS IMPRESSIVE

Miss Jacobs, who has not yet dropped a set and has lost only eight games in three matches, won from Miss Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Massachusetts, by scores of 6-1, 6-2, while Miss Cross conquered a fellow San Franciscan, Mrs. Lawrence Harper, by 6-1, 3-6, 7-5.

PAUL WANER

Back in the game at last at first (if you get what we mean) is Paul Waner, outfield star of the Pirates. In other words, Paul has been out of the lineup since his collision with Boots Grantham last week and when he got back (at last) it was at first base in place of the benched Earl Sheely for yesterday's game with the Phillies at Forbes Field. Left-handed first basemen are supposed to be what the doctor ordered, and that's what Paul is, as pictured above.

COAST CRITIC THINKS PAUL CHANGED

George Putnam, secretary of the San Francisco Seals, who is in Pittsburgh presumably with a view of selling some of his club's luminaries, holds the opinion that Paul Waner has changed his batting style to some extent since he left the Coast League outfit. Putnam thinks that Lloyd is more of a reminder of Paul of the Coast than Paul is himself.

George Putnam.

The fact that Lloyd is outhitting his brother by something like 30 points has caused a lot of comment among the players. One prominent member of the Quaker City outfit tells the writer that he is convinced that Lloyd is a better batsman than his older brother. This athlete cites

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Three weeks ago today, in Philadelphia, Pie Traynor, Pirate captain, was forced out of the lineup and soon Pie's favorite club hit the skids. But Pie will be "in there" this afternoon and there may be a general tightening up. The Oaklanders are due to take on the slugging Quakers in the last game of the set, and there is a better morale on the club this morning as a result of a fine victory over the Quakers with a speeded up home offensive turning the trick.

Donie Bush injected Rolly Hemsley and Fred Brickell into the fight in the third game, this move taking Charlie Hargreaves and Earl Sheely out of action. The two fleet boys, Bush figured, would add something to the punch of the club and now that Traynor is set to return there should be a commensurate trend on the right side.

The return of the Pirate captain to active service has resulted in the benching of Sparky Adams and another change in the batting order. Bartell will move over to second and bat in the lead-off position, while Clarke will perform at short. Bartel was dropped to seventh in the batting order yesterday, but will be back in the first notch today.

PAIR STILL OUT

The return of the two injured stars—Burleigh Grimes and George Grantham—is mostly a matter of conjecture. Grimes was supposed to be ready by the end of this week, but the feeling at the Oakland Orchard at present is that Burleigh will be lucky if he is able to tackle the Giants in one of the four games of the series that begins tomorrow. Grantham may be out of the entire New York series.

Meantime, the Cubs continue to get the breaks. They held to their five-game lead yesterday by winning over the Braves on three hits. This bent of the Bears is discouraging to the Pirates, who have had little else but the frowns of Lady Luck in the last three weeks. But if the Bears think the fighting spirit of the Buccos is broken they certainly are barking up the wrong tree. The race has more than two months to run and many things can happen in two months. A lot of things happened to the Pirates in one short week—they were in first place when they returned from the East one week ago Monday.

PETTY HURLS WELL

Another bright ray of hope developed as the Pirates trounced the Quakers yesterday, 3 to 1. The pitching of Jess Petty was of such a grade as to offer balm to the wounded feelings of Donie Bush and other members of the Pirate band. Jess not only worked a smart game, he had a lot of stuff and at the finish he seemed to be getting stronger despite the fact that he toiled on two days of rest. Rolly Hemsley handled the veteran faultlessly.

Petty was extremely careful with the home run kings in the Quaker lineup. None of the Klein-O'Doul-Hurst trio was able to park any balls in the rightfield stands, which was in contrast to their last appearance against Jess in the Oakland Orchard several weeks ago.

Petty showed his best stuff in the

LE BOSQUET VICTOR IN STANTON TOURNEY

W. PA. CHAMP TOPS WYMAN IN FINAL

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Maurice (Ski) Le Bosquet is keeping up the reputation he made for himself when he first entered local golf competition—that of being one of the strongest players in the district. Yesterday afternoon he defeated J. G. (Jerry) Wyman, 5 up and 3 to play, in an all-Highland final in the championship flight of the annual Stanton Heights Golf Club invitation tournament, winning out over a field that verily was the strongest of the season, and one that is expected to stand as a better one even than the Western Pennsylvania amateur championship promises to be.

The final did not produce extraordinarily good golf—but it did produce interesting golf, from the outset. Le Bosquet was 3 up at the turn and finished matters at the fifteenth green.

CHAMP TOO STRONG

It wasn't that Jerry Wyman, also called Jim, didn't have the game, nor that he didn't try hard enough—Ski was just a wee bit too strong for him in skill, and a great deal better off from a standpoint of experience.

Nothing timid about the tall, lanky, affable runner-up, either. He pounded out drives that were away in the lead of Le Bosquet hole after hole, but fell down when it came to making good around and on the green. When it is noted that Wyman had no less than three smashes from tees that were all of 300 yards, one of around 320 and a number better than 275, one may imagine that he was not laboring under any sort of strain one often finds in a match of the sort; he played through and lost, but he made a gallant effort.

Wyman copped the first hole with a birdie 4, but LeBosquet came right back on the second with another birdie 4 to even matters. Ski became 1 up by being conceded the fourth. LeBosquet was 3 up after he had won the sixth and seventh with 4s. And thus it stood at the turn.

SKI BECOMES 4 UP

Coming in, Ski went 4 up by taking the twelfth, and when it appeared Wyman was about to become dormie, Jerry took the thirteenth with a birdie 4. LeBosquet's fine recovery won him the fourteenth with a 3, and when Wyman dubbed his drive and sent his second on the far edge of the green on the fifteenth, while Ski was just short with his tee-shot, and played his second within good putting distance, Jerry conceded the hole to end the match.

Their cards:

Le Bosquet, out ..	6	4	4	3	4	4	4	4	3—36
Wyman, out	5	5	5	4	5	5	5	4	3—xx
Le Bosquet, in	4	5	5	3	4
Wyman, in	5	4	6	4	4	5

A great deal of credit is due Fred Weppner, the man at Stanton Heights who is conceded the honor of putting over the finest tournament that club has ever held. There had been some talk of this being the last of the sort, but, indeed, it would be a real calamity if it were not an annual fixture as in the past. Weppner, one of the best golfers in the club, lost out in the first division consolation final to Samuel M. Parks, Jr., another Highland star.

first in the featherweight division and then in the lightweight ranks. Only a few fighters have ever captured more than one world title.

The late Bob Fitzsimmons headed the list with a triple crown—middleweight, light-heavyweight and heavyweight. George Dixon and Terry McGovern led the bantamweights and later the featherweights, Mickey Walker won the middleweight title after losing the welterweight scepter, and Johnny Dundee ruled over the featherweights and the junior lightweights. Gene Tunney's light heavyweight title before he became heavyweight king was only an American championship as was Harry Greb's ranking in the same division before he won the middleweight leadership.

Sammy Mandell

IT ISN'T likely that Canzoneri will succeed in breaking into that small circle of double title-winners by overthrowing Mandell tonight. Such an outcome would not be unpopular by any means, as Mandell has not been a satisfactory champion. Three years have elapsed since the Albanian won the title from Rocky Kansas, but in that long period he has defended it only twice, defeating Phil McGraw in 1927, and Jimmy McLarnin in 1928. He would have lost it to Jimmy Goodrich last December but for the fact that he made Goodrich come in overweight. Mandell's collarbone was dislocated in the second round and Goodrich was credited with a technical knockout. However, in spite of his shortcomings as a champion, Sammy looks to be altogether too good for Canzoneri, and his greater cleverness and experience probably will enable him to win the decision in 10 rounds and retain the crown.

GOLF AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

A SHORT BACKSWING IS USED IN THE PUSH SHOT

What are the essentials for the successful push shot?

Answered by

WILLIE OGG

New England Professional, Former Massachusetts Open, Shawnee Open Champion.

A short, compact back swing is best for this shot, with the ball well toward the right foot. The weight is mostly on the left foot just before the impact and the ball has to be hit on the down stroke; the arms extend out towards the hole stiffly at the end of the follow-through, with the right hand on top of the shaft. The ball is more or less smothered in making this difficult shot and has a very low flight.

FANS SEE OLD RELIABLE IN MELLOW

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

An old reliable crowd-pleaser, Johnny Mellow, of Detroit, returns to one of his favorite stamping grounds, McKeesport, tonight, to entertain the fans in the 10-round windup of Jim McGirr's second show of the outdoor season at Cycler Park. He meets a clever and highly-touted foe in Eddie Reed, Negro star, of Philadelphia, who has been boxing in fine form around Erie and in other spots.

Johnny Mellow

Mellow never has made a bad fight around here. He is a good boxer, a hard counter puncher and a fine judge of pace.

Two eight-round bouts and a six-rounder complete the Tube City card. Jackie Murray, of the Hill, and Freddie Boylstein, of Kittanning, meet in the semi-final and Harry Williams, local Negro light-heavyweight, and Patsy Perroni, of Canton, O., in the other eight-round bout. Eddie Brannon, of the Hill, and Bud Morrisey, of Alliance, O., are in the opening event.

TITLE NOT AT STAKE

Frankie Genaro's world flyweight championship will not be at stake in his 10-round main bout with Willie Davies, of Charleroi, in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, next Monday night. The articles call for the men to scale not less than 114 pounds, which is two pounds over the flyweight limit. Genaro, respecting the ability of Davies, refused to meet him at weight unless he received a guarantee of New York proportions for the match, which, of course, is impossible because of the limited seating capacity of the Bowl. Incidentally, the general admission tickets Monday night will be limited to 2,500. Last Monday night, more than 4,000 of the $1 pasteboards were sold, leading to the overcrowding of the arena and the general mixup whereby many of the patrons were unable to get the seats their tickets called for and had to stand in the aisles throughout the show.

Denver Leonard, former Y. M. H. A. amateur star, who has been on the sidelines for some time, is ready to return to the ring and will fight as a 142-pounder. Noble Davis, former local referee and announcer, has been prepping him and will act as his advisor. Leonard got off to a bad start as a pro in bouts against Jackie Lewis, Ditty Woods and Jack Unglo, and then it's some boxing around New York. He likely will make his first appearance in his new campaign in one of the bouts at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, week after next.

MANDELL SHOULD WIN

Maxie Rosenbloom boxes K. O. White in a six-round bout at Aberdeen, Wash., tonight. Sammy Harris meets Jimmy Reed and Leo Mozdy battles Johnny Edwards, while Johnny Pial hooks up with Johnny Hahn at Erie. Ruby Goldstein boxes Cuddy DeMarco, subbing for Joey Kaufman, at Coney Island. Ray Miller boxes Luis Vicentini, and Basil Galiano meets Andy Callahan in preliminaries to the Mandell-Canzoneri bout at Chicago.

Dr. Ludwig Haymann, the German heavyweight champion, meets Eddie Johnson, of Boston, in his American debut at the Long Beach (N. Y.) Stadium tonight.

Vincent Forgione and Eddie Burnbrook battle at Hollywood, Cal., while Leo Williams, the Negro heavyweight, meets Georgie Deschner at Canarsie, L. I.

Steve Pollock, of the North Side, former Marine boxer, who made his local debut against Mickey Solmen at McKeesport last Friday night, wants to mingle with the other 150-152-pounders around here. He has had an interesting career, enlisting in the Marine Corps four years ago at the age of 17 and boxing in Shanghai, Tsin-Tsin and Pekin, among other places, while with the Asiatic fleet, and seeing service during the war in Nicaragua. He was known in the service as China Boy Pollock. Bill Heckman is managing the former Marine and has him working out daily at the Pittsburgh Lyceum with Tommy Crawley, Johnny Haggerty, Tommy Ward, Jack Ross, the heavyweight, and Eddie Carver, all members of his string.

JUNCTION PARK CARD

Young Jacobs, of Canonsburg, has been matched with Bud Morrison, of Alliance, O., and Georgie Compton, of Rochester, Pa., with Gunboat Smith, of Washington, Pa., for the two four-round bouts at Junction Park, New Brighton, next Thursday night. Tiger Joe Randall, of Elizabeth, and Mike Lucas, of Cleveland, are in the main bout, and Walter Pickard, of Youngstown, and Patsy Perroni, of Canton, O., in the semi-final. One more six-round bout remains to be arranged.

Billy Callahan, of Detroit, who meets Tony Herrera, the Mexican star, in the main bout at Washington, Pa., next Tuesday night, now is under the management of Jimmy Dime, of New Castle. His record is said to include bouts with Baby Joe Gans, Doc Snell, Babe Herman and others of note. Herrera has knocked out Ray Newton and Midget Kilburn in previous starts at Little Washington. In other bouts Tuesday night, Lee Sala, of Donora, will box Mickey Solmen, of New Castle; Harry Spencer, of Washington, will take on Joe Poole, of Lawrenceville, and Joe Todd, of Donora, will oppose Young Joe Walcott, of Washington.

Answer to query: T. M.—Record books show Harry Greb scored 52 knockouts and Tom Gibbons 43 during their careers.

Young Guido, of Sharon, who recently returned from Detroit, where he helped Joe Dundee prepare for his title fight with Jackie Fields, and Johnny Pial, of Greenville, have been matched to box the main bout at Conneaut Lake Park, next Wednesday night. Louie Severo, of Meadville, and Ray Collins, of Erie, will box the semi-final.

Mickey Fedor, of Canton, and George Perotta, of New Castle, will box the main bout at Armco Field, Butler, next Tuesday night.

JAYS CHECK ADVANCE OF STOGIES

JEANNETTE, Aug. 2.—The Wheeling Stogies lost a fine opportunity to gain on the league-leading Scottdale club yesterday, losing to Jeannette by a 9-to-7 score. Home runs by Oeschler and Voyle, the first coming with the bases crowded in the fifth inning, brought the Jays the win. The Jays outhit the Stogies 16 to 12.

SCOTTIES LOSE

SCOTTDALE, Aug. 2.—Scottdale's winning streak was stopped here yesterday by Clarksburg, the Generals taking a 3-to-1 victory. Beale pitched a steady game, and kept the four hits the leaders secured from his delivery well scattered. Scottdale filled the bases twice but was unable to punch runs across.

COLTS DEFEATED

CHARLEROI, Aug. 2—A wild pitch in the ninth inning with the bases full and the score knotted at six-all gave Charleroi a 7-to-6 victory over Cumberland here yesterday. Corrigan was the losing hurler. Lucas, Guv left fielder, socked a home run.

JACOBS RULES OUT DETROIT

Detroit do not meet the approval in the Schmeling camp, Jacobs said.

PARK TOO SMALL

Jacobs objected to holding the fight, which he claims will practically settle the heavyweight championship, in Detroit, is that there is no place large enough to accommodate the 100,000 fight fans he expects to have in attendance.

"Three places, New York, Chicago and Detroit, were under consideration for the fight," Jacobs said. "New York is definitely out. Detroit can't handle the crowd that will see the fight. And Chicago is my choice. Fifty per cent of Chicago is German and fifty-one per cent of Wisconsin."

William F. Carey, president of Madison quare Garden, has an option on Schmeling for the Sharkey fight, Jacobs said, but there is no contract.

TAR FAVORS DETROIT

DETROIT, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—"If Schmeling wants to fight Sharkey, he's got to fight him in Detroit," John Buckley, manager for the Boston sailor, declared last night after a three-hour session with the Michigan State Boxing Commission here.

"Sharkey is ready for a fight any time, and I want him to fight here," Buckley said.

Buckley, referring to the declaration in Sacramento, Cal., of Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, that a Detroit date did not suit him, said no other city would be accepted by Sharkey.

James (Bingo) Brown, chairman of the Boxing Commission, said the commission must wait upon the arrival from New York of William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden Corporation, before passing upon the merits of Floyd Fitzsimmons' claims to a contract with Sharkey. Carey, who was to have arrived here yesterday, missed several trains and is expected here today.

SHARKEY BEGINS GRIND

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—(INS.)—Jack Sharkey left today for Bow Lake, N. H., to train for a 15-round heavyweight bout with Max Schmeling at Navin Field, Detroit, September 19. Sharkey, it was stated, will start for Detroit September 1.

From the Sharkey camp came the report that the Madison Garden Corporation will urge that the Tunney trophy for the next heavyweight champion be given the winner of the Sharkey-Schmeling bout.

Sharkey, it was stated, will receive $100,000 and Schmeling 25 per cent of the gate. Seat prices for the bout will be from $25 to $5, it was said.

He had trained Whitney horses for the past 20 years and during that time won every noted stake race at the various tracks. Two horses trained by him were winners of the Kentucky Derby, Regret and Whiskery. He also trained three winners of the Futurity and a winner of the Preakness.

Arlington Racing Meet Ends Today

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Arlington Park's record-shattering summer turf season closes today with the running of the $7,500 added City and Suburban handicap over a mile and a quarter.

Starting the season under the ownership of a group of Chicago business men and sportsmen, the track has broken every local record, drawing the largest crowds and most brilliant field of thoroughbreds and rolling up a large profit. Track officials plan to turn over the surplus to boost the stakes and purses of next summer's meet, making it the richest in American turf history.

Eleven were expected to start in today's final, among which were Misstep, Cannan, Golden Prince and Easter Stockings.

CARD VETERAN BOASTS 372 VICTORIES

By LES CONKLIN.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Grover Cleveland Alexander will be shooting at a new record of total victories for a simon-pure National League pitcher the next afternoon he ambles to the mound. By beating Brooklyn yesterday, 5 to 2, while the endurance fliers, Jackson and O'Brine, looked on, the grand old man of baseball performed an endurance feat on his own hook when he tied Christy Mathewson's record of 372 victories.

YOUNG'S MARK STANDS

The Cardinal veteran, now 42, has no chance of approaching the record of Cy Young, who compiled 511 victories in 22 years of both National and American League pitching. But if such ancients as Red Faber and Jack Quinn can cheat Father Time year after year, it is barely possible that Old Pete may eclipse Walter Johnson's American League record of 416 games won.

Mathewson spread his 372 victories over 17 years, while Alexander started in 18 years ago just as Young was retiring.

The pennant race remains unchanged in the National League this morning, as all the other first division teams won. Jess Petty of the Pirates came to life and turned in his first full game of the season at Forbes Field, beating the Phillies, 3 to 1, thanks to Comorosky's triple off Harold Elliott, a rookie, with the bases loaded to the gills.

Guy Bush of the Cubs has won 15 games against only one defeat. He scored his ninth successive triumph by capturing a brilliant 1-to-0 duel with Ben Cantwell of the Braves, although Chicago was outbatted by five hits to three.

BENTON STOPS REDS

Larry Benton of the Giants stopped the Reds cold, 6 to 1. Tony Kaufman of New York got his first hit in 25 times at bat this season and now is only 362 points behind his average of last year, when he batted .402 with the Rochester Internationals.

Bishop and Simmons wielded a wicked willow as the Athletics outslugged Detroit, 7 to 4. George Earnshaw was knocked out by the Tigers, but was credited with his seventeenth win of the season, tying his teammate, Lefty Grove, for the league lead in total games won.

The A's stretched their lead over the Yankees to 10½ games, as Roy Sherid, New York rookie, lost a 3-to-2 duel to Ted Lyons, of the White Sox, on a triple by Shires in the eighth. Babe Ruth's twenty-fifth homer and another by Combs gave the Yanks their tallies.

The Browns gave Rip Collins a 9-to-1 lead, but he blew up in the seventh and his successors were no better, the Senators scoring five runs in the eighth for a 13-to-9 triumph.

Cleveland also gave Jimmy Zinn a 9-to-1 lead over the Red Sox and he managed to hold it, eventually winning by a 10-to-8 count.

ninth when the enemy put the tying run on base with only one out. Manager Shotton sent in two pinch-hitters, Barney Friberg nicking Jess for a single as he batted for Thevenow. The hit advanced Hurst, who had walked, but Petty fanned Lerian for the second out of the inning.

Shotton then ordered Lefty Sweetland, a good righthand batter, to the plate in place of Pitcher Phil Collins. Petty was bearing down with all his stuff and he gave Sweetland both barrels to make him miss a third strike that brought the fight to a close.

Adam Comorosky shared the honors with Petty by hitting a cleanup triple that won the game. Commy's three-sacker to right with three on the sacks and two out in the third was rather lucky, inasmuch as Denny Southern almost nailed it as it collided with the rightfield wall.

Harold (Ace) Elliott swapped punches with Petty for six rounds. He wavered in his control in the third to pass Adams and the Waner boys and then Commy followed through with his cleanup drive that cleared off the sacks.

Fresco Thompson scored the only run accredited the Phillies in the third. Fresco spanked a three-bagger into the left-center zone and he went over on Southern's line sacrifice to Comorosky.

Larry French and Ray Benge are due to mix in the finale this afternoon.

HOYT BACK SOON

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Reports that an attack of blood poisoning would force Waite Hoyt out of the New York Yankees' lineup for two weeks or more apparently were exaggerated. Hoyt's physician says the infection is clearing up rapidly and that the veteran righthander should be back in uniform by Tuesday of next week.

ART CONLEY DIES

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 2.—Art Conley, former local basketball player, died in a Cleveland hospital following an operation. Conley played on several independent teams here during the past few years. He had gone to Cleveland only a short time ago to live.

GIMBELS PLAY STEEL NINE TODAY

By TOM BIRKS

What should be the outstanding game of the Commercial and Industrial League second half race will be flashed at Etna this evening when the Gimbel nine, league leader, hooks up with Carnegie Steel, first half champion.

The Steelers are fighting hard for the second half and have defeated the Horne nine so far this week. Gil Scannel is expected to twirl for the Gimbels, and should he get the average support the store nine should cop the battle.

There is a chance that the Steelers' ace, Englemen, will twirl against the leaders. The fans should see an interesting battle.

The W. O. W. nine will play its second round battle in the Class A eliminations on Sunday, and will meet the Stephens-Jenkins nine of Homestead. Should W. O. W. be successful in the game, it will have put both of the Steeltown entries out of the tourney. It defeated the Homestead aces in the first round last Sunday. The Stephens have a good club. Manager Jadinak will probably send Dunn to the mound for the tilt.

North Bessemer will be the attraction at Cheswick this evening in the West Penn League. Pete Elder's club dropped one to Export-Murrayville this week, so Pete is likely to shake up the lineup for the Cheswick battle. Armstrong's club is going good just now, and the Allegheny River fans should see a game worth while.

HURLS PERFECT GAME

What with a perfect game being turned in by Pitcher Lefty Huffman, of Vesta, in the Monon Valley League and the defeats served Homewood in the Inter-County and Stowe and Reineckers in the city circuit, last evening was an interesting one on district sandlots.

Huffman blanked Alicia 6 to 0 in a seven-inning game. Alicia did not get a man on base, either by hit, walk or error. Vesta won, 6 to 0. Huffman fanned a dozen of the 21 batters to face him.

HOMEWOOD LOSES

Beltzhoover played its last game of the season at McKinley Park last evening and defeated Homewood in an Inter-County League tilt, 4 to 2, Carroll hurling a fine game.

In the City League, Book Shoe handed the Stowe Civics a setback to the tune of 3 to 1 and St. Johns went on a hitting spree to pound out a 17 to 2 victory ocer the Reineckers.

Edgewood turned back Duquesne 10 to 2 and Collier Colts defeated Brookline 4 to 2 in Greater Pittsburgh League games. Braddock Owls downed the Homestead Aces 3 to 2 in a Tri-Boro League fracas.

VERONA TIED

Universal sprang a surprise by holding Verona to a 2-2 tie in the West Penn League. Equitable Gas walloped Equitable Auto 20 to 11 in the Philadelphia Company circuit. The Presbyterians defeated Ingram 10 to 8 in the Crafton Church League. Twin City Radiators downed Oswald & Hess in the Greater North Side League, 8 to 4.

The Roosevelt Club continued its fine play by defeating the crack J. J. Boyles 10 to 6 in the Central League.

Rieck-McJunkin had to travel 10 innings to defeat the Ward Bakers 8 to 7 in an independent struggle. The Crawford Stars walloped J. L. Thomas 17 to 11.

10 READY TO TRY CHANNEL SWIM

CAPE GRIS-NEZ, France, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Ten prospective Channel swimmers, eight women and two men, have been in training at this take-off cape for several weeks and there has not been 10 lines in the French newspapers about their activities.

Five years ago the appearance of one lone Channel aspirant swimmer was good for at least a column.

Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston, billed as the American professional long-distance champion, plans to swim from Gris-Nez to Dover and back again.

The Zittenfeld twins, American girls, aged 15; the Misses Ivy Hawke, Joan Brunton, Molly Parker and Connie Gilhead of England; and Mademoiselle Estelle Delannoy of France, are the other women.

Doctor Schiffe of Germany and Ishak Helmy, the giant Egyptian, who crossed last year, complete the swimming colony.

Ebensburg to Have Another Race Meet

EBENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 2.—Blair C. Seeds, president of the Cambria County Fair, which offered a successful race meeting here last month, today announced that his organization would stage another six-day meeting, beginning September 2.

President Seeds has secured every one of the officials who helped make last month's meeting so successful, and is confident that the forthcoming race meeting will be the best ever offered in this state.

ARIEL VILAS WINS

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Ariel Vilas, 15-year-old Chicago girl, won the women's Western junior golf championship by defeating Mary Elizabeth Ford, of Kansas City, 1 up in the 18-hole final over the Evanston Golf Club course.

MID-ATLANTIC STARS

DAVE BLACK EDDIE SEIGLE

Black and Seigle are two Pittsburghers who are starring for the Cumberland Colts of the Mid-Atlantic League. Black is a second baseman and Seigle a catcher. The latter is better known around Pittsburgh as a crack basketball player.

BLACK, SEIGLE COLT STARS

CUMBERLAND, Md., Aug. 2.—The veteran Dave Black, keystone sacker, and Eddie Seigle, young receiver, both natives of Pittsburgh, are exhibiting a classy brand of baseball with the Cumberland Colts, of the Middle Atlantic League, this season.

Black, who came to the Colts at the start of the 1927 season after about seven years of campaigning in the Blue Ridge, Virginia and New York-Pennsylvania Leagues, has been the best fielding second-sacker in the Middle Atlantic League for the past two years. In 1927, he fielded .969 in 100 games. Last year his percentage was .971 for 106 games. He seems to improve with age, for his present fielding average stands at .972. Recently he accepted 83 consecutive chances in nine consecutive games without a slip, which is a new mark for the M. A. loop boys to shoot at.

As a sticker, Dave is one of the most dangerous on the local club. He has slammed 13 homers this season, in addition to 16 doubles and six triples. His average to date is .306. In 1927, Black hit the pill at a .287 clip, while, in 1928, his percentage was an even .300. In 80 games this season, Dave has gathered 92 hits in 301 trips to the plate.

Seigle, who is better known in Pittsburgh as a basketball player, is alternating behind the plate with Benny Artigiani. Eddie made his debut here last season. He has shown remarkable improvement both as a batsman and a catcher, and is reputed to be one of the best judges of foul flies in the league. On numerous occasions he has hauled down high fouls while standing against the grandstand. Last year, the former Bethany College lad hit only .212 in 69 games, and the general comment was "If Seigle only could hit he would be a whiz." Latest averages show he is banging the horsehide at a .304 clip. He made 49 hits in 161 times at bat in the first 52 games.

Seigle and Black are two of the most popular players on the Cumberland team. They stand out among the most aggressive tossers in the Class C circuit.

German Cup Stars Cancel U. S. Visit

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—American tennis fans who had hoped to see the German stars, Daniel Prenn and Hans Moldenhauer, in action this year seem doomed to disappointment.

The Teutons, who carried Germany to the inter-zone finals of Davis Cup competition, said business probably would prevent them from accepting the invitation of the United States Lawn Tennis Association to play in the national championships.

CRITIC CLAIMS PAUL CHANGED

that Lloyd is driving the ball with much more force than he did in his two previous seasons in the big show. The fact that the wee ball hawk is leading both leagues in three-baggers is given due cognizance by the boys of the sport.

SEES SOME CHANGE

The Coast League magnate doubtless does see some change in the boys, yet, if Paul were batting up to his normal .380 clip, his switches at the plate probably would be extolled. It should be remembered that the rightfielder had to open the season with scant practice, as a result of the salary jam between him and his employers. Moreover, the de luxe batsman doubtless is smart enough to know that he is coping with smarter pitching in the big show.

Prfobably you have noticed that Brother Paul is not socking those ringing doubles and triples to left field that featured his first and second years in the big show. The upper school of the game has a lot of pitchers and pilots who have laid awake nights in their efforts to build up a defense to thrwart the hitter and in time they have reached something in accord, it would seem. In any event, Paul is pulling more balls than formerly. Critics of the Coast League, however, will tell you that he is near his best stride when he is pulling the drives to right field.

TEAM SPEEDED UP

The rightfielder, by the way, may not relish the change that sends him to first base. When he was switched to the position before he contended that the short snap throws required along the first defense line affected his shoulder and arm muscles to the extent of bothering his batting form. On that occasion his batting dropped from something like .380 to a mark 20 points father south. Nevertheless, it was patent to Bush that the team had be to speeded up and the little slugger is not the one to complain.

The switch that brought Fred Brickell into the outfield gives even greater speed to the pasture department, although it can hardly be said that Brick is as efficient a fly-chaser as the boy he suceeds.

Crookston Advances In Greensburg Play

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 2.—The first round of the club championship tournament at the Greensburg Country Club, which ended late yesterday, resulted in a number of hard-fought matches. The field, which numbered 112 at the start, was reduced to 56. This number will play in the second round, which started yesterday and concludes tomorrow.

In the first 16, the bracket that is playing for the trophy, James W. Crookston, defending champion, defeated E. L. Turner, 1 up, after 19 holes. The match was the hardest fought in the first group.

G. C. Denny, in the second bracket, required an extra hole to turn back E. W. Booz, 1 up, while L. O. Robertshaw, chairman of the Caddie Welfare Committee, defeated J. E. Watson, 1 up. D. P. Hudson, in the second 16, took an extra hold to win from E. B. Moore. In the third 16, A. H. Moore defeated Spencer Free and G. H. Meyer eliminated C. J. Allen, 1 up, 19 holes.

J. J. Knapfarber took an extra two holes to beat Paul A. Bartholomew, 1 up, in the fourth 16. The sixth 16 provided the close scores, however. L. B. McCarthy and H. H. Ruud required 19 holes to defeat Josiah Allen and D. C. Snyder, respectively, while J. R. Spiegel turned back the challenge of Dr. H. B. Barclay, 1 up, 20 holes.

SCORE STOCKS PUSHED UP TO NEW HIGHS

Many Gains Run From 5 To 15 Points—Loan Gain Causes Little Concern

NEW YORK, Aug. 2—(AP.)—Bullish operations were resumed with considerable vigor in today's stock market, with major speculative interest shifting from the public utility to the railroad shares. More than a score issues were pushed into new high ground, many of the gains running from 5 to 15 points.

Call money renewed at 10 per cent, but the banks appeared to be in a more comfortable position, and a lower rate is expected. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady, with business light. While many traders expected a decrease in Federal Reserve brokers' loans because of the heavy liquidation a week ago, the increase of $52,000,000 to a new high record apparently caused little concern, due to the rather general feeling that the loan total will be much higher before any major reaction develops.

EARNINGS HIGHER

Weekly mercantile reviews indicated little change in the general business situation, while the publication of another series of earnings statements testified to the widespread prosperity of the first half year. A further improvement was noted in the demand for copper, and the introduction of new lines is reported to have stimulated the demand for automobiles.

The brisk demand for the rails was influenced by the unusually favorable earnings and traffic statements now being published, and a rather widespread speculative belief that they were behind the general market. Atchison quickly made up its early 2-point loss and moved ahead 5½ points to a new high record at 261½. New Haven also moved into new high ground. New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, and Lackawanna were pushed up 5 points or more, and Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Erie advanced 3 to 4 points by early afternoon.

General Electric continued its sensational advance by soaring 11 points to a new high at 393, which contrasts with the year's low of 219. Detroit Edison ran up 14½ points to 385, Peoples Gas 12¼ points to 400¼ and Philadelphia Company 8 points to 228, all new high records. American and Foreign Power, North American Company, Consolidated Gas and General Public Service also broke through to new peak prices.

HIT NEW HIGHS

American Telephone ran up more than 5 points to a new high at 285¼. National Biscuit, Allied Chemical, Johns Manville, DuPont and Bohn Aluminum also recorded large gains. U. S. Steel common and Westinghouse Electric each crossed 215 to new high records.

Auburn Auto fell back 11 points and Vulcan Detinning 4½ on realizing sales. Other motors were well bought on unconfirmed reports of a bullish demonstration in those issues next week.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Wheat and corn prices turned sharply downward early today, influenced by lower Liverpool wheat quotations and by rain and cooler weather in the corn belt. Private crop estimates on wheat crop production were about as expected, and were devoid of important market effect. Opening 1⅛c to 2⅜c lower, Chicago wheat later showed some further setback. Corn started 1⅝c to 4½c off, and subsequently held near to the initial range. Oats were easier. Provisions also inclined downward.

An unexpected break today in wheat quotations at Liverpool proved to be the dominating factor much of the time in the wheat market here, rather than the bullish showing made by private monthly crop estimates. The 1929 production of domestic wheat indicated by the average of these crop estimates was 767,000,000 bushels, compared with general expectations of 769,000,000 bushels. On the other hand, the unlooked for break in Liverpool quotations today was ascribed to free offerings of Argentine wheat in Europe. Liverpool wheat futures closed today 1½ to 1⅝ pence loss, whereas an advance of 1⅝ to 1⅞ pence was due.

The private crop estimates today on wheat, although decidedly bullish as compared with last month and last year, failed to bring about any aggressive buying of consequence, meanwhile, the wheat market here was more or less bearishly affected by extreme weakness of corn values, which in turn were pulled down by widespread rainfalls and lowered temperatures radically bettering the outlook for the new corn crop.

American Telephone.

That American Telephone will continue the favorite investment for small interests is evident from the buying advices which continue to come out of conservative houses. The stock has been steadily bought in small lots and is likely to continue to show the results of this accumulation which had reduced the floating supply and made the issue more responsive than heretofore.

STAND. STEEL PROPELLER SPURTS

Stock Reaches New Record In Sensational Movement; Engineering Joins Rise

Standard Steel Propeller scored a sensational rise on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, soaring several points as urgent buying made its appearance.

Demand for the stock is reflection of steadily increasing operations of the concern, regarded as the leading interest in the airplane propeller field. Numerous substantial orders have been received recently, the latest being for 15 blades for the Ireland Aircraft Company, Garden City, Long Island.

FOUNDRY SOARS

Pittsburgh Steel Foundry also whizzed up at the opening, responding to the announcement that the company will take over the Sharon Foundry Company.

A special meeting of the Pittsburgh Steel Foundry stockholders has been called for September 30 to vote on a proposed increase in the common stock from 30,000 to 60,000 shares. It is assumed in the Street that part of the increased stock will be offered to present shareholders and that the proceeds will be used in acquisition of Sharon Foundry.

ENGINEERING UP

United Engineering and Foundry joined the group of local industrials in which the trading has been centering recently and shot up easily in the early dealings today. United Engineering's earnings are running well ahead of last year and followers of the stock are anticipating an increase in the dividend rate. Present payments are 40 cents regular with a 20-cent extra.

Favorable Dividend News Continues to Break Records

By B. C. FORBES

JULY'S 122 favorable dividend announcements bring the total for the seven months of this year to 1,122. This compares with 712 for the same period last year, 588 for 1927, 527 for 1926, and only 393 for 1925. The records exclusively compiled for this column show that during last month 51 industrial, public utility and railway companies announced extra payments; 33 declared initial payments; 22 stock dividends were declared; 9 companies increased their rates; 5 announcements covered back payments, and 2 companies resumed dividends.

AMONG the prominent companies appearing in last month's cheering dividend announcements were: the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, which increased its rate from $4 to $5; Corn Products refining, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Royal Typewriter, Chesapeake Corporation, Warner Brothers Pictures, General Mills, Jones & Laughlin Steel, American Machine & Foundry, Continental Mills, Southern Sugar, Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, Armstrong Cork.

FOURTEEN companies last month either omitted, reduced, or deferred payments, bringing the total for this year to 78, favorable comparison with 1928's record of 94, and 101 in 1927.

	1929	1928	1927	1926	1925
January	120	111	89	87	69
February	126	98	81	72	64
March	196	99	93	102	81
April	159	70	60	60	54
May	166	78	68	54	42
June	233	163	127	98	67
July	122	93	60	54	36
August	108	63	57	39
September	135	104	85	82
October	130	83	69	64
November	153	136	103	96
December	227	205	184	147
Totals 1,	122	712	588	527	393

THE total gain over the first seven months of last year is 410. The greatest increase comes from the number of companies entering the dividend-paying ranks for the first time—146 more than last year. Favorable announcements in the form of stock dividends have increased more than 165 per cent, from 68 in the first seven months last year, to 181 for the same period this year. Extra payments have been declared by 89 more companies. The following tables reveal the form taken by the favorable dividend announcements this year and last year:

1929.	Ind	PU	RR
Extra	344	13	10
Initial	342	26	1
Stock	160	18	3
Increase	115	17	4
Back	39	0	1

Increased	89	10	3
Resumed	16	1	1
Totals	647	46	19

AS will be seen from the above tables, industrial and miscellaneous companies have accounted for the greatest part of this year's gain, while the railroads have been about holding their own as compared with last year, and utilities maintaining a steady increase. The railroads and utilities, however, may play a greater part in these favorable dividend records in the future.

CORPORATIONS ADOPT NEW METHODS

Fix Price, Then Adjust Cost Of Product to Meet It; Accounting Plays Part

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The highly selective character of the recent upturn at the Stock Exchange mirrors a division in business affairs between old fashioned concerns and those which apply modern methods of efficiency.

With few exceptions, the outstanding corporations have gradually adopted up to date methods of scientific management. The system includes an analytical approach to all business problems, with careful planning and budgeting of expenditures. Accountancy has ceased to be merely the art of recording what has taken place, and has become a useful tool to the executive for forecasting and budgetary control. Cost accounting has to an increasing extent been a striving to reduce costs. The old style manufacturer would determine the price at which he would sell his products by adding a profit to the cost of production. The new executive recognizes that competition more or less fixes price. So he starts out with a price, and then works back to determine how he can reduce production costs sufficiently to produce the article to sell at a profit at a predetermined price.

BOSS ONCE SCOFFED

In the old days, the big boss scoffed at new fangled ideas of cost accounting and scientific management. He kept the significant figures concerning his business in his head. But as a resut of an era of mergers and consolidations, plus quickened growth of individual units, corporations have grown too large to be so simply managed. No single individual can keep all the relevant facts in his head. In recent years, corporations have created a new officer—the comptroller—whose business it is to supervise and interpret the accounting records of the business, advising the chief executive whether the business as a whole and the various departments are currently running up to expectations.

To an increasing extent, well managed corporations are checking up on themselves through consultation with outside experts—firms of management engineers and cost accountants. These business doctors, benefitting from an outside point of view and many contacts, help to keep executives abreast of the newest tendencies in management. Frank L. Sweetser, able business pathologist, in discussing these tendencies with me, said:

"Thinking certified public accountants are beginning to realize that industry, like life, is largely a matter of psychology. Accordingly, they are taking a broader view of business problems, whereas years ago they were narrow technicians. For example, they now consider it important to advise their clients to set up good organizations, with due regard to proper human relationships, and, secondly, they keep the records of a business.

"There has been a change in the fashions of cost accounting too. Ten to 25 years ago, cost accountants used to be satisfied with keeping records after the event. Now their chief emphasis is on budgetary control of a business, which involves forecasting. Accordingly, cost accounting has become a new tool of management. The service involves setting up in advance standards of cost and expenditure."

TRADE GROWS

The current bank reviews emphasize the continuance of aggregate trade on a high plane of activity. It is evident that the average American is consuming goods at a peak rate, and behind that fact lies the recurrent optimism expressed at the security market place, despite interludes of reaction caused by technical market conditions.

FARM PRICES UP

The comeback in farm prices since the late spring has also promoted optimism. It should be borne in mind, however, that higher prices for wheat are ascribable to crop deterioration, and some sections of the Northwest will be adversely affected by small crops.

Iowa, which was for many years the center of post-war agricultural distress, reports the approach of boom conditions again. Grant McPherrin, president of the Central National Bank and Trust Company, of Des Moines, Iowa, in a statement prepared for this column, points out:

"There seems to be a universal feeling of optimism in the state of Iowa, not only in the country but in the cities as well. Our own city of Des Moines is forging to the front as it has not done for five years, and we hear very favorable reports all over the state. Naturally, this makes us all very optimistic for the future.

"Naturally our farmers have profited by the upswing in the grain prices from the low levels of the spring. However, Iowa doesn't raise the quantity of wheat that some of the states do, so it will probably make little difference as to that item, but most of the corn has been held for July and August prices—in other words, they anticipated $1 for their corn. It is very close to that market now.

"Prospects were never better in Iowa, as a whole, both as to crops and livestock. The purchasing power in Iowa as a whole should be far above the average for the past few years.

"Interest rates for the crop moving period are bound to be high."

Standard Gets Propeller Order

An order for 15 three-blade propellers has been received by the Standard Steel Propeller Corporation from the Ireland Aircraft Corporation of Garden City, L. I. The propellers will be used on seaplanes powered by Pratt and Whitney "Wasp" engines.

Stock Exchange Topics

New York Bank Lending More for "Own Account" in Stock Market.

INDICATIONS are that when the Stock Exchange makes public its monthly statement on the ratio of loans to stock values several weeks hence, a higher loan ratio will be revealed. The increase of $52,000,000 in loans reported for last week, brings the total expansion for the three past weeks to $205,000,000, and the aggregate of such borrowings to within $40,000,000 of the $6,000,000,000 mark. Something of a change in the distribution of such loans making up the total, however, would it appears, place the money situation more securely in control of the banks than had been the case for some time. Heretofore the chief complaint has been against loans for the account of "others" over which little control could be exercised. Btu since June 4, while loans for the account of "others" have increased $114,000,000, loans by banns for their own account have increased some $370,000,000 and those for out-of-town banks by about $183,000,000.

Not so long ago, stock traders were accustomed to regard Steel common, General Motors and American Can as the market's "Three Musketeers" because of their prominence as leaders in bullish activities. Since the start of the present rise, however, such leadership appears to have become vested in several different stocks, with the new favorites, however, it might be remarked in passing, enjoying the same powerful financial sponsorship as their predecessors. For several weeks past, the stock market has derived its leadership from a new trio made up of American Telephone and Telegraph, General Electric and of course Steel common.

THE trader, depending of course on the correctness of his judgment, stands to profit or lose even in a bull market such as that now in progress, but the state treasury, like the "kitty" in a poker game gets its share regardless of fare of the participants. And the larger the volume of trading, the greater the increment to the state's wealth hrough the medium of the stock ransfer ax. The record-breaking volmeu of business down in the stock markets during July brought the state treasury $3,546,223 in transfer taxes, some $900,000 more than received in June from that source, and more than three times as great as the $1,166,231 received in the form of such taxes in Jiyu of last year.

Though the reserve condition statements showed the bill and government security portfolios somewhat larger in the week, the changes were not considered large enough to foreshadow any early definite entry of the banks into the bill market in a large way. On the contrary, the consensus of opinion was that the $8,000,000 increase in bill holdings of the New York bank resulted largely from purchases on contract agreement. For the sec- consecutive week, the condition statements revealed that more credit was being released to agriculture and industry in the interior, while the total outstanding in the New York district was contracting. Last week, reserve credit outstanding was cut by $38,000,000 at the New York bank, with a reduction of only $26,000,000 for the system. This week credit in the New York area was but by another $4,000,000 while the total for the system was increased by more than $19,000,000.

IN ADDITION to the speculative interest in Wabash because of its strategic position in the proposed Eastern Trunk Line consolidation plans, this carrier gave a good account of its earning power in the initial half of this year. Earnings on the common in that period were around $1.75 a share, compared with only 19 cents for the same period last year. In addition, Ann Arbor, of which more than 96 per cent of outstanding capital stock is owned by Wabash, showed substantial improvement in earnings, reporting for the first half $.65 a share on the common, against $1.71 for the first six months of 1928.

Since the turn of the year there has been a sharp gain in the sales and earnings of General Baking. In the first six months of 1929 profits showed an increase of 20 per cent, while sales were up to 10 per cent. For several years past there has been a substantial ploughing back of earnings. Company's activities have been expanded and plants modernized. General Baking now has 50 plants located in various centers of highly populated territory.

American Rolling Mills Income Up

PENNA. CRUDE DEPRESSED

OIL CITY, Pa., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—The Derrick today says:

Over-production of crude oil in the United States again was reflected on the Pennsylvania crude oil market today when prices of various grades of this oil were reduced 25 cents a barrel by the Joseph Seep Purchasing Agency of the South Penn Oil Company, the leading purchasing agent.

The new price range is from $3.25 in southeastern Ohio to $3.55 in the northwestern Pennsylvania and New York district. This is 50 cents below the high mark which prevailed during the first six months of the year.

Heavy production of oil in other fields has made the selling price of most of the petroleum products extremely low and has made it hard for the Pennsylvania refiner to meet these prices and pay unusually high quotations for Pennsylvania crude despit the high prices which prevail for the motor oil made in these fields.

The lower prices for Pennsylvania crude will be reflected in a decreased volume of drilling in this territory in future months.

Pgh. Steel Has Record Fiscal Year

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE Pittsburgh Steel Company broke all previous records in its fiscal year ended June 30. Net profit of $4,499,480 or $14.85 a share on the common stock vastly exceeded the earnings of any of the years since the organization reached its present size through the consolidation with the Pittsburgh Steel Products Company in 1925.

In the years ended June 30, 1927 and 1928, profits were curtailed by poor demand for seamless tubing, one of the company's principal products. During most of the last year, however, oil country demand has been good. In addition to this, wire products have been moving at a better rate than for several years and the company has had an exceptionally strong market for its surplus semi-finished steel.

As a result of this combination of circumstances, Pittsburgh Steel's open hearth plant has been running at capacity for the past 12 months. That is, out of 12 open hearth furnaces, 11 have been working for practically the entire time, while one of the battery has usually been idle for repairs.

Capacity Increased.

WITH the revival in demand for seamless tubing, both for oil country use and for the automobile industry, the company has been able to take advantage of its increased mill capacity installed in 1926. Further improvements are now under construction to make a greater production possible.

The extent of the gain in profits during the fiscal year can be seen by the fact that against net profit of $4,499,480 just reported, earnings in the previous fiscal year were $1,342,141. In the year ended June 30, 1927, they were $1,951,958, while in the 1926 year they were $2,533,578.

Net profit in the quarter ended June 30, alone, of $1,422,548 or $4.54 a share exceeded the entire preceding fiscal year.

Present Quarter Active.

OPERATIONS are continuing at capacity and there is good reason to believe that the present quarter will equal the last one. This means that the new fiscal year is being started under exceptionally favorable circumstances.

By far the greater share of the year's profits are being put into plant improvements. Dividends of $1 a share quarterly were resumed on the 253,500 shares of common stock on January 2, 1929, so that $2 a share was paid during the year. This amounted to $507,000 which added to the dividend requirements of $735,000 on the preferred stock, made total disbursements of $1,242,000.

The addition to surplus for the year was $3,257,480. The directors have made appropriations of considerably in excess of $3,000,000 for plant improvements which will be completed during the present year. In addition to the new seamless tube equipment, the improvements included a new power plant.

Improvements Extensive.

THE company's expenditures for plant improvements during recent years have been extensive. In the year ended June 30, 1927, they amounted to $2,221,310 and in the following year they were $828,056.

The market for wire products is being expanded by the development of specialty materials for building work. One of the most important of these is "Steeltex," a wire mesh backed by a building paper which is used as a base both for plaster and stucco.

Increased earnings during the year made possible a substantial addition to working capital which amounted to $21,106,673, compared with $15,349,496 at the end of the previous fiscal year. Current assets of $24,383,420 were eight times current liabilities of $3,276,747.

BUGS BAER Says

HOW THE OLD PLACE HAS CHANGED.

THE embargo on Wilhelm has been lifted and the boy friend can go back to Berlin.

"Bugs" Baer

If we remember profusely enough, Wilhelm was making a bicyle trip to Paris some time ago when his handlebars broke.

That was in 1918. Cousin Willie landed at a place called Doorn.

He looked at the signboard and remarked: "D-o-o-r-n. If that is Paris, they ain't spelling it right."

The defeat was purely alphabetical. It was then he echoed those words which have failed to move many an exception board:

"I have but one life to live for my country.

"And I propose to live it."

Eleven years have collapsed between the first and second act. The frog that would see Tokio stood on its hind legs and got an eyeful of the wrong spot.

Willie can go back to Berlin now. But he says:

"If I go back, I will go back as Kaiser."

Seems to us that he went back as Kaiser 11 years ago.

And very far back, too.

If we know anything about Berlin, Willie will go back there as Willie.

Just two years ago this August we danced on the ballroom floor of the Adlon with two of the ex-Kaiser's sons. We don't mean we danced with them, exactly.

But they were on the floor. We don't mean that exactly. Anyway, they all were dancing and there wasn't a uniform or a medal in a carload.

The boys were dressed in ordinary business clothes with lapels pointing northeast and northwest. And they danced very well considering how far they had retreated.

There was no bowing, scraping or saluting. All that is now the bunkola in Berlin. The boys were elbowed, stepped on and shuffled around to the music of an American orchestra.

And they looked as if they were glad they were finished with the job of waiting for paper to win a war, or something.

We see no reason why Daddy Hohenzollern shouldn't go back to Berlin. It is just a question of wardrobe.

If we can get over the idea that he has got to wear a fireman's hat to a Sunday school picnic, we can guarantee him safe conduct, but not sane.

As Willie, we think he will be welcome. But as Wilhelm, we imagine that he exceeds his quota.

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER

Pirates' Recent Boosters Appear to Tire Quickly

A popular declaration of a few years ago was "every knock is a boost." And we have often wondered if the reverse were true and that every boost is a knock. Certainly since we had a ceremonial boosting for the Pirates that baseball team has been knocked for a loss. We wonder if the boosters still are boosting as fervently as they were the morning when they turned their enthusiasm loose on the Pirates on their return home from a victorious eastern trip in first place.

The team didn't particularly need boosting then, but it does now. It had put itself into a commanding position without the benefit of boosting. But it met with misfortune through the injury of valuable players, which weakened it so that cellar haunters of the National League take not only liberties but games. And are the boosters around to spur our brave boys with words of cheer? Figures don't lie, they say. And less than 3,000 fans were in attendance at each of the first two games of the Philadelphia series.

When a man is riding the crest of the wave, and doesn't need friends, they flock around him. When adversity comes they look the other way. That's when he needs 'em. And it is in the time of adversity that the Pirates, one imagines, would relish a little boosting. It is human nature to hurray for that which is at the top of the heap. But we assume that the booster is above human nature—if he is a real booster.

Pull for the Pirates! It was said they deserved it because they had boosted Pittsburgh. Now is the time they need boosting most.

'Melon' for Employes An Indication of Merit

Four hundred employes of Boggs & Buhl who had been in the employ of the firm for five years prior to the death of Henry Buhl, Jr., participated in a distribution of $161,569 by the Buhl Foundation, created by the terms of Mr. Buhl's will. In addition, the Foundation gave $100,000 to the Boggs & Buhl Employes' Welfare Association, making more than a quarter of a million in all to be given to the employes directly or indirectly.

This, of course, is intended as a reward for faithful service. Those who benefit directly through the distribution are to be congratulated. Not so much because there has been an addition to their personal fortunes as because their fidelity is marked as having been such as to merit recognition. Most of the recipients, it is assumed, could have gone along very well without the monetary reward. There is significance, however, in the worthiness, as fellow servants with the creator of the fund, that is implied in the gift. Mr. Buhl was a builder. The donation, in his name, is recognition of the aid given him in building by time-tested associates.

Pittsburgh can be proud of men like Mr. Buhl and it can be proud that there are so many of his fellow workers who are qualified to share in that which he and they created.

DAY BY DAY

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 2.—This is a strange city of strange people that has no equal in social remoteness from the rest of the world. It genuflects solely to the movie and its people. The humble are completely wrapped up in the dreams of its great. Nothing else matters.

I have often wondered if cinema barons half appreciated the stimulating quality of this community in inspiring their players. It is blah—but it is spurring blah. The screen, just as the stage, needs fodder for its inordinate vanity. And it is fed here with a gusto.

In the eyes of Hollywood, its idols do no wrong. They will take up the cudgel for those who have toppled from high pedestals at any time day or night. I have frequently watched the most famous actors and actresses pass along Broadway without a head turning.

Probably 20 movie stars pass along a given block of Hollywood Boulevard to one star who passes a given block of Broadway. And yet each one out here will galvanize the block into an electrical tautness. Clerks will leave customers to rush to the doors and gape.

Pedestrians will suddenly halt to pivot in curiosity. Corner groups will nudge each other and whisper. Newsboys stop yelling. Chauffeurs whistle to attract attention of their fellows. If a star turns into a shop, store or cafe, a crowd will be waiting outside for the exit.

This gesture has not that quality of idle gawkery so prevalent among the curious on Broadway. It has an obeisance—a reverence. People are actually awed and hushed into whispers by the approach of the famous. Hollywood tradesmen seem little interested in any other but film patronage.

If one could sift out the emotions of Hollywood, it would likely be found that most of those not allied with the movie industry drifted here in response to its lure. It still captivates and holds them. They hug the notion they may too some day gaze down from the heights. And so they may.

A nightly curb delicacy along the boulevard is freshly popped corn—well buttered and salted. And for one who can make away with a hatful at any hour of the day or night the appeal of the street is tripled.

* * *

Another toothsome hotsy-totsy is a chain of stands with a facade fashioned into a stucco likeness of a lop eared puppy dog with eyes that roll mechanically. They are called Barkies—and inside at counters they serve the hottest of hot dogs. Woof! Woof!

Voice, dictron and elocution schools are in every block now that the talkies seem likely to linger awhile and the beautiful dumb must become articulate or go back to the five and tens. These schools supplant the riding, delsarte and acrobatic schools that once seemed so essential in the knack of getting on in the movies.

* * *

And the popularity of the talkie revue has brought a flood of tap dancing students such as those up several flights in Broadway buildings. It appears every recent revue has had someone who danced out suddenly, surprise, surprise, with a few intricate steps and ran off with the show. The hoofer is having his brief hour.

They are saying that the present picture Chaplin is making will be his last. And did you hear the one about the Chinese girl and the one-legged British sailor?

William Collier is to become a Hollywood fixture, which is something like transporting the Flatiron building to the West Coast. He has bought a home here and punches a clock in a talkie factory every morning.

ONCE OVERS
By J. J. Mundy

THERE are times when you want to do something to make a longer and a wider mark in the world.

You feel a lot of stored up energy and think it hard luck that you don't get an opportunity to show the stuff you have in you.

You think all you need is opportunity and you look at the men about you who have made something fine and big of themselves and you call it luck.

Some day you think that this opportunity, which you will recognize as your opportunity, will come and you will seize it.

So, without making an effort to create an opportunity, your enthusiasm dies and again you curse the bad luck, which seems always against you.

But how much time have you given to hard and persistent effort, to prolong pursuit of a chance for your own betterment?

You have excused yourself hundreds of times by saying that things don't come your way or that they don't break right for you, but you did nothing.

Hard work and self-denial you are unwilling to give and you don't want to get out and hustle, so you can stay where you are.

You are after a good time, little personal effort, easy money, but you won't get anywhere worthwhile on those lines, and it is yourself to blame.

Bible Passages

Called to Eternal Glory

(I Peter 5; 2-11)

FEED the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind.

Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock.

Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder. Yea, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time.

Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you.

Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour.

Whom resist steadfast in the faith, knowing that the same afflictions are accomplished in your brethren that are in the world.

But the God of all grace, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen settle you.

To him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today
By WILL ROGERS.

AN insurance agent handed over a blank for the customer to sign.

"Here," he says, "just sign where I marked it, and I'll fill in the rest."

But the guy sat there and started to read the application. He was a slow reader, and the insurance agent had a lot more prospects to call on.

"It's just a regular form," says the agent. "I'll guarantee it'll be all right. Just sign where I marked it."

"Say, guy," says the customer. "I'm signing nothing I don't read. The last one of these here things I put my name to carelessly was an application for a marriage license."

The Bird

WHEN was ever man as wise as a bird.
As a bird that clings
To a bough, and sings
Till his body sways like a branch, wind-stirred?

To the forest ways lying dark below
Where no sunbeams fall
And no comrades call,
He pays no heed while his swift notes flow.

But the echoing lilt of his joy floats high
As he sings of the sun
And a nest, begun
On a bough that brushes against the sky.

Below lie the depths of the forest dim,
Where the hunters hide
And the gray snakes glide;
But the sun and his song fill the world for him!

∴ LISTEN, WORLD! ∴
By Elsie Robinson

I'M working very hard these days, clearing forty acres of raw mountain land, turning it into a camp for babies and invalids in memory of my boy.

Great job! Blazing trails, building shacks, laying roads, making a dam and, of course, writing between times. I'm swinging picks, axes, crowbars, ploughshares, frying pans, typewriters and drawing pens from daylight to dark. It's hotter than blazes. We sweat like plough horses. I wear a ragged pair of linen knickerbockers, a faded shirt, sneakers—that's all.

I eat beans, mountain bacon and corn bread—three times a day. At dawn the smell of the coffee is mixed with the sharp, sweet scent of pines and the smoke from the fire goes up in a straight, blue line through the reddish trunks.

I do my writing under a tree with the woodpeckers tapping the bark above me and the quail scuttling almost over my feet. Squirrels stop and watch my machine like curious children, their heads a little on one side. Now and then a deer comes stepping lightly through the chaparral and stops to look at me. Its eyes are clear and brown as a mountain pool with something living in its depths. Quiet eyes that have never yet known fear.

All day I smell the earth. It is not dead, meaningless soil like city dirt. It still retains the fragrance and meaning of that which made it—the spirit of oak leaves and manzanita blossoms, pine needles, acorn and wild grapes. There is something very living about this soil. One feels that it is only resting between jobs, that presently it will quicken again into some new form of life.

By night I am dog tired. I am covered with dust. The sweat has ploughed runnels through it—my hair is coppery with it. I go down to a pool I have found in the creek. It is a deep, secret pool entirely ringed about with oak and willow and alder. The grape vines have woven a screen from limb to limb, making a cool, green cavern shot through with flecks of golden light. I take off my dusty clothes and step into the pool. The cold water stings my hot body. The granite sand is rough beneath my feet. It is not like the soft bath in my city tub. It is a harsh, icy dip that cleans me all through.

Small brown beetles share my pool and very gay little green frogs. Elder blossoms float in the shallows. Once a thin green snake slid across the water, circling me, lifting a head delicate as a jewel.

I stand on a rock and dry myself with a rough towel. A weary peace comes over me. I put on a clean shirt and eat my supper. Then I go up on a hill and sit down and watch the light fade.

The hill is on the rim of a deep bowl of valley. The shadows gather in the valley. Purple shadows, like the juice of freshly broken grapes—they gather and rise and brim like wine in a great cup. They brim and overflow and slowly the light in the sky is blotted out—

And it is night—

And the stars float, like elder blossoms, on the wine of night.

I sit alone. My nearest neighbor is miles away. The night floods over me and, looking up, I see the floating stars. An owl swooshes through the branches of a pine. A cricket shrills. Far off a coyote sets up his yammering bark. The echoes yelp and answer like a pack.

I sit alone—and presently I feel God.

I do not know what God is.

I do not know what I, myself, am.

Nor have I any understanding of this riddle men call life.

But, waiting in the darkness, I feel God.

I feel His urging moving through the trees. I feel His purpose, working in the earth. And I am part of His urging and His purpose. The Thing that moves that oak tree's sap moves my own blood. The Program that resolved those leaves to dust and soon again will quicken them to grass, will presently resolve me into dust and quicken me, perhaps, to some new life.

I cannot think what that new life may be. Just now I do not care. I only know that night is still—the Presence near. And I have served my time with one more day.

I sleep.

Mysterious Substance
Cure for Many Ills.

A SALT SPOONFUL, ACTUAL SIZE, OF RADIUM—VALUE $100,000

Radium was used to help King George in his recent illness, and is used in all civilized countries to fight cancer and some other diseases.

The action of radium on cancer is comparable to your own action when you kill a mosquito. You strike hard enough to kill the mosquito, NOT hard enough to break your hand.

The mysterious substance radium, containing "radio-active" properties, sends out from itself year after year tiny particles of matter, going at terrific speed.

These particles of matter, violently applied to a cancer, bombard it as a machine gun would bombard a regiment of soldiers, destroying the life of the cancer.

Cancers near the surface or that can otherwise be reached by radium treatment, if taken in time, are cured frequently by this strange substance.

One picture shows a small salt spoonful of radium, actual size. This amount of the metal is worth $100,000.

A RADIUM "SAFE" OF LEAD

Radium will penetrate most substances, going clear through the human body and ultimately causing death from over-exposure, as many scientists learned to their sorrow, before they discovered that in dealing with radium you must protect yourself with a sheet of lead.

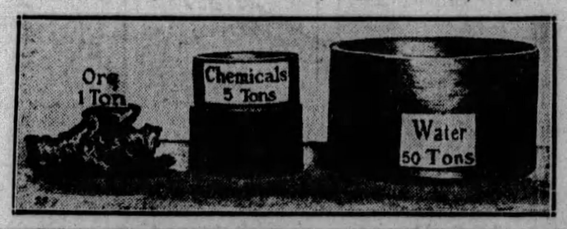
Curiously enough, the radium, with its radio-active forces exhausted, itself becomes dull, solid, heavy lead.

The bottom picture gives you an idea of why radium is so expensive. It exists in microscopic quantities in certain substances found in England, Portugal, the Belgian Congo, the United States and elsewhere.

You see in the last picture what is required to produce a few centigrammes of radium, an amount that you could put on a ten-cent piece.

To make this amount requires a ton of ore, five tons of chemical, 50 tons or 100,000 pounds of water.

As a thank-offering for King George's recovery from illness the British public have already subscribed $2,000,000 to buy a supply of radium for the National Radium Fund. Another $1,000,000 has been raised to buy radium for King Edward's Hospital Fund.



ALL NEEDED TO MAKE A FEW CENTIGRAMMES OF RADIUM

The average individual cannot understand the working of radium, which explains many things in Nature, including perhaps the sun's terrific energy lasting through thousands of millions of years.

Matter is made up of atoms. The atoms are made up of electrons revolving with fearful power around the central nucleus. The radio active force comes from mysterious Alpha-Beta and Gamma rays, shot off into space at fearful speed. The Gamma rays at 185,000 miles per hour.

It should be remembered that the discovery of radium is due to a woman, Madame Curie, who was helped by her husband, an able scientist.

OH, THESE WOMEN
By Leola Allard

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2.—What a a city in which to live mystery stories, this Los Angeles! If one could only go up on a Hollywood Hill and looking down, be able to see EVERYTHING! Ooo La La!

Most of the movie stars have several homes. No one knows why, because some of the homes are very close together, but you are told: "That is the Spanish home of Sadie Thompson," and "That is the Arabian home of Coquette," and "That is the Chinese home of Lulu Belle." Surely, it is a temptation if not an aid to leading a double life. In a way it is almost an excuse.

It's pleasing to find out that the really big timers have long memories. They are extremely nice to the girls who came to conquer and wound up with a white apron and a tray. They tip them liberally, and chat with them during tea and luncheon. What they could teach New York about civility and doing to others as you should! Some of the less fortunate are both beautiful and well educated, but they just didn't seem to have what it took.

Los Angeles is full of women, and the men are only about 1 to 4. A ratio that results in men daring to be themselves, and you'd be surprised!

Lois Moran, a young star with a milk-white complexion, got that way eating nothing but raw vegetables. And did you know Al Jolson's dentist has to charge him more than others, because he keeps him laughing and it takes all morning to do even the littlest job on his teeth? And about half the pretty girls in beauty parlors and tea rooms own their own homes and drive their own cars. How? High financing. I haven't got the details yet, but I'll let you know.

"After you waterwave celebrities and manicure them for a few years you wouldn't look out of the window to see the Pope ride a bicycle," said a blonde in a beauty parlor. "Why one of the girls who worked here gets $150 a week doubling for a star who has two of all her clothes, and won't go places that bore her. All the girl has to promise is to remember always to be a lady. She says it gets terribly hard to do sometimes."

A woman in Los Angeles sued another woman for alienation. The husband who got stolen testified for his wife and admitted coyly that he hadn't been done right by. So the wife got $10,000.

They used to have clay feet and now they make them of straw, and you have to keep them out of the slightest wind. They are such a care!
